WILSON DISCUSSES PLANS FOR SHIPS TO SUPPLY ARMY

Vessels Enough to Carry Men, but 3,000,000 Tons More Are Required for Freight.

ALLIES PLANNING TO HELP

Versailles Conference Gave Much Time to Considering the Problem.

IMPORT CUT ONE REMEDY

Attempts to Rush Shipbuilding Seriously Hampered by the Cold.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 5.—President Wilson took up personally the shipping problem tonight, and at a conference with Chairman Hurley of the Shipping Board went into the great problem of procuring tonnage for the movement of American troops and supplies overseas.

Every phase of the question was discussed, including the progress of the Government building program, plans for obtaining allied ships for transporting soldiers and negotiations with European neutrals for tonnage to release American vessels for transatlantic service. The President was particularly interested in the proposal to obtain additional ships by reducing imports probably one-half.

A full realization of the extent to which America's troop movement to France depends on tonnage has come not only to this Government, but also to the Allies, and it was indicated today that one of the chief topics at the recent session of the Supreme War Council was that of finding ships for that purpose.

A large American army is substantially ready to go, but before it is sent the War Department wants to be assured that it can be supplied. Ships are available to transport the men; the problem is to keep them equipped with materials with which to fight.

A million men on the fighting front will require, according to the best estimates available, 4,000,000 to 7,000,000 tons of shipping in continuous service across the 3,000 miles of water between America and Europe. The United States can lay its hands on about 4,000,000 tons now, and expects to build during the year 3,000,000 to 6,000,000 tons more.

The President was told by Mr. Hurley that bad weather in January cut the construction of commandeered ships fully 60 per cent. The Shipping Board's plans for building up a great shipyard workers' reserve and for obtaining more work out of shipyard labor at present engaged were outlined. Recruiting for the reserve is progressing well, and speakers are starting to visit the yards to appeal to the men to do their best as a patriotic duty.

The plan to cut imports from South America and the Orient to resease ships for transporting troops and supplies has been worked out at the Shipping Board. The class of imports to be reduced will be left largely to the War Trade Board, which is in control of imports and exports. The Shipping Board will advise the Trade Board as to the number of neutral vessels and American and French ships possible to put in the trades, and the Trade Board will determine what they shall carry.

There has been no announcement as to the amount of tonnage that the Allies are ready to spare for moving the American forces and their supplies. Already the British have turned over some ships for the purpose, and are preparing to release others.

The Versailles War Council took up the subject of what should be the balance maintained as between the shipment of troops and their supplies and the transportation of goods needed by the allied armies and the European civilian populations. Reports to Washington indicate that the policy will be to employ as much tonnage in the movement of American forces and materials for their use as can be spared from its previous runs without endangering the allied food supplies. The Allies are drawing less and less on America for munitions, as every month they are increasing the volume of their own manufacture. This releases tonnage for the movement of foodstuffs and for use by the American forces.

While Chairman Hurley was preparing for the President today a complete report on the shipping situation, Civil Engineer Frederick R. Harris of the Naval Bureau of Yards and Docks, who for three weeks was General Manager of the Emergency Fleet Corporation, was giving a Senate investigating committee an optimistic view of shipbuilding progress. It was possible, Mr. Harris said, for the Government to complete this year its original program of 6,000,000 tons of construction.

Mr. Harris said the estimate of a maximum of 3,000,000 tons of American ship production this year made last week by J. W. Powell, Vice President of the Bethlehem Shipbuilding Corporation, was pessimistic, and that he believed the fabricated ship program would be entirely successful.

President Wilson may make a personal appeal to shipworkers of the nation to speed up construction. Another plan to bring home to workers the fact that America demands whole hearted support is a series of addresses by soldiers wounded in France. Two soldiers, one from Ireland and the other from Australia, have begun a speaking campaign.

British Face Food Crisis in the Next Two Months

LONDON, Feb. 5.—Lord Rhondda, the Food Controller, met more than 100 members of the House of Commons in the committee room of the House tonight. He gave confidential information on the food situation and the existing stocks in the country and discussed with them the question of extending compulsory rationing to the whole country.

Lord Rhondda spoke for an hour, but the proceedings were private. An official report which was issued said that he expressed the view that the food situation would be in its most difficult stage during the coming two months, and asked the members to give him all possible help.

In the belief that many persons have rendered themselves liable to prosecution for food hoarding by inadvertence, Lord Rhondda has provided that during next week such persons may voluntarily surrender their stocks for the benefit of the public and will be indemnified against prosecution. This privilege does not apply to persons against whom prosecution is pending or whose domiciles have been searched.

SEES GRAVE FAULTS IN TRANSPORT PLAN

Congressman Miller Asserts Divided Authority Is Hindering Shipment of Troops.

PORT CONGESTION IN FRANCE

Insists United States Should Have Full Control of One or More Harbors.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 5.—Representative C. B. Miller of Minnesota, who investigated conditions in France recently, made a speech in the House today, in which he summarized some of the things still operating against successful conduct of the war. One of the chief difficulties, he said, was the lack of port facilities in France, and a broken-down railroad running from the port of debarkation to the battlefront. He said the lack of co-operation in ocean transportation, which was under three heads, must be systematized and other reforms made if this country was to place a real army abroad and keep it fully supplied.

After picturing the condition of the port and the railroad facilities in France Mr. Miller advised that this Government should insist upon having control of one port in France and of one railroad to the front.

"I sincerely trust that the Secretary of War will find time to go over there and make a personal investigation of many things in France," he added.

Discussing port conditions in France, Mr. Miller said:

"In the first place, when the war started we did not expect to send any troops to France at all until the middle of the Summer if 1918, when we expected to send a huge army. We changed our plan by sending a division for inspirational effect. We are now trying to get into France at the earliest possible date as large a fighting force as we can. In the first days, therefore, we failed to recognize some of the needs that would arise when the big movement was on. This matter of a port in France is one of them. We have largely for our use an important port in France. It, however, is grossly inadequate for our needs. In the first place, dock facilities were constructed for a commerce not more than one-third of that we are pouring into the place now. Fearful congestion immediately resulted when we began to send many ships across. These ships have to lie there waiting a chance to unload. Many of them have been there for weeks before they could be unloaded.

Ship Held Up Fifty Days.

"While I was there there was one ship that had been at the dock fifty days, trying to unload steel billets consigned to the French. It had got some off, but in despair of ever getting them unloaded it took the balance away, carrying them back to this country—even a part of its cargo.

"A vastly greater dock space is need-

COAL SHORTAGE NOW VERY ACUTE; ALARMS OFFICIALS

Idle Mondays Must Continue Because of Stress of Severe Weather.

MANY PLACES NEAR FAMINE

Only a Day's Supply on Hand, Some Report—Many Plants Are Shut Down.

COLD CUTS CITY'S SUPPLY

Yesterday's Receipts of Anthracite Were 7,000 Tons Short of New York's Daily Need.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 5.—With the East facing the most acute coal shortage of the Winter and in the grip of the coldest weather in a generation the Government decided today that the heatless Monday program could not at this time be abandoned, as had been hoped.

The conclusion to continue the closing was reached at a conference between Fuel Administrator Garfield and Director General of Railroads McAdoo, attended by a dozen State Fuel Administrators. There was no official announcement, but a joint statement probably will be given out tomorrow.

There had been every indication up to last night that the Monday holidays were over. But reports brought to Washington by the State Fuel Administrators, that throughout most of the East there was on hand but one day's supply of coal, coupled with the weather situation, were accepted as convincing proof that the present was no time to lift the closing order. Even Mr. McAdoo, who up to this time was understood to have opposed the closing plan, was said tonight to have agreed that until the weather permitted an improvement in railroad transportation the order should be continued in force.

The cold snap has cut coal production and movement to such an extent that, officials point out tonight, even had the Monday closings been abandoned, industry would be forced to close down to a considerable extent because of lack of fuel. In fact, reports to the Fuel Administration tonight showed that in many States plants already were closing in large numbers.

It was emphasized that the Fuel Administration was determined that coal unloaded and distributed should go first to meet the needs of householders. To State Fuel Administrators almost unlimited authority has been given to divert coal from other consumers to keep the people warm in their homes.

Call Situation Alarming.

For the first time since coal began to run short Fuel Administration officials admit that the situation is alarming. Report after report came during the day telling of cities, all the way from Mississippi to the Atlantic, with only a few hours' supply of fuel on hand and prospects poor for obtaining anything like the quantities needed.

In New England transportation was declared hopeless. Trains were crippled and an Atlantic storm had halted coal movement by water. In Pennsylvania mines were idle, cities were without coal and trains were unable to move. All industry in Indiana, it was said, was about to shut down. The situation in Ohio was so critical that Governor Cox planned to come to Washington to make a personal appeal for aid.

The railroads today were declared to be in the worst shape they had been at any time during the Winter. Low temperatures made it impossible in some instances for trainmen to work, and the general freight movement was said to be about 50 per cent. of normal.

There are indications that, if better weather does not come speedily, officials will take up for consideration a proposed amendment to the closing order prescribing two four-day shutdowns, one covering the period of Lincoln's birthday anniversary, and the other Washington's Birthday.

Lincoln's Birthday, Feb. 12, falls on

Colonel Roosevelt Is Ill Again; Brought Here After Operation at Oyster Bay

Special to The New York Times.

OYSTER BAY, N. Y., Feb. 5.—As a result of an operation performed a few days ago, Colonel Theodore Roosevelt was removed to New York City early this afternoon in order that attending physicians might be near him instead of their making the trip to his home at Sagamore Hill. It is expected that he will be able to be about in a week or ten days.

Ever since the Cuban campaign of the Spanish-American War Colonel Roosevelt has suffered at intervals from a fever contracted in one of the camps. During his Brazilian trip, four years ago, it took a malignant form. This caused a deep abscess which has troubled him quite a little during the last four years.

When the trouble took shape again several days ago Dr. Walton Martin of 151 East Sixty-third Street was called. The surgeon, who is connected with the operating staff of St. Luke's Hospital, advised an immediate operation, stating that in his opinion it was imperative.

Colonel Roosevelt decided that it should be done and told his family. The operation was performed by Dr. Martin, who was assisted by several other surgeons.

When Colonel Roosevelt got about today he did not feel so well and, after consulting with his physicians, he decided to go to New York City in order that he might be under their direct care. As a result of his illness, Colonel Roosevelt canceled his speech which he was to deliver tomorrow evening at Boston before the Chamber of Commerce and the Pilgrim Publicity Association.

Speeches which Colonel Roosevelt was to have made in the West next week have also been canceled.

At the Hotel Langdon it was said at midnight last night that Colonel Roosevelt was resting quietly with no apparent prospect of complications. The Colonel's illness made it necessary to call off his appointment to speak at the Vigilantes' Dinner at the Harvard Club last night, and also several appointments which he had today.

Mayor Advises Strikers To Resume Business

[Official Statement.]

At a conference sought by a committee of news dealers and its counsel, Morris Hillquit, with Mayor Hylan, the Mayor, after listening to their statements and suggestions, advised them that he thought it was for their best interests to resume the selling of newspapers for the general convenience of the public and under the return privilege for the sixty days offered by the publishers, in order that both the news dealers generally and the public, and the publishers, too, would learn how the new system would operate; and, at the end of that time the news dealers, or any of them, could state their grievances, if any.

ROADS TIED UP; MEN QUIT IN COLD

1,800 Freight Handlers Stop Work, Some with Frozen Hands and Faces.

STOCK IN CARS SUFFERS

Eastern Traffic Not More Than Half Normal—Passenger Trains Long Delayed.

The railroad situation east of the Mississippi was reported to Director General of Railroads McAdoo by Regional Director A. H. Smith last night as being about as bad as it could be. Staggering under the effects of five blizzards in the first five weeks of Government operation, the railroads of the East yesterday encountered zero weather over the entire territory, almost paralyzing traffic movement. Because of drifting snow and frozen equipment it was almost impossible to get empty cars to coal mines, and harder still to get loaded cars out.

Mr. Smith last night ordered that only absolutely necessary passenger trains be run until the carriers could recover from the latest cold spell, and that preference on all lines be given to coal and fuel oil. Similar instructions were sent to the Presidents of all Eastern lines.

Only a few eastbound trains were run last night from Chicago and St. Louis. Trains arrived here yesterday from east of Pittsburgh from five to twelve hours late.

Orders had gone out to the roads to keep freight moving at any cost and the devotion of railroad workers was attested by reports received by Mr. Smith that many of the men had had their faces, hands, and ears frozen while sticking to their posts. The weather was so bitter in many districts that the men were forced to quit work, although they were anxious to continue. Freight handlers and coal handlers would not work in the zero weather, and at noon reports compiled by Mr. Smith showed that the freight handling force of the roads entering New York was short 1,800 hands.

The first of the fast through food trains for the Allies, carrying flour, arrived at Bayonne over the Lehigh Valley Railroad yesterday. It was run down to Constable Hook, where, according to the new fod supply program, it was to have been run out on a pier and loaded into a waiting vessel. When the ship started for the pier she got stuck in the ice and three tugs worked all day

GERMAN PLOTTERS GET LAW'S LIMIT

Rintelen and Ten Others Go to Prison at Hard Labor and Must Pay $2,000 and Costs.

PUT FIRE BOMBS ON SHIPS

Judge Howe Sorry Statute Allows Him to Impose Only 18-Month Terms.

Nine German subjects and two American citizens, among the former Franz Rintelen, intimate of the German Crown Prince, who directed various German plots in the United States prior to the entrance of this country into the war, were convicted in the Criminal Branch of the Federal District Court of New York yesterday of attempting to blow up the British transatlantic cargo steamer Kirk Oswald.

Judge Harlan B. Howe of Vermont, before whom the case was tried, imposed the maximum penalty permitted by law in each instance, and several times remarked that he deeply regretted that he was not able to impose sentences far more severe. The conspirators were tried under the old law and not under the recently passed Espionage act, it being impossible to bring them into court under the new law, which was passed subsequent to the commission of the crimes charged in the indictments.

Just before the case went to the jury it looked for a few moments as if it would be interrupted by the sudden illness of Lawrence Farley, the foreman of the jury. Mr. Farley, who is a middle-aged man, became faint, and Assistant District Attorney James W. Osborne, 2d, in charge of the case for the Government, was informed that maybe "a little drink" of something stimulating would help Mr. Farley. Mr. Farley agreed with the suggestion, and then came the problem of getting the stimulant. This is how they solved the problem:

In the next courtroom to that in which the German plotters were tried a man was on trial charged with selling intoxicating drinks to United States soldiers in uniform.

"Exhibit 'A' in the evidence in the case next door is nearly full," the clerk of the court whispered to Mr. Osborne.

"Go get it," or words to that effect, said Mr. Osborne to the clerk.

The clerk disappeared and in a few moments was back with an amber bottle, almost full of a slightly darker liquid.

"This is 'Exhibit A,' and I am told it is all right," the clerk said to Mr. Osborne.

Mr. Osborne grasped "Exhibit A"

GERMANS SHOW GROWING ACTIVITY ON AMERICAN FRONT

Plan to Raid Our Trenches Foiled by the Speed of American Barrage.

Supreme War Council Considers a Proposal to Train 150,000 Americans There.

German Newspapers Distort Baker's Figures on Army

GENEVA, Feb. 5.—The declaration by Secretary of War Baker that there would be half a million American soldiers in France early this year has been distorted by German newspapers.

The Münchner Nachrichten cut off a cipher and made the number 50,000.

The Cologne Volkszeitung says the number will be only several divisions.

The Swiss newspapers are ridiculing the subterfuges resorted to by German organs to conceal the facts.

WITH THE AMERICAN ARMY IN FRANCE, Feb. 5, (Associated Press.)—The mist lifted from the American sector this afternoon, with the result that there was fairly lively shelling at several points, as well as considerable aerial activity. Several air fights took place above the trenches, and the anti-aircraft guns on both sides were extremely busy.

Regimental reports show that during the past twenty-four hours the enemy often has shelled villages behind the front which had not been disturbed by German fire for months.

Our Barrage Just in Time.

German plans to raid the American trenches were frustrated early yesterday morning. The American artillerymen put down a heavy barrage in front of and on the German lines, which are believed to have been filled with men and officers awaiting the signal to attack.

It was discovered at a certain hour that the Germans intended to carry out a "silent" raid. Fifteen minutes before the time set all the American guns concentrated their fire where, according to the information, the enemy was massed. It is believed that heavy casualties were inflicted on the Germans.

There has been a general increase in the artillery activity for the last day or so all along the American front. The Germans are still unable to occupy their first line trenches, which were caved in by the American artillery fire. They have now constructed another line of trenches at that point.

American patrols have worked their way over No Man's Land and inspected the damaged trenches as well as they could.

The Germans are using gas shells freely and endeavored to envelop one of our battery positions with gas, but without success. They have dropped a number of shells in the roads behind the American lines.

Two men were reported wounded today by shells. The visibility remains bad.

Slightly Wounded Stayed at Posts.

More detailed reports from the first line show that great courage was exhibited by the troops during the heavy German bombardment of Saturday. A number of the men who were wounded slightly by shell splinters were treated in the lines with their first-aid packets and insisted on remaining at their posts until the fight was finished. One man who was carried to a field dressing station returned to his comrades in the line after his wounds had been attended to and remained on duty until the firing ceased and the danger was over. All the men later went to a hospital for full treatment.

Many of the Americans have had their first experience with gas in the last few days, as the Germans have been sending over a considerable number of gas shells. None came over yesterday afternoon, but an alarm was given. The chief of staff of one division and another staff officer who were motoring to a village back of the lines came upon several companies, all the men in masks. The officers hurriedly put on their own masks and rode on toward the front line. At the next village the men were wearing masks. The officers kept theirs on until they saw through a shellhole in the side of a brick wall twenty infantrymen with no masks on rolling dice as if nothing had happened.

All Teuton Allies Join in Berlin Conferences

LONDON, Feb. 5.—According to a Wireless Press dispatch from Berne, a series of conferences took place in Berlin yesterday. The German Emperor and the Crown Prince received separately Radoslavoff, the Bulgarian Premier; Count Czernin, the Austro-Hungarian Foreign Minister, and Talaat Pasha, the Turkish Grand Vizier, after which the Emperor presided at a Crown Council. Various conferences continued throughout the day.

The Austrian Food Controller, Herr Höfer, has arrived in Berlin to make urgent representations to Germany regarding the necessity of helping Austria in her food difficulties.

THE HAGUE, Feb. 5.—Vorwärts, referring to the important conferences taking place in Berlin, which might interest the Reichstag, says:

GERMANS RESENT RIGOR IN STRIKE

Bitterness Over Army's Arbitrary Methods Not Confined to the Workers.

AUSTRIA CITED IN CONTRAST

New Strike of "the Whole Country" Threatened by a Deputy in Bavarian House.

By GEORGE RENWICK.

Copyright, 1918, by The New York Times Company.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

AMSTERDAM, Feb. 4.—Although the German strike appears to be a pretty complete failure, nevertheless it will not remain without consequences. The attitude of the strikers and those who remained outside the movement is certain to be made more bitter.

Once more it has been impressed upon German workers that they live under a system which is little better than a military dictatorship. They will not fail to note the difference between the action of the German Government and that of the Austrian authorities. In Germany the Government clamped down all freedom, refused to have anything to do with the workers, and left the military to put down the movement by force. Not for a minute did justice to the workers' demands influence the Government.

The Berliner Tageblatt thinks that the failure of all negotiations with the Government to bring about a conference with the strikers will arouse grave doubts in the great mass of the people, and that this close adhesion to formalities will not be calculated to promote tranquillity, all the more so when the highest local authorities in Cologne and other places negotiated with the strikers and reached an agreement. The Tageblatt condemns the Government for its attitude in wishing to negotiate only with those who had no direct influence with the strikers, and says the difference in the attitude of the Government and the local authorities in some of the big cities is a very bad sign.

Promises Made at Cologne.

In the Cologne negotiations an official received a deputation of strikers, found that an agreement existed on several points, and declared that the Government really intended to carry through the Prussian franchise reforms, and that its general policy was honest. He agreed to forward the demands of the strikers immediately to the Chancellor and the Minister of the Interior, while the Burgomaster agreed to send the Government an expression of his own views as to the urgent necessity for rapid realization of franchise reform in Prussia. The strikers thereupon agreed to resume work.

A comparison of this sensible attitude with the Berlin Government's inaction and reliance on force will not tell in favor of the Hertling administration; so though the strike had no direct practical success, the German Government once more comes out of a difficult position with little credit and with its reputation certainly lowered in all democratic eyes.

It is stated that before Vorwärts was allowed to appear again after its recent suspension the directors had to give far-reaching guarantees as to the future attitude of that paper. Vorwärts practically admits the failure of the strike, and declares significantly:

"Through all ranks of the people goes the cry for unity and organization."

Workers Desperate, Says Deputy.

In the Bavarian lower house a Socialist member, Herr Seglitz, according to the Munich Post, has delivered a pointed speech on the present state of affairs in Germany. He declared that the demand for peace was the main cause of the German strike, and then went on to ridicule the official statements that the state of affairs generally in Germany was fairly favorable.

"The food question," he said, "is causing the greatest misgivings. The inadequate nourishment of the people is responsible for the high infant mortality, for the greater number of deaths among old people, and for the physical degeneration of the youth of the country. We lack coal, clothing, and boots.

"We cannot afford to pay the high prices of the war profiteers. War

KRYLENKO SEIZED BY POLISH ARMY, BERLIN REPORTS

Red Commander and Entire Staff Said to be Captives at Their Headquarters.

TARTARS CAPTURE YALTA

Petrograd Says That They Are Marching on Sebastopol and Slaying Extremists.

CHURCH BAN ON BOLSHEVIKI

Excommunication Follows Seizure of Monastery—Church and State Separated.

LONDON, Feb. 5.—A wireless dispatch received at Berlin from Kiev says, according to advices from Amsterdam, that the Poles have occupied Mohilev, the Russian main headquarters, and have arrested Ensign Krylenko, the Commander in Chief of the Russian Bolshevist forces, and his entire staff.

The message adds that the Bolshevist uprising at Kiev has been suppressed by the Ukrainians.

Petrograd dispatches say that Tartar forces have occupied Yalta, in the Government of Taurida, and are advancing on Sebastopol, Russia's chief fortress and naval base on the Black Sea, and that they are dealing mercilessly with Red Guards, sailors, and soldiers.

Troops of the Bolshevist Army at Minsk have captured the town of Niejin, according to a headquarters dispatch. They are now advancing on Kiev.

General Verkhovski, who held the Portfolio of War Minister during the Kerensky régime, has been arrested in Petrograd, charged with counter-revolutionary activity.

AMSTERDAM, Feb. 5.—M. Holubowicz, Chairman of the Ukrainian Peace Delegation, has been appointed Premier of the Ukraine.

The Berlin Vossische Zeitung says the troops of the Rada have occupied Kharkov and that the Ministry of Holubowicz contains no Bolsheviki.

PETROGRAD, Feb. 4.—In reply to a dispatch announcing that the Central Rada at Kiev had traitorously risen against the authority of the Soviet, the Black Sea fleet and the Soviet of Sebastopol, according to the Bolshevist Telegraph Agency, have declared their fidelity to the People's Commissaries.

The most formidable military reaction against the Bolsheviki appears to have developed in the basin of the Dnieper, in towns situated from 100 to 200 miles east of the Austro-Russian battle front. Here had been stationed several divisions whose personnel had nothing in common with the ideals of Bolshevism. There was the so-called Polish Legion, consisting of about 30,000 men, which had distinguished itself in the great retreat from Poland in 1915; some Don Cossack cavalry brigades; Kuban, Tartar, and Turkestan rifle battalions, together with about 20,000 volunteers from the Mohammedan tribes of the Caucasus, all of whom are Mussulmans.

When the banner of Bolshevism was raised on this front there was a rush to the trains going to Petrograd and Moscow, and to Kiev, close by. Those who went to the present and ancient capitals were Bolsheviki; those who went to Kiev were Ukrainians. The Cossacks and Tartars and other "strangers" were left to themselves; so were the Poles.

Late in January the Polish Legion began to move and occupied the town of Rogachev, seventy-two miles south of Mohilev, on the Dnieper, where the headquarters of the new Bolshevist army, with its newly elected officers—mostly from the ranks—was established.

There is evidence that the Cossacks, Tartars, and perhaps the Ukrainians, who are now developing in the south, back of the old battle front, a formidable resistance to the Bolsheviki, are not acting independently, that they have the material and moral support of the bougeoisie or middle-class land owners.

DEADLOCK SEEN IN PEACE PARLEY

London and Paris Press Think Hitch Is Over Ukraine—German Press Threatening.

LONDON, Feb. 5.—London and Paris papers are commenting on the apparent hitch in the Brest-Litovsk peace negotiations, the significance of Trotzky's silence, and the return of the German Foreign Secretary, Dr. Richard von Kühlmann, and the Austro-Hungarian Foreign Minister, Count Czernin, to Berlin and their conferences with the German Emperor, the German Chancellor, and representatives from Turkey and Bulgaria. There is a general belief that a deadlock has been reached on the question of Ukraine.

The Berlin papers, according to an Amsterdam dispatch, publish no information concerning the Ministerial council, but it is supposed that peace with Ukraine and the settlement of the Polish status were discussed. The Tageblatt foresees an early peace between the Central Powers and Ukraine.

The Norddeutsche Allgemeine Zeitung and the Zeitung am Mittag, in almost identical terms, say that if Leon Trotsky continues his rhetorical displays the Brest-Litovsk negotiations will probably come to an end, and that there will be nothing to regret, because all reports prove that the Bolshevist régime has reduced Northern Russia to political and economic ruin and anarchy, and that, therefore, peace with Bolshevist Northern Russia would be valueless.

The situation is better in the Ukraine, and the Central Powers, according to these authorities, still possess power to enforce their territorial desires.

The Reichstag will reassemble Feb. 19. The general home and foreign situation will be discussed. The independent Socialists will raise the question of the conviction of Deputy Wilhelm Dittmann, who a few days ago was sentenced to five years' imprisonment for inciting to high treason.

PETROGRAD, Feb. 2.—A majority of the Moscow Soviet is in favor of the organization of a volunteer army of 2,000,000. This is supported by the Bolshevist representative of the Praesidium, who in his report said there were only three possibilities before them.

The first was to declare a military strike, not to sign peace, and ignore events on the front while preparing forces inside the country.

The second was to sign peace with annexations and indemnities, and consider such a peace signed in present conditions shameful and therefore not binding. The third was the organization of a volunteer army.

Opponents of the Bolsheviki said it was too late and that separate peace was unavoidable, also that Kaledine was a more dangerous enemy than the Germans.

The majority, however, voted that the German terms were unacceptable and declared themselves in favor of a "holy war."

The food difficulties are very great. In the districts outside Petrograd many starving and there are cases where trains bringing food to the city are held up and robbed outside. In a fight reported yesterday between peasants and the guard of a flour train ten persons were killed and twenty-five wounded. Twenty-five sacks of flour disappeared during the skirmish.

Yesterday the census of food stores in the town proceeded quietly, though there were several small riots ending with shooting where the bakers were unable to supply people who had been waiting for bread many hours. It is very difficult to get the peasants to give up flour even where they have plenty, because they want manufactured goods, not pieces of paper. There is thus a return to primitive bargaining. A train loaded with such manufactures as could be got together in the town was sent south to be exchanged for flour.

Prices are climbing daily. Following is the latest list: Yeast, $8.64 a pound; a very small hare, $9.60; chicory, $2.64; an inferior chicken, $6.24; potatoes, 60 cents a pound; butter almost unobtainable at $7.76 a pound; sugar, ditto, at $3.86. Under these conditions it is not surprising that crime and typhus spread together.

BOLSHEVIKI CURSED BY HEAD OF CHURCH

Attack on Monastery Brings Anathema—Leninites Decree Church-State Separation.

PETROGRAD, Feb. 3.—The Soviet issued a decree today, signed by Nikolai Lenine and other members of the de facto Government, absolutely separating the church and the State, eliminating church income from the State, and confiscating all church realty, furnishings, and paraphernalia. The decree stipulates that religious societies may continue to use the property exclusively for religious services, although the title is vested in the State.

Religious freedom is guaranteed so long as religious societies do not interfere with social order, limit the rights of individuals, or hinder the republic.

Clash at Monastery's Seizure.

Because of the seizure of the Alexander Nevsky Monastery in Petrograd by the Bolsheviki on Friday, the Most Rev. Dr. Tikhon, Patriarch of All Russia and Metropolitan of Moscow, issued yesterday at Moscow an anathema threatening the participants with excommunication and calling on the faithful to defend the sacredness of the Church.

The Patriarch has demanded from the Military Commission at Mohilev the release of Archbishop Gommel and other prelates, and an explanation of their arrest.

When the Patriarch's advisers urged him to revise his anathema so that it would be less bitter against the Bolsheviki he is reported to have flatly refused, declaring that he was ready to carry it out to the death. The anathema begins:

"The Holy Orthodox Church is passing through a hard time. It is an open secret that its enemies are perpetrating persecutions against Christ's teachings. They want to kill Christ's cause, excite hatred, and bring fratricidal war."

After declaring that atrocities and persecutions are increasing in general and that right and law are disregarded, the Patriarch says it compels him to address "to such outcasts of mankind our menacing word of condemnation."

Calls It Work of Satan.

"Come to reason," he continued. "Stop your bloody fratricide. This work is the work of Satan. By the power given to us by God, we forbid you to participate in Christ's communion. We excommunicate you, if you still have your Christian names, if even only by birth you belong to the Orthodox Church. We pray all the faithful children of the Orthodox Church not to come into contact with such outcasts of mankind. Throw the evil from among you yourselves."

Of the persecution of the Church, the Patriarch declares:

"The holy communion which blesses the birth and marriage of man has been declared unnecessary. The churches are subjected to destruction from bombardment by guns or to humiliation, as in the case of the Church of Christ the Saviour and the Holy Alexander Monastery in Petrograd and the Pochayeav Monastery at Kiev, which are being captured by the Godless dominators of our time."

The anathema closes with an appeal by the patriarch through all church prelates, calling upon all the parishes to fight and suffer for the sanctity of the Church.

Dr. Tikhon has been head of the Orthodox Church virtually since the overthrow of the Emperor, opposing with his might the plan of the Smolny Government to remodel the monastery and the entire church system along sociological rather than religious lines.

Small parades of prayerful members of the Orthodox Church were held today in protest against the seizure by the Bolsheviki of church property. The largest parade centred at the Kazan Cathedral Plaza.

Conflict Is Serious.

By ARTHUR RANSOME.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PETROGRAD, Feb. 3.—For the first time the revolution has come into serious conflict with the Church over the sequestration of the possessions and certain buildings of the very rich Alexander Nevsky Monastery. The purposes for which the buildings are wanted are charitable, but when it became known that an inventory was being made by the Soviet representatives, who entered the monastery grounds with Red Guards and sailors, large crowds of local worshippers collected and meetings of protest were held. The Spiritual Council of the monastery met and resolved to report events to the Patriarch Tikhon.

This monastery covers a big area on the banks of the Neva and contains many churches, including two of the oldest in Petrograd, built one above the other, where Peter the Great deposited the remains of Saint Alexander Nevsky, who defeated the Swedes at the battle of Neale. This is a regular place of pilgrimage and every day streams of worshippers pass under the pictured gates in its white wall.

The Soviet Government today issued a statement concerning the events in the monastery, including the stirring up by the monks of a crowd, mostly women worshippers, to beat the commissary who was sent to take an inventory, and also gave out a short notice on the subject of today's ceremony, pointing out that it was not forbidden, and that the forces preserving order had strict instructions for the immediate arrest of any persons who might attempt to interfere with it.

The Soviet Government's decree concerning liberty of conscience and religious societies definitely disestablishes the Church and destroys all the privileges accorded to professors of any particular faith. State functions are no longer to be accompanied by religious ceremonies, which are to be free so long as they do not interfere with public order. Religion is not to be used as an excuse for the nonperformance of obligations of citizenship, although local authorities may permit the substitution of one obligation for another.

The oath is abolished. There is a separation of school and Church, and the private teaching of religion is permitted. All forms of subsidization of religious societies are prohibited. No church or religious society may possess property. All possessions of churches and other religious organizations in Russia become national property; but buildings and instruments for religious service are assigned by the local or central authority for the free use of the respective religious societies. This, perhaps, explains the hostility of the Church dignitaries.

Trouble Began in October.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PETROGRAD, Feb. 3.—The Bolsheviki are now up against the Russian Orthodox Church. Until about last October the revolution and Church paid one another little attention. The Church then elected a Patriarch to replace as its nominal head the Emperor and his representative, the Procurator of the Holy Synod. The dignitary appointed to the Patriarchate was Tikhon, formerly Metropolitan of Moscow.

At the same time the Bolsheviki began to carry on a propaganda which must have for its ultimate effect the complete extinction of the Church. The anti-religious agitation was started in villages nominally to counteract anti-revolutionary activities of priests. Church lands were declared common property immediately after the November revolution. Since then, however, direct action and hostilities had practically not occurred.

ALL ROSY EVERYWHERE, BOLSHEVIKI ASSERT

Proclamation Confirms Capture of Cities and Says Victory in Finland Is Assured.

LONDON, Feb. 5.—A Russian Government proclamation addressed "to all" was received today by wireless from Petrograd. It denies statements made in the foreign press that chaos reigns in Petrograd or elsewhere, and asserts that Moscow and Petrograd are calm and that no Socialists have been arrested there.

Kiev, says the proclamation, is in the hands of the Ukrainian Council and the Bourgeoisie Rada has fallen and fled. Orenburg was captured by the council's authority, the proclamation adds, while in Finland the victory of the Finnish workmen's government is nearing achievement. The White Guard forces have been pressed back northward and the workmen's victory over them is assured.

The food question in Petrograd has improved.

"News from Germany," the proclamation goes on, "is scarce. Clearly the Germans are suppressing the truth about the revolution there.

"M. Trotzky wires from Brest-Litovsk that the Germans are dragging out the peace negotiations.

"Yesterday a decree was published separating Church and State and calling for the confiscation of all church property."

LOYAL FINNS RALLY TO GOVERNMENT ARMY

Red Guard Also Being Strengthened by Bolshevist Troops Sent from Russia.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Wednesday, Feb. 6.—A Stockholm dispatch to The Daily News, dated yesterday, says:

"Uleaborg is now almost entirely in the hands of Government troops. Very heavy street fighting has taken place and the Russians have been defeated.

"At Tornea 300 Russian soldiers have left the barracks and gone to the railway station, where they occupy carriages and are waiting for locomotives. Tightly packed, they have now waited two days and dare not leave the cars. They refuse to give up their arms.

"The strike at Helsingfors has ceased."

STOCKHOLM, Feb. 5.—No military action of importance appears to have occurred in Finland yet. The strength of both sides is increasing. The Reds, through arrivals of Russians from Petrograd, and the Government troops through accessions from the patriotic Finns.

M. Sirola, "People's Commissary of Foreign Affairs," has sent a long statement to the Zimmerwald Bureau in Stockholm, in which he declares that the struggle is one of the proletariat against the "butcher guards of the bloodthirsty bourgeoisie," and a further stage in the campaign for "general social revolution."

Scandinavians are fleeing from Helsingfors. These include families who have lived there for many years. The Finns in Sweden have opened recruiting bureaus and many volunteers have enrolled.

SEIZE SIX EX-MEMBERS OF GREEK CABINETS

Infantry Revolt at Lamia Entirely Suppressed and 150 Mutineers Arrested.

LONDON, Feb. 5.—Complete order has been restored at Lamia, northwest of Athens, where soldiers of Greek infantry regiments mutinied, according to an Athens dispatch to The Times. One hundred and fifty arrests were made in connection with the mutiny.

Former Premiers Skouloudis and Lambros and other former Cabinet members under impeachment, have been ordered to consider themselves under arrest in their own homes, where they are guarded closely by police. Other former Cabinet members arrested include M. Zalocostas, Foreign Minister in the Lambros Cabinet, and M. Isaldaris, M. Triantafillakos and G. P. Baltazzi, all of whom held portfolios in the Gounaris Cabinet in 1915. A son of former Premier Rhallis and General Gounoudoros also were arrested. All political prisoners of military age undergoing sentences in Athens have been sent to the fortress of Nauplia.

The newspaper Hestia of Athens, the dispatch adds, calls the Lamia incident a blessing in disguise, saying:

"It furnishes positive proof of the underlying infection which the Venizelos Government trusted it could cure without recourse to surgical remedies."

DUTCH STRIKE A FAILURE

Despite the Increase in the Number of Amsterdam Strikers.

By GEORGE RENWICK.

Copyright, 1918, by The New York Times Company.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

AMSTERDAM, Feb. 5.—The Dutch strike still continues, but though the number of strikers in Amsterdam has increased from 3,000 to 4,000, the movement must be described as a complete failure here in Amsterdam and elsewhere in the country. The strikers at The Hague are going to present an address to the Government demanding that no necessary foodstuffs be exported; that the existing supplies be seized for the purpose of proper distribution and reduction of food prices to pre-war rates; that work be provided for the unemployed, and that demobilization be effected.

No serious disturbances have taken place anywhere.

profiteering, which is going on unchecked, is making life even more difficult, and yet the Minister of the Interior says things are going quite well. One must really ask if we are not playing a comedy. Does the Minister think he can deceive hostile countries by his rosy statements?

"The people have been put off with promises far too long. They were promised corn and oil from Rumania, and that coal would soon be plentiful. What has happened? Things have not improved in the slightest, and the promises remain unfulfilled.

"Already 1,300,000 Germans have been killed and the country's debt is now over a hundred milliards marks. Who now is so foolish as to believe in war indemnities to cover that amount?

"We actually rejoice over the U-boats sinking ships with food for England, but after the war we, too, will have no ships to bring us food.

"The workers have struck in several parts of the country, but if the Government does not pay attention to the warning signals the whole country will perhaps strike. A strike is very serious business, but it is of no use to talk of treason. That won't calm the masses. The people believe they cannot resort to any other action in order to save themselves."

The speaker then attacked the military clique in Berlin, saying it was all very well for the Government to promise reforms, but "the German Government and the Prussian King are too weak to give effect to their promises." He added that he was convinced that the danger of the situation was not realized.

"The Government must be warned," he concluded, "for the next events may easily be infinitely more serious than the last."

NEW TALE OF INCITING STRIKE.

Member of Reichstag Helps Along Anti-American Propaganda.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

THE HAGUE, Feb. 5.—Dr. Heckscher, a member of the Reichstag, adds a contribution to the official propaganda intended to convince German workmen that the Berlin strikes were started with American money and through American agents in neutral countries.

He says that shortly after the outbreak of the war between America and Germany, a neutral of good standing "who of affection for the German cause has made considerable sacrifices during the war" informed him that the American "legation" in the country where the neutral resides had approached him in ignorance of his sentiments and informed him that with large amounts of money and the services of paid agents, the United States intended to stir up disturbances, especially strikes, in Germany. Dr. Heckscher says he gave notice of this at the time to the proper authorities, and he now considers the time ripe for publication of his statement. It is unfortunate for Heckscher, who is closely connected with Hamburg shipping interests, that the Vienna Arbeiter Zeitung publishes a denunciation of these fables regarding outside influence on the strikers, explaining that the German Government desperately needed telegrams showing wild enthusiasm in allied countries over the German strikes, but since these messages failed to appear other news from neutral countries had to be and is being deliberately faked.

SAYS STRIKE AFFECTED ARMY.

Report That German Soldiers Incited Belgians to Quit.

AMSTERDAM, Feb. 5.—The Telegraaf's frontier correspondent says that the measures taken by the German officials against the strike leaders in Germany evoked great discontent among the German soldiers in Flanders. The correspondent adds that in many cases the soldiers have incited Belgian laborers, who have been forced by the Germans to work, to go on strike.

A semi-official telegram dated Monday received here today from Berlin says:

"The number of strikers in Greater Berlin declined today. A large number of works are again operating. In other big armament works the number of those at work varies from 75 to 80 per cent. of their full complement. A further abatement is expected tomorrow, so that the strike may now be regarded at an end."

GIVES BOLO THE LIE IN TREASON TRIAL

Accounting Expert Says His Fortune Was Not Due to Commissions on Sales.

PRISONER LOSES COURAGE

Visibly Affected When Evidence of German Payments of $1,000,000 Is Presented.

PARIS, Feb. 5.—Bolo Pacha, who is on trial before a court-martial on a charge of treason, lost something of his courage at the close of today's session, when the Government's first witness, an expert accountant, M. Doyen, after solemnly turning to the prisoner with the declaration: "All of Bolo's statements are lies; he never received the commissions he alleges as the basis of his fortune," handed to the court receipts, checks, and other documents showing that Bolo had received $500,000 from the Guaranty Trust Company of New York, agent of the Deutsche Bank before the war, and a like amount from the Royal Bank of Canada.

Bolo's face lost the half smirk, half sneer, which it had worn all day, at the sensational close of M. Doyen's testimony, and for the first time since the opening of his trial he waived the opportunity to interrogate the witness.

M. Doyen occupied the stand for nearly two hours, detailing slowly and methodically his examination of Bolo's affairs. His testimony was often technical, and many who had jammed their way into the building had left when the witness reached the climax.

During the early part of the session Bolo maintained the attitude which he had assumed yesterday, his joviality bringing repeated laughs that had to be checked as he sparred with the prosecutor and Chief Judge during his own examination. He was jaunty as ever, striking attitudes in the dock, gesticulating gracefully, talking with lightning-like rapidity, and seemingly never at a loss for an answer to the questions rained upon him by prosecu- and court alike.

Shaken by Evidence of Checks.

It was only when M. Doyen began his testimony that Bolo slumped down in his seat, and, with face that strove to look unconcerned, listened to the accusations hurled at him. He presented a strong contrast at first to his co-prisoner, Porchère, his former secretary, who, in a pitiful, shaking voice, with hand upraised, had sworn he was innocent. In the latter half of the session, however, Porchère seemed cooler than Bolo. This was especially true when M. Doyen read a specimen letter from a collection of photographic reproductions of checks and other papers which had been sent here by the Attorney General of the State of New York. This letter was addressed by Bolo to the Amsinck Banking House, reading:

"You will receive sums for my account, the amount of which Pavenstedt [former head of this bank] knows."

Among the other exhibits were checks showing the payment by the Guaranty Trust Company to the Amsinck Bank for $500,000, paid "for the account and by order of the Deutsche Bank," and checks to the order of the Royal Bank of Canada, and a receipt from that institution for $500,000.

M. Doyen also testified that when the war began Bolo and his wife had dissipated the fortune left her by her first husband, and that the two had no other income than 47,000 francs a year, derived from a trust fund.

Bolo's examination, begun yesterday, was concluded early in today's session.

Says Pavenstadt Duped Him.

Regarding Adolph Pavenstadt, formerly connected with a New York banking house and now in a Georgia internment camp, with whom he had financial dealings in the United States, Bolo said Pavenstadt never mentioned Count von Bernstorff, the German Ambassador, to him and that Pavenstadt always manifested hatred toward Germans, pretending to be of Czech origin. Bolo said that Pavenstadt's evidence contained many errors in dates. He questioned the authenticity of the documents which Pavenstadt produced. (This apparently refers to the evidence Pavenstadt gave at the New York State investigation of last Fall, in which Pavenstadt named Count von Bernstorff as the source of large sums which Bolo is declared to have received in this country for the influencing of French public opinion.)

Bolo asserted that it would be ridiculous to consider him the political personality mentioned in a telegram from Count von Bernstorff to Herr von Jagow, the then German Foreign Minister, as seeking a loan. He also said that it would have been utterly useless for him to use the name of "St. Regis." (Pavenstadt's testimony explained the use of this name in a von Bernstorff message by stating that it was a password given him by Count von Bernstorff at Bolo's request in case Bolo should wish later to get in contact with German officials at Berne.)

"These telegrams are fabrications," Bolo declared.

The defendant's air of confidence was noticeably affected when the President of the court pointed out contradictions in Bolo's various accounts of his American visit, and also of the manner in which the books of the New York banking house with which he had dealings afforded contradiction of his statements.

"The authenticity of the American documents is guaranteed by the fact that the American Government communicated them to French justice," the prosecuting officer said.

Bolo explained the fact that he kept no books by saying that he adopted this course to avoid the income tax.

NORWAY EMPHASIZES TRADE NEUTRALITY

Tells United States That Yielding to Proposals Might Force Her Into War.

CHRISTIANIA, Feb. 5.—Norway's reply to the proposals of the American War Trade Board regarding supplies from the United States to Norway, published today, emphasizes the firm resolve of the Norwegian people and Government to remain neutral.

"Norway, in her commercial policy, cannot break with one belligerent," the reply says, "without imperiling her general neutrality. The Norwegian Government entertains no doubts that the United States and her allies will understand Norway's difficult situation. Norway justly claims that the country should not go without bread, thus being confronted with the alternative of complete distress or an agreement that might endanger her neutral position, and possibly expose the country to war, which, in a short time, might destroy what the Norwegian people have taken centuries to build."

The reply also emphasizes the important benefits rendered to the United States and her allies by Norway, and especially by Norwegian commercial shipping, which have been attended by great sacrifices in human life and ships. It is asserted that Norway has endeavored to accommodate the United States so far as she can reconcile this with her vital interests.

"Norway offers to the United States and her allies," says the reply, "the greater part of her exports in return for supplies necessary for her national health and productivity."

The newspapers which comment on Norway's reply, including the Government organs, display anxiety to meet the United States amicably. This is in great contrast to previous articles in these papers. The feeling in political circles is hopeful that a compromise will be reached.

The proposed agreement between Norway and the United States, as recently announced by the American War Trade Board, made a definite allotment of various commodities, including food supplies, which it would be permissible to export to Norway from the United States. No foodstuffs, it was provided, could be sent to the Central Powers by Norway except 48,000 tons of fish and fish products per year. Strong restrictions were also placed on Norway's export of copper to Germany.

SAYS GERMANS EXPOSE CAPTIVES TO AIR RAIDS

British War Office Official Threatens Similar Action by Way of Reprisal.

LONDON, Feb. 5.—In the House of Commons today James Ian Macpherson, Parliamentary Secretary to the War Office, informed a questioner that information had been received that Germany had placed officers as prisoners of war in localities especially subject to air raids.

He announced also that similar action was contemplated in this country.

GERMANS ANGERED BY ALLIED COUNCIL

"Wild War Fanfare" and a New Declaration of War Are Seen.

STILL HOPE IN LANSDOWNE

Bonar Law Tells Commons That No Generalissimo Was Named by the Council.

AMSTERDAM, Feb. 5.—Commenting on the recent session of the Supreme War Council at Versailles, the Cologne Volkszeitung says:

"A wild war fanfare is Versailles' only reply to the moderate statements of Count von Hertling and Count Czernin, which were inspired by the most sincere desire for peace."

The Rhenish Westphalian Gazette says:

"The workingmen of the Central Powers will be unable to avoid recognizing that the guilt for the continuance of the bloody struggle lies solely on our enemies."

The Cologne Gazette comments:

"The Versailles declaration is the political bankruptcy of the Entente. While the Central Powers are building a new world with strong hands, the Entente persists in stark negation."

The Frankfurter Zeitung says:

"The Entente has declared war anew. Peace by understanding can only be reached when a mind which speaks from Lord Lansdowne's words has gained the upper hand over the voice from Versailles. The Entente still is dominated by men professing to believe in a military victory for the Entente, and nothing remains but that we shall draw the conclusion from this fact. Germany does not fear another year or two of war, but the Entente must be punished for prolonging the world agony, when it is plain to everybody that peace is possible."

NO ALLIED GENERALISSIMO.

Announcement by Bonar Law—New Hint of Elevating Foch.

LONDON, Feb. 5.—Andrew Bonar Law, Government spokesman in the House of Commons, announced today that a Generalissimo had not been appointed as a result of the recent conference of Premiers and Generals at Versailles.

Arthur Lynch, Nationalist, asked:

"Has unity of command been obtained?"

To this Mr. Bonar Law replied:

"If that question means has a Generalissimo been appointed, the answer is 'No.'"

Replying to ex-Premier Asquith, Mr. Bonar Law said that in view of the important military considerations involved it was not considered possible at present, without giving valuable information to the enemy, to publish further details or information regarding the enlargement of the functions of the Supreme War Council decided upon at the Versailles conference.

Mr. Bonar Law said that Premier Lloyd George would not make a statement before the prorogation of Parliament, as he could not add anything to the answers just given. The House, he said, would resume next week, and there would be a suitable opportunity for such a statement.

Praise of Foch "Significant."

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Feb. 5.—The Daily News says editorially:

"The misgivings which the report of the Versailles conferences raised in the minds of many sober critics have not been diminished on more mature reflection. How far the conference of soldiers was fruitful, the course of military operations may in due time prove. That belongs to the uture. The apparent sterility of the conference of politicians belongs essentially to the present. It is, in fact, much more serious in its implications than in its immediate results.

"This question does not lend itself to unrestricted discussion. The internal affairs of the allied nations concern those nations primarily. Our own internal affairs concern us primarily, and the salient fact in relation to them today is that the Government whose nominees represented this country at Versailles has shown itself to be widely and increasingly out of touch with the trench and spirit of the country. That creates a disquieting situation and lays the foundation for serious misunderstandings.

"We take a single example and touch on it with reserve. There are certain points on which most Englishmen quite frankly, and in a spirit which France is chivalrous enough to respect and appreciate, take a different view from France. With France the future of Alsace-Lorraine is a 'chose jugée.' With a large section of our own people, who cannot follow the application of one principle to Courland and Lithunania in the east and of another to Alsace in the west, it is a question to be settled judicially under the auspices of that league of nations without which a peace settlement can rest on no enduring guarantees.

"A question that presents itself forcibly in connection with the Versailles conference is how far Lloyd George and Lord Milner reflected or are capable of reflecting accurately the preponderant British view on this and cognate matters.

"There is the further question of a single generalissimo on the western front. It is significant that on the morrow of the Versailles discussions the French press become suddenly eloquent on the military qualities of General Foch, as a section of the British press was at a critical moment on General Nivelle. To recall the parallel should be sufficient. We need only add that if the attitude of the British people on the question of a single command in the west has not been made clear at Versailles, the British representatives have fallen gravely short of their duty."

AMERICA INVITED TO JOIN.

Full Representation in War Council Under Consideration.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 5.—The United States Government has under consideration an invitation to participate in the political determinations of the Supreme War Council at Versailles, but for the present no assent to any policy or declaration involving considerations other than those purely military will be given by any American representative sitting with the council until it has first been submitted to this Government and received its approval.

Neither the White House nor the State Department has given reasons for the failure of the United States to participate politically in the War Council, although it is known that President Wilson's foremost idea is to concentrate on the military problem and he is willing to co-operate with the allied nations to the fullest extent in a military way.

AIR RAIDERS AGAIN DROP BOMBS ON VENICE

Suburban Church Wrecked—City Escapes Fatalities—Allies Down 13 Airplanes.

VENICE, Feb. 4, (Associated Press.)—It was believed that the enemy had decided to respect the remaining art treasures in Venice, but his policy of terrorism was resumed last night. The siren sounded soon after midnight, and the alarm continued until daylight. Several bombs were dropped.

A number of bombs fell into the water at the eastern end of the Grand Canal. One fell near the Church of Santa Maria del Giglio, another in the Calle Furlain, and three on the Lido. Fortunately, no one was killed.

The population was startled at the unexpected resumption of the air raids, as it had been expected that Venice would not be subjected to further bombing. At Mestre, a suburb of Venice, the Church of San Lorenzo was almost entirely destroyed by bombs.

ROME, Feb. 5.—Italian and British aviators yesterday shot down thirteen enemy airplanes, and last night Italian airships bombarded military transports on the Conegliano-Casarsa railway, north and east of the middle Piave.

Padua was attacked by enemy aviators early this morning. Buildings in the centre of the city were damaged, and a few persons were wounded.

Following is the text of the statement:

There have been intermittent artillery actions of a desultory character, but lively aerial activity over the whole of the front. Yesterday thirteen enemy machines were shot down, five by our aviators and eight by British airmen. At night our airships bombarded military transports on the Conegliano-Casarsa railway line.

Before dawn Padua was again attacked by enemy aviators, who dropped bombs in the centre of the town, causing damage to buildings and wounding a few persons.

ITALIAN HEADQUARTERS, Feb. 4, (Delayed.)—Early this morning enemy aircraft renewed their attack on Padua. As usual, the damage and loss of life caused were of no military value whatsoever to the enemy. A modest hotel was destroyed, and a drug store, which had the bad luck to be struck in two different raids—the first in December and the second yesterday—has been reduced to a pile of masonry.

Shell fragments struck the civil hospital and the headquarters of the British Red Cross without injuring any one, and the Bishop's Palace was missed only by a few yards. With all its broken windows, it makes a fit pendant to the Cathedral, the wrecked façade of which rises beside it.

More than fifty bombs were thrown by the enemy airmen, who also visited Mestre and Treviso again. At Mestre they shattered a church and at Treviso once more hit a civil hospital.

MARCONI AS AMBASSADOR?

He Is Also to be High Commissioner, Rome Hears.

ROME, Feb. 5.—It is reported here that William Marconi will replace Count Macchi di Cellere, Italian Ambassador at Washington. Count Macchi di Cellere, it is understood, is returning to Rome and will likely be sent to Petrograd, where Italy is now represented by a Chargé d'Affaires.

Senator Marconi, according to these reports, will go to the United States as Italian High Commissioner, with the rank of Ambassador.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 5.—The Italian Embassy here had no advices from its Foreign Office today that Senator Marconi would come here to take the place of Count Macchi di Cellere.

A dispatch from Rome, on Dec. 30, said Senator Marconi had been appointed High Commissioner to the United States. He was a member of the mission which visited this country in the Spring. After his return to Italy he served on the staff of General Diaz, Italian Commander in Chief, giving special attention to the wireless system at the front.

GERMAN WAR ORDERS GIVEN IN JUNE, 1914

Paris Paper Publishes Directions for Mobilization of Factories and Starting Sabotage.

PARIS, Feb. 5.—The Petit Parisien began today the publication of German official documents to establish the fact that the war was premeditated and preorganized by the Berlin authorities. The documents were brought to France by a "famous French scientist," who obtained them from a celebrated Russian revolutionary paper. The names are not given, it is said, as their publication would endanger the lives of the men.

The most important document is a circular dated June 9, 1914, in which the German General Headquarters orders all owners of factories to open the mobilization envelopes in their possession.

A circular dated Nov. 2, 1914, informs military agents on the frontiers of Russia, France, Italy and Norway that unlimited credits have been opened at German banks in Sweden, Norway, Switzerland, China and the United States, which the General Headquarters authorizes them to use for the purpose of destroying factories belonging to the enemy, provoking strikes, damaging ships, burning supplies and destroying electrical centres. Special agents were being placed at their disposal, it was added, to bring about explosions and fires.

WHY GERMANS RAID LONDON

Seek to Compel Great Aerial Defense at Expense of Front.

AMSTERDAM, Feb. 5.—While the recent German air raid on Paris was undertaken purely as a reprisal for French raids upon open German towns, the correspondent at Berlin of the Nieuwe Rotterdamsche Courant telegraphs he has been reliably informed that the attacks on London may be classified as a "systematic action."

One idea, the correspondent says, is to damage the "centre of enemy combinations, the big harbor fortress and the centre of the whole British war organization," but the principal object is that England will thereby be forced to maintain at the expense of the services at the front, an enormous barred aerial zone on the east coast to protect the homeland.

As a result the Germans say they will be enabled successfully to maintain themselves in the air on the west front.

'IN PARIS BY APRIL,' SAYS HINDENBURG

Marshal Promises Success in Answer to Thirty Editors' Famine Warning.

GREAT DRIVE ADVERTISED

German Papers Feature the Coming Offensive—One Declares Navy Will Fight.

THE HAGUE, Jan. 19, (Associated Press.)—Travelers from Germany bring an account of a recent conference at Berlin at which Field Marshal von Hindenburg received the editors of thirty German newspapers and discussed the food situation with them. The editors told von Hindenburg that by next May there would be no food in Germany.

"My reply is," said the Field Marshal, "that by next April I shall be in Paris."

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 4.—Field Marshal von Hindenburg's reported statement that the German army will be in Paris by April 1 is not taken seriously here, as military men here think it impossible for the Germans to break through the western front in the next sixty days. One Government official pointed out that "April 1 would be April Fool's Day."

Blow on Western Front.

AMSTERDAM, Jan. 19, (Associated Press.)—Advertisement of what Germany is planning to do on the western front before American military power can be put into the conflict continues to be a conspicuous feature of the German newspapers.

"The next six months will be the deciding period," says the Frankfurter Zeitung. "During that eminently important period the Central Powers will with absolute certainty have the strategic superiority, for the hopes of the Entente for American help cannot possibly be fulfilled within that time. The Central Powers will concentrate their whole strength on the west front for a decisive blow. French soil, those fertile, flourishing fields which have already suffered so cruelly and have drunk such rivers of blood, will be the scene of a final struggle which will far surpass the fiercest struggles of the last year.

"If we do not share the lightheartedness with which the problem of American military help is often set aside we also consider it certain that the United States cannot in the next few months increase the very great moral and economic support which they have given the Allies."

The Deutsche Tageszeitung, in an article declaring that all eyes are now focussed on the west, declares that the greatest battle of the war is now about to begin there.

"We must not allow the belief to arise, however," it says, "that the increase of our strength in the west will force the French to lay down their arms or the English to run away. It may come to this, of course, and Hindenburg said a year ago, 'We are already doing it, my children.' Our Emperor, the Supreme War Lord, has said that the decision is now to be sought. Will to victory and readiness for peace are combined in his words, 'If the enemy does not wish peace we must bring peace to the world by breaking in the gates of those who do not want peace with mailed fist and flashing sword.'"

Major von Olberg, head of the War Press Bureau, writes in the official Norddeutsche Allgemeine Zeitung that the blow is now ready to fall whenever Hindenburg gives the word, and it can only lead to victory.

"The Year of Decision."

"The year of decision has dawned," writes von Olberg. "A feeling of foreboding already permeates our enemies, and the cry for aid from Japan and America is constantly heard. Yet the enemy leaders know that the United States cannot even make up for the number of men France and England were obliged to send to Italy's aid, especially as the troops they were sending from America are inexperienced and lack training. We are quite aware that America will do her utmost to assist with money and war material, and will probably send many technical troops and aviators; but we are prepared for every contingency. America cannot possibly do more than she did when ostensibly neutral.

"So we meet the coming year full of confidence. Our position on the western front must improve daily, and an equalization of forces is taking place there, where the enemy has always been numerically superior. In addition, all our munition factories are working for one front, and the whole of our enormous reserves of material will be at once dispatched thither.

"With deep feelings of relief our troops on the west front are beginning to realize that the days of trench warfare are almost at an end. Up and at the enemy at last! Our rear is free, and we have the reserves at our disposal. The great blow can now fall. Where and when? Those questions the enemy leaders are anxiously asking themselves. The reply is, 'Wherever and whenever Hindenburg wishes.' We know that he will choose the time and place that will lead to victory."

The German fleet, too, is to participate in the coming offensive, according to the Tageblatt.

"The German fleet, relieved of anxiety and pressure in its rear," says this newspaper, "can now turn to the west with its full strength. The task of the British fleet, even if it is supported by its allies, will be difficult. We have full faith in the German Navy, which has so often exhibited its will to victory and its capacity to fulfill its duty."

GERMANS CENSOR WAGNER.

Reference to Hungary in "Lohengrin" is Toned Down.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Feb. 5.—A dispatch to The Daily Chronicle from Amsterdam says:

"Those who have heard Wagner's 'Lohengrin' will remember that in the first act King Heinrich sings: 'Herr Gott bewahr' uns vor der Ungarn Wut.' (God protect us from Hungary's wrath.) Though this reference to Hungary has never been seriously objected to by any sensible Hungarian, the Directors of the Wiesbaden opera have now definitely made up their minds, it is reported from that town, that this line 'contains an offense against an allied State.' So King Henry has been instructed to sing in future: 'Herr Gott bewahr' uns vor der Hunnen Wut.' (God protect us from the wrath of the Huns.)

"The Prussian military authorities recently, in the case of an English airman, showed themselves exceedingly touchy regarding the use of the word Hun. How will Wiesbaden's editing of Wagner please them?"

Aids City Employes in War Work.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Feb. 5.—Senator Edward J. Dowling introduced a bill today providing that New York City employes above conscription age who are serving the Federal Government in munition factories or other war industries with the consent of the Board of Estimate shall be entitled to leave of absence without pay for the period of the war, re-employment after peace has been concluded, and allowance for the time spent in war work as if it had been spent in the city's service for pension purposes.

WAR DISAPPOINTMENT IS KEEN IN AUSTRIA

Deadlock in Italy and Shortage of Food Cause New Coolness Toward Berlin.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Feb. 5.—Two aspects of the situation in Austria go far to explain the marked pacific tone of Count Czernin's recent speech, the difficulties of the Austrian army involved in a Winter campaign in the Alps and the hopeless outlook of the Dual Monarchy in the matter of food.

When the Austrians began their sudden offensive last Fall, they were relying on German aid. The German strategists persuaded them that under German leadership, with a stiffening of German storm troops, it would be easy to break through the Italian lines. For a time the plan succeeded, but the splendid rally of the Italians and the prompt Anglo-French aid held up the invaders and the Austrians find their badly clothed and badly fed troops committed to a mountain campaign in the Winter, while their ally is dreaming of new worlds to conquer. Information reaching here is that this has led to some coolness between the Teutonic allies.

The extent of the food shortage in Austria is shown by the necessity of reducing the bread ration by half. This step, taken within five months of the end of the harvest, implies the bitterest suffering. A writer thus pictures Austrian conditions in "New Europe":

"For many months past there have been all night queues for the barest necessities of life, and the medical profession has been loud in its complaints of fatal injury, caused to the health and morale of women and children. Salt, butter, eggs, sugar, &c., have been often unobtainable. The milk supply of Vienna has dropped from 900,000 to 170,000 litres per day. Horseflesh has become a regular article of consumption for the middle classes. The output of beer is only 6 per cent. of the prewar period. Fodder is hard to procure, and there have been dangerous reductions of livestock in consequence.

"As the Neue Freie Presse admitted last November, Vienna has been living from hand to mouth for almost two years, and this applies to other urban districts. Numerous diseases due to bad food or starvation are increasingly prevalent. The rise of mortality is only less alarming than the falling birth rate. Reduced capacity for work caused by underfeeding is openly admitted. Tuberculosis is rampant at the front and in the rear."

Moreover, the food shortage is having important political effects. It is making Austria eager to come to terms with the Ukraine, in the hope thereby of securing wheat from the Russian steppes, and is causing ill-feeling between the Austrians and Hungarians.

There is little doubt that the hopes of the Russian supplies will be disappointed on account of transportation difficulties. But the irritation between the two parts of the dual monarchy is likely to increase. Hungary produces more food than Austria, and the latter thinks that both countries should share equally. The Hungarians would rather have enough to eat than satisfy their neighbor's theories, and awkward disputes have arisen, and are likely to continue.

The Slav nations are also growing more self-assertive, and the Vienna Government has in the midst of its military and economic trials to face the possibility of a breakdown of its political form of government.

GERMANS DISTORTED SPEECH OF CZERNIN

He Did Not Call Belgium a German Possession—Promised Only to Defend Pre-War Status.

LONDON, Feb. 5.—The most important passage in the speech which Count Czernin, the Austro-Hungarian Foreign Minister, delivered before the Reichsrat on Jan. 24, which is now creating a storm of anti-Austrian agitation in Germany and Bulgaria, was cleverly distorted so as to change its meaning in the version which the German Wolff Bureau permitted to go to England and America.

Referring to President Wilson's proposals the Austro-Hungarian Foreign Minister was quoted as saying:

"I think there is no harm in stating that I regard the recent proposals of President Wilson as an appreciable approach to the Austro-Hungarian point of view, and that to some of them Austria-Hungary joyfully could give her approval. But she must first lay down this principle, that in so far as these propositions concern her allies, whether in the case of Germany's possession of Belgium or in the case of Turkey—Austria-Hungary, faithful to her engagements to fight to the end in defense of her allies, will defend the possessions of her allies as she would her own. That is the standpoint of our allies, in regard to which there is perfect reciprocity."

The correct text of the vital part of this section of Count Czernin's speech, as printed in the Vienna newspapers, follows:

"So far as these propositions concern her allies, whether in the case of German possessions, Belgium, or Turkey, Austria-Hungary, faithful to her engagements, will go to the extreme in defense of her allies. She will defend the pre-war possessions of her allies as she would her own."

By removing the comma between "German possessions" and "Belgium" and inserting the word "of," and by dropping the important adjective "pre-war," Count Czernin was made to say that he would defend Germany's possession of Belgium. As a matter of fact, he definitely dissociated Belgium from German possessions and declared that Austria would defend only the pre-war possessions of her allies.

It is this declaration, obviously opposed to the German militarist program and to Bulgaria's avowed war aims, which is causing such a stir in Berlin and Sofia.

ALLEGES WAR APATHY HERE

Cologne Gazette Professes to Prove It from Wilson Letter.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

THE HAGUE, Feb. 5.—The Cologne Gazette, commenting on President Wilson's message to farmers, says that the part of the message on justice and international law is not worth discussing, but his complaint about the interruption of American economic communication with Europe has the fascination of novelty. The paper says that President Wilson has not so far dared to speak on these questions owing to England's blockade, and reminds its readers of the cotton difficulties, remarking that Wilson himself in those days was crying "Buy a bale of cotton" and that he bought a bale and had a suit of clothes made of that material. The paper says that the message shows Wilson in an awkward predicament.

"There could hardly be more satisfactory news from America," it asserts. "We now know indirectly what we failed to learn directly—that the Wilson war does not meet with enthusiasm."

SEE WASTE IN SHIP CONTROL BY BRITAIN

Liverpool Owners Say Government's Policy Diminishes Carrying Power.

A "PARALYZING INFLUENCE"

Restriction of British Supplies is Charged to Curbing of Individual Enterprise.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Feb. 4, (Delayed.)—The report of the Liverpool Steamship Owners' Association, adopted at the annual meeting in Liverpool yesterday, was largely devoted to a statement of the shipowners' position under Government control and criticism of the policy adopted by the Government in its effect on diminishing carrying power and therefore wasting resources and restricting supplies. Referring to the "paralyzing influence of State control over the management of ships," the report says:

"Official intervention has delayed the replacement of ships that have been lost and has made it impossible to get the full carrying power out of those that are left. It has failed to replace the driving power of individual responsibility and individual enterprise." When the Government decided to requisition all British steamships it "did not give one moment's thought to the manner in which the ships were to be managed. * * * The State had no organization, either in this country or abroad, capable of undertaking this management, and therefore the Shipping Controller had to appeal to the shipowners to carry on their own businesses with ships which the Government had gone through the form of seizing."

Discussing the question of the prohibition of less essential imports, the report say:

"The Government has not left to the individual consumers and to the traders who serve their needs freedom to compete for the permitted classes, nor has it left freedom to shipowners to carry the greatest possible volume of such imports.

"What has to be done by means of the carrying power of ships is for the nation to determine; how it is to be done must be left to the shipowners. In the first thirty months of the war the shipowners proved their capacity to maintain under extraordinary difficulties the carrying power of ships at a point which kept the country supplied with its necessities and, indeed, many of its luxuries. During the last twelve months State intervention has led to waste of time and, therefore, to loss of carrying power and of imports. The driving power of individual enterprise which has served the nation so well must be restored and maintained.

"The Admiralty is responsible for the protection of ships, and judges its success inversely by the number of vessels lost; but loss of time, that is, of voyages, and consequently of cargoes carried on those voyages, is almost as disastrous. If under peace conditions 100 ships in a particular trade can make eight round voyages in a year, and if that number be reduced to six, owing to a system of protection adopted, there will be a loss of 200 cargoes, even if every ship is protected on every voyage, and that loss for the time being is as disastrous as the loss of twenty-five ships. Shipping in the hands of the State is the servant of all departments, Commissioners, and committees, and master of none, and waste which has not to be paid for directly in cash is ignored by them, one and all."

A book on how to win the war.

THE AIR-LINE TO LIBERTY

An Outline of the Will of the American People—A Prospectus of What Has Got to Happen.

BY

It makes no difference who I am.

Anybody who cares can find out.

If I could I would take my name off the title page of my book, put it in a locked pocket at the end, where people who have read the book, understood it, believed it, and were going to do something about it, could look my name up if they wanted to.

On this page I do not wish to be known by what I was baptized by, but by what, God helping me, I was baptized for.

I am a voice crying in the wilderness that will not consent to be a voice crying in the wilderness.

I am crying out from the house tops, from the top-story of Times Square, in the middle of the most proud, splendid, empty, lovable, foolish city in the world—a way to win this war.

I am not awed by your Grand Central Station, by the multitude of taxis on Fifth Avenue, or by the Metropolitan Tower beckoning to heaven and inquiring of the sky by night and by day whether this city shall be allowed to live.

All these things shall be as a cloud, as a mist burned away in the morning unless you men . . . you gods . . . you dots in the streets listen, listen now, and listen at last to what my soul is trying to say!

I will speak out. I have outfaced the bragging of stones and steel and glass. I will not be silenced by subways that say one man makes no difference. I will not be roared down or counted out by what you have chosen to call your civilization, nor by the screeches of a thousand munition trains that cannot go, that cannot even unload, nor by nine hundred thousand cannon, nor by dreadnoughts, nor by sneaking, bullying submarines, and let myself be told by all these that a book—the voice of the naked human spirit in this grim, empty mockery of a world we are having now, is too spiritual to count.

All there is to this war is the human spirit.

All this war is for is the human spirit.

It was an idea that started this war, and only an idea and getting people to listen to an idea is going to stop it.

The only two ideas that have been put forward and really expressed by people—by everybody in this war—are shooting and nursing.

I wish to open up an idea which the Red Cross alone—if it would take it up—could win the war with. It could keep on nursing, of course, but the business of picking up wounded men on battlefields and saying how sorry we are, for five hundred dollars apiece, when we can keep them from being wounded for fifty cents apiece, leaves much to be desired.

Let us spend the five hundred dollars apiece to pick the wounded up.

But why not spend the fifty cents apiece not to have them wounded and spend it first?

Major Murphy, the American Red Cross representative in Europe, was telling people the other night that the armies now pounding away on one another are not going to win the war with guns, but with the spirit behind the guns.

All either side is pounding for now is to hold its own until the spirit of the other people breaks.

The way to conquer and outflank the German Army is from behind the lines. The fight from now on is a fight of the spirits of the peoples. Which nation has the swiftest, surest spirit?

The people who win this war are going to win it the way the New Testament would, by being quickest the way Christ would be quickest, by advertising to our enemies, by getting the attention and conquering the understanding and the wills of our enemies and by doing it to our enemies first—and before they can do it to us.

The practical, psychological and military problem of how to get the attention of the German people and get it now—while shooting and nursing—is dealt with in detail in

PACKERS CHARGED WITH WAR FRAUDS

Federal Investigator Alleges Collusive Bidding on Army and Navy Supplies.

OBTAINS SEARCH WARRANT

Heney Opens Vault of Swift & Co. Counsel—New Grand Jury Inquiry Is Predicted.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Ill., Feb. 5.—That the big Chicago packers entered into a conspiracy to defraud the United States Government by means of collusive bidding for army and navy contracts was the sensational charge made today when Federal Judge Landis issued a search warrant empowering Francis J. Heney, counsel for the Federal Trade Commission, to examine records in a vault in the office of Henry Veeder, counsel for Swift & Co.

This charge and others, which were made by Hugh McIsaac, special examiner for the Trade Commission in an affidavit filed in court, indicated that another Federal Grand Jury investigation of the packers was imminent. Mr. Heney tonight declined to discuss possible Grand Jury action, but the warrant issued by Judge Landis, in which was incorporated Mr. McIsaac's affidavit, made the direct charge that Swift & Co. had committed five different felonies, which were violations of the Sherman anti-trust law, the old conspiracy law, and sections of the Food act and the act creating the Federal Trade Commission.

Here are the alleged violations of Federal laws charged against the packing company:

1. That Swift & Co. engaged in a conspiracy with Armour & Co., Morris & Co., Wilson & Co., Inc., Cudahy & Co., and other corporations, individuals, and partnerships to defraud the United States through and by means of collusive bidding upon contracts to let to the lowest bidder to furnish the Federal Government with large quantities of meats, hides, leather, canned goods, and other commodities for the use of the military and naval forces of the United States.
2. That Swift & Co. acquired, stored, and held, for the purpose of limiting the supply to the public and affecting the market price, meats, canned vegetables, canned fruit, canned fish, poultry, cheese, butter, eggs, and oleomargarine.
3. That the packing company wilfully made false entries and statements of fact in certain reports pertaining to the ownership and control of the subsidiary corporations, which were required by the Federal Trade Commission by virtue of the act creating that body.
4. That the packing company wilfully made false entries in its accounts, records, and memoranda of all facts and transactions appertaining to its business.
5. That the company has failed to make full, true, and correct entries in its books concerning its actual business.

Mr. Heney, Mr. McIsaac, and a corps of investigators and Deputy United States Marshals spent the afternoon examining the papers in a vault in Mr. Veeder's office. After they had accumulated a suitcase full of papers, which Mr. Heney declared substantiated his contentions, further examination was halted until tomorrow on orders from Judge Landis. The Judge issued a stay over on the application of John J. Healy, representing Mr. Veeder.

Judge Landis ordered the suitcase of papers already seized turned over to United States Marshal Bradley and further examination of the papers in the vault stopped until he heard arguments tomorrow morning on the application of Mr. Veeder's lawyer.

Attorney Healy in making his application for a stay order declared that the search warrant had been issued on the statement of Mr. McIsaac, and no proof of the charges which he made was included in the warrant. He asserted also that Mr. Heney had offered a receipt for the suitcase of records which was not in accordance with the statute. The receipt simply enumerated that a certain number of sheets had been taken from certain files, but did not describe them, which Mr. Healy asserted was illegal. He protested that papers in Mr. Veeder's office were privileged matter between lawyer and client.

"There is evidence of felonies being committed, and the documents we seek are necessary to us," District Attorney Clyne told the Court. "To stay the search warrant might mean that we would lose valuable rights, and especially if we should lose possession of these papers."

"If Mr. Veeder has transgressed the Federal statutes he cannot claim privilege," declared Assistant District Attorney Fleming. "The only limitation is, in the event Mr. Veeder be indicted, he could come in and ask for permission to examine these papers in preparing his defense."

Thousands of Papers.

Mr. Heney would not say just how many papers were taken from the vault. It is known, however, that they run into the thousands. Documents were taken from fifteen different files, and in many instances from 200 to 300 sheets were taken from a single file.

Judge Landis issued the search warrant shortly before noon, and at 12:01 o'clock Mr. Heney and his force of examiners, accompanied by Deputy United States Marshals, entered Mr. Veeder's office. Mr. Veeder protested against the men's entering the vault, which has been the subject of much controversy for more than a week.

The main vault in Mr. Veeder's office would make a good-sized office in itself. It is filled with filing cases. Mr. Heney and his aids threw off their coats and began to look through the files. Mr. Heney discovered another steel door in a corner leading apparently into another vault. He ordered Mr. Veeder to open that, but the latter declined.

"I have full power to use dynamite or open that door in any way I deem necessary," said Mr. Heney.

But the door was still locked tonight. Mr. Heney said he did not expect trouble in getting it open when he got ready to pry into its contents.

Mr. Veeder declared that he was willing to turn over any papers in his possession which belonged to Swift & Co., but he drew the line at an unrestricted use of his personal papers, even though they related to the business of the packers, on the ground that they were privileged matter between a lawyer and client.

"The search warrant issued by Judge Landis is based upon the theory that the papers in my vault belong to Swift & Co. and charge that such papers were used by Swift & Co. in committing felonies," said Mr. Veeder.

"The warrant did not set up facts but simply conclusions. I protested against the search and seizure of my files under this warrant on the ground that the warrant was issued without probable cause and that the search and seizure being conducted were in violation of my constitutional rights.

"Last night I made a written offer to Mr. Heney to submit for his inspection all papers belonging to Swift & Co which are in my custody. The only reply Mr. Heney has made to my offer has been this search and seizure."

INQUIRY ON WAR PAYMENTS.

Senate Asks About Allowances Paid to Soldiers' Families.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 4.—A resolution asking the Secretary of the Treasury to advise the Senate regarding the allowances that have been paid to soldiers' families during the last three months was adopted today by the Senate.

Senator Hitchcock in introducing the resolution said he had heard of widespread complaint in the West that many families had not been paid.

GREAT ACTIVITY ON AMERICAN FRONT

region being that in which the American forces have taken over a part of the front,] according to the afternoon report from General Headquarters.

Artillery duels are reported on the Flanders and Arras fronts, and the capture of thirty-three prisoners in a raid on French trenches near Beaucourt, on the front of the German Crown Prince's army.

The text of the report follows:

Army of Crown Prince Rupprecht.—There were artillery duels from the coast to the Lys which increased considerably in the evening on the Bösinghe-Staden Railway, where an English attack was repulsed, and between Passchendaele and Becelaere. South of the Lys, on the La Bassée Canal and on the Scarpe the firing intensity was revived intermittently. Some English prisoners were taken in successful raids south of Armentières and in the neighborhood of Graincourt.

Army of the German Crown Prince.—South of Beaucourt, our Baden storming troops penetrated far into the French positions and inflicted heavy losses and returned to their lines with thirty-three prisoners and several machine guns.

Army of Duke Albrecht.—On the heights of the Meuse north and south of St. Mihiel, the fighting activity was revived this afternoon. [Feb. 4.]

PARIS, Feb. 5.—A detachment of German troops last night attacked the French positions on the Chemin-des-Dames, on the Aisne front. The official statement issued this afternoon by the War Office says the attack was repulsed.

Thirteen German airplanes were brought down on Sunday. The French took the offensive, and, flying far over the German lines, engaged in unusually heavy fighting.

The text of the afternoon statement follows:

Spirited artillery fighting occurred at various points north of the Chemin des Dames. A German detachment was repulsed in this region before being able to reach the French lines. Elsewhere the night passed in quiet.

Taking advantage of the fine weather, French pursuit aviators on Sunday carried out successful enterprises. Nothing less han battles in the air were fought by the French pilots against German squadrons far over the German lines. Eight enemy machines were brought down in these combats. Five others fell, badly damaged, and probably were destroyed.

The War Office announcement tonight says:

In the region of Corbeny we repulsed an enemy attempt against our small posts and inflicted losses on the assailants. In the Argonne, at La Fille Mort, we carried out a raid and brought back prisoners.

The artillery action was quite spirited on the right bank of the Meuse.

LONDON, Feb. 5.—Great activity on the part of German artillery in the Cambrai region and about Lens and Ypres is reported in tonight's communication from the War Office, which says:

Last night the enemy raided one of our posts in the neighborhood of the Bapaume-Cambrai Road. One of our men is missing.

During the latter part of the night and early this morning the hostile artillery developed great activity south of Marcoing and north of the Bapaume-Cambrai Road. Increased activity also was shown by the enemy north of Lens and northeast of Ypres.

"We carried out successful raids last night south of Fleurbaix (southwest of Armentières) and in the neighborhood of the Ypres-Staden Railway," says this afternoon's official report of the War Office. "Many Germans were killed, and prisoners and a machine gun were captured by us."

An Associated Press dispatch from the headquarters of the American Army in France yesterday announced that the sector occupied by American troops was "northwest of Toul." This locates the part of the line on which Pershing's troops are engaged as the southeast side of the St. Mihiel salient.

The authorized announcement that Americans have taken over a sector northwest of Toul indicates that they are holding a part of the line on the eastern side of the St. Mihiel salient.

VISIT TO OUR TRENCHES HEARTENS AMUNDSEN

Norwegian Explorer Sees in Them the Vanguard of an 'Invincible Army.'

PARIS, Feb. 5, (Associated Press.)—"The qualities that most impressed me in the American troops at the front," said Captain Roald Amundsen, the Norwegian explorer today, "are their cheerfulness, confidence, and certainty of being able to do their part in beating the Germans."

Captain Amundsen is the first civilian foreigner to see the American frontline trenches. He made the visit as the guest of the American Government. He is about to start for the United States to deliver addresses on the war as it appears to a citizen of a neutral country, although he himself is not neutral. Recently Captain Amundsen returned his German decorations as a protest against the German murder of Norwegian sailors in the North Sea.

"It is finely stimulating to live for a couple of days in that atmosphere of hope, conscious strength, and action," said he. "I saw there, on that piece of line somewhere in France, the present hitting power, the result of those mighty preparations making in America. It was a tonic to a friend of America and of the Allies to feel that the power of this hitting instrument will grow month by month with almost the impulse and regularity of a natural law into a great, seasoned, invincible army.

"I felt in those shell-swept trenches—for they are shelled every day—that there the mighty preparations of America were beginning to be realized, and that the end would be the overthrow of autocracy in Europe and safety for the world."

Captain Amundsen reached the foremost trench in a thick fog and stood upon its edge and peered into the fog toward the German trenches.

"Yes," he said, "there was plenty of mud and water at the front, but the dugouts further back were dry. The furnishings were the barest elementary things, but enough for rude comfort. There was much lively talk back there, singing, whistling, and laughing."

MAY SEND AMERICANS TO FLANDERS FRONT

Supreme War Council Considering a Proposal to Train 150,000 There.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 5.—In view of the difficulty in finding ships to put American fighting power in France, General Bliss, representing the United States at the military sessions of the Supreme War Council, is considering with British officials the advisability of starting a flow of American battalions through the British training system to front-line trenches in Flanders. This project, it was learned today, has been talked over in various forms, one of the concrete proposals being that 150 battalions (about 150,000 men) be assigned for such training.

Congestion at the American debarkation ports in France lies back of the suggestion. By diverting certain units to British ports, passing them through the British system, and finally transferring them to General Pershing's army, it has been urged that a considerable body of men could be trained and put on the firing line who otherwise could not be sent forward for months.

The suggestion came from British officials through General Pershing and is a development of the proposal made at the time of the first meeting of the War Council that American troops might be sent to England for training, releasing British forces there for front line duty. The object sought is to hasten the expansion of the American army in France. By the use of British shipping, training camps and supply lines it has been urged that General Pershing's force could be supplemented without a proportionate increase in the demand on shipping.

There has been a suggestion recently that a separate American expeditionary force, co-operating with the British under a separate commander and distinct from General Pershing's army, might offer a solution to some of the obstacles. There has been nothing available thus far to indicate that this plan is about to be adopted.

Secretary Baker refused today to discuss any of the questions involved in the shipping situation. When asked specifically as to the proposal to train additional American forces in Flanders he said:

"I cannot discuss the movement or projected movement of troops either for training or for combat in France."

GEN. PERSHING REPORTS 5 DEATHS IN SERVICE

WAGNER MAY LOSE ALL SHIPS

Fate of Entire American Transatlantic Fleet Involved in Prize Ruling

WASHINGTON, Feb. 5.—Condemnation as prizes by Great Britain of the steamers Kankakee, Hocking, and Genesee of the American Transatlantic Company, seized in 1915, may affect the ownership of seven steamers of the same fleet now under requisition by the United States. The company was organized by Richard D. Wagner.

The prize court in England has declared that the ships belong to an enemy fleet. If the Privy Council sustains that position it will have a direct bearing upon the attitude taken by the United States.

The seven ships found in American waters more than a year ago have been operated since then under the terms of requisitioned ships and legal phase of the case was being discussed.

Adverse decision by the Privy Council in all probability would lead to the seizure of the ships by the United States.

AMERICA GROPING, SAYS WADSWORTH

War Machinery Has Broken Down Under Inadequate System, Senator Asserts.

BLAMES NO INDIVIDUAL

Declares the President's Task Is Superhuman and That Civilization Is at Stake.

DISCLAIMS ANY PARTY AIM

Insists War Cabinet and Munitions Chief Are Necessary to Centralize and Co-ordinate Efforts.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 5.—Asserting that President Wilson lacked authority to put an effective, co-ordinated war machine into operation, Senator Wadsworth of New York, Republican, in the Senate today, urged the passage of the War Cabinet and Munitions measures. While conceding that the Administration had achieved much in raising an army, the New York Senator insisted that there were gravely weak spots in the war machinery.

Senator Wadsworth argued that this was an industrial war and that the country's industries must be speeded up to the top notch if America was to win. This, he said, had not been done and he charged also that confusion reigned in scattering authority over ten or more government departments.

"The whole trouble with the way we are running this war is the lack of cohesive system," declared Senator Wadsworth. "All the great purchasing agencies of the Government ought to be under one head. We have blundered along up to now, but we cannot afford to keep it up. The great American giant has been groping and stumbling."

Senator Wadsworth did not go into exhaustive detail, as did Senator Hitchcock yesterday, to back up his allegation that the War Department had failed to function adequately.

After Senator Wadsworth had finished his speech, Senator Thomas of Colorado, an Administration supporter, announced that he would talk upon the War Cabinet and Munitions bills on Thursday. He will oppose their passage. In the meantime, the scene of war debate will shift tomorrow to the Senate Military Affairs Committee, when Secretary Baker will be cross-examined. Members of the committee will interrogate the Secretary of War, for one thing, upon the war program.

In his speech today Senator Wadsworth took issue with Secretary Baker's statement that a definite war plan actually existed.

Sees No Evidence of Plan.

"So far as I can see, it has been rather a lack of plan," commented the Senator. "I admit the War Department has done some things most creditably. The selective draft law was worked out in a singularly successful way.

"But when we speak of a war plan we mean something cohesive—something that comprehends cutting routine and that co-ordinates vast undertakings. And such a plan does not exist."

Senator Wadsworth said that America must build more ships, send more men abroad, and develop the product of her mines, transportation, and manufacturing facilities. Unless this was done on a tremendous scale, with all the huge resources of the country behind it, America's effort, de declared, would be in vain.

"The only way to beat Germany is by putting against it a force so superior in numbers, esprit, morale, artillery, and all equipments of war as to eventually crush her," said Senator Wadsworth. "We have a long road to travel before we win this war, and we cannot do it with scattered authority."

The New York Senator spoke of the recent reorganization of the Purchasing Bureau of the War Department. That, he said, was a commendable step, but it did not go far enough. He wanted the army, navy, shipping, and allied purchasing bureaus under one general head, with authority to act decisively. That, Senator Wadsworth argued, would at once bring the scattered departments together and unite the vast purchasing and industrial activities under one control.

Senator Wadsworth spoke of a desire expressed by President Wilson recently that Congress repeal "some of the restrictive legislation," so that the War Department machinery might not be tied down.

"I hope the Administration will inform us what law stands in the way of effective operation of the War Department," said Senator Wadsworth. "If there is any law that hampers the Administration we ought to know about it."

Congress, Senator Wadsworth said, was anxious to help, not hinder, the Administration, and he thought that, far from there being restrictive legislation, there was not power enough to make for co-ordinated effort.

Answers Williams's Charge.

Replying to Senator John Sharp Williams's characterization of the War Cabinet and Munitions bills as "stupid," Senator Wadsworth said they had been advocated by such men as Daniel Willard, head of the War Industries Board; Bernard N. Baruch, another member of the board; Walter S. Gifford, Director of the Council of National Defense; Howard Coffin, head of the Aircraft Production Board, and Waddill Catchings of the War Committee of the United States Chamber of Commerce.

"These are not stupid men," said Senator Wadsworth. "Their opinion is based upon sound judgment."

Senator Wadsworth urged that Great Britain, France, and Canada had been obliged to resort to the War Munitions Board idea so as to get more effective co-ordination of war industries. Criticism had been made, he said, that the War Cabinet and Munitions bills were aimed at depriving the President of power. This was contrary to the fact, the Senator insisted, as the President would have full power to appoint whom he wanted and would be in authority over both the Cabinet and the contemplated Directorate of Munitions.

"It would be unthinkable to take any power away from the President," declared the Senator. "We seek to give him more power."

Senator Wadsworth spoke of the "hopeless jam of cargoes on the piers as evidence that something was wrong with the system now in vogue.

"The war machinery has broken down in the great problem of shipments, of transportation," said Senator Wadsworth. "We cannot afford to have another breakdown."

The New York Senator declared the shutdown of factories, under the recent Garfield order, was plain evidence that the war system had broken down. The country, he said, could not afford any further crippling of its industries.

Sees Civilization at Stake.

Senator Wadsworth opened his speech with an allusion to the gravity of the crisis throughout the world.

"We are living in grave times, Senators," he began. "History is being written in gigantic characters, and events are transpiring of such tremendous importance and such significance as to stagger, I may say, even the imaginations of men. I doubt very much whether any one man can correctly analyze what is going on in the world today or prophesy with any great degree of accuracy what its outcome will be.

"Suffice it to say that we Senators realize that the future of civilization is at stake; that the outcome of the tremendous struggle now going on will affect the peoples of the world and the nations and their Governments without any doubt for centuries to come. We realize, I am sure also, that the outcome of this great contest must necessarily have a most profound effect upon the future of this great Republic.

"Questions are presented before us which cannot be trifled with. There is no room or ground for levity. This is no time or place for any man to indulge in personalities or to give way to his prejudices, if he may have some of them. I take it that this is a time in the history of our country when we should approach the discussion of these topics in the broadest possible way and the fairest possible spirit, and, if I may be permitted to do so, let me venture the hope that, if such discussions take place in this chamber, personalities be omitted and that Senators here forget the words 'Republican' or 'Democratic' and think only of our country."

Senator Wadsworth called America's condition of unpreparedness when the European war broke out as "pathetic in the extreme, with a mere handful of men for an army, for the most part illy equipped and organized along obsolete lines."

Defects in Supply System.

The Senator outlined, in a general way, the investigation of the Military Affairs Committee into the activities of the Quartermaster's Department and the Ordnance Department, saying that "grave difference of opinion exists upon some of the points brought out."

"Those of us who listened to all the testimony became deeply impressed with the conviction that purchase and production and initial distribution of the vast amount of supplies must be essentially an industrial operation and that military men, no matter how distinguished and capable in their profession, are, with very rare exceptions, inexperienced in such matters, and therefore incapable of bringing about the best results in the shortest possible time," said he.

"We found also that, in addition to this fundamental handicap, these supply bureaus were further handicapped, and very seriously, by a condition which springs from years of routine operation, regulated and checked, down to the last crossing of a 't' and dotting of an 'i,' which condition is popularly described as due to 'red tape.' The military channels through which a matter must proceed are so long and so tortuous, and so numerous and so minute are the formalities and departmental customs which must be followed, that exceedingly grave delays have occurred. Some of the incidents might be regarded as uproariously funny were the situation less serious. In a word, we found the machinery slow and creaking, and in some important instances the engine 'stalled.'"

Manufacturers in Dark.

He referred to evidence before the committee of representatives of great manufacturing plants that had received orders from the supply bureaus for weapons and other equipment.

"Their testimony, I believe, broadened our view of the situation and painted more vividly the great picture of industrial effort," he said, "and from it we gathered the deep impression that there was lack of comprehension of the manufacturers' problems on the part of official Washington; lack of co-ordination; an inability to reach prompt decisions.

"In one instance a contract had been placed for trains of motor trucks, a comparatively simple article to manufacture. The order was given, the contract was made for 2,500 of them. The manufacturer went home and started work on them. His plant was equipped for it. Within the following six weeks thirty-six changes were made by telegraph or mail in the specifications of so simple a thing as the frame of a motor truck; and the manufacturer, as I remember, testified that those changes in specifications set him back at least those six weeks, and cost the concern $100,000."

Dwelling upon the work of getting America ready after her entry in the war, Senator Wadsworth said:

"It is apparent that these last months might be properly defined as the formative period of our efforts. This great American giant has been stumbling and groping, exerting his tremendous strength, without always knowing what he was doing or where he was going. Perforce, we have had to experiment, and we have had to endure endless conferences and references from one department to another, from one official to another. We have known some of the things we have wanted to do, and we have tried to do them. We have forgotten some of the things equally important that we ought to have done, and it has been nobody's business to think of them.

"We have had in Washington a large number of able advisers; many of them have thought of the things which have not yet been done, but none of them have been clothed with power to do them, and few of them have been able to find an agency of the Government where a decision could be had and the work started.

"I realize that some may contend that the President of the United States, the Commander in Chief of the Army and the Navy, the leader of the nation in this war, can make all these decisions, and that there is, therefore, no need for any additional element in our war-time machinery. My contention is that, be he ever so able, no President, no human being, can perform such a task. It is utterly impossible for one man to examine into all these intricate questions. The days and the nights are not long enough to permit of his doing such a thing. He carries, even in time of peace, a terrific burden, and to ask him to assume the task of studying and planning these tremendous, intricate, industrial, social, economic, and military undertakings is to ask the impossible.

"In my judgment the only way to beat the German army is to put against it a force so superior not only in numbers, esprit, and morale, but in artillery and all the equipments of war as to eventually crush it, and it is a long, hard road for us to travel before we reach that stage. We can do it, but we must have the machinery here at home for doing it."

Under Secretary Baker's reorganization, Mr. Wadsworth explained, there are now five supply bureaus, all under Colonel Pierce, who was outranked by five Major Generals commanding the various bureaus.

"The Secretary of War said they could easily avoid that handicap of rank by making Colonel Pierce a Major General forthwith," said the Senator. "We have now been informed that Edward R. Stettinius has been appointed in some capacity to assist in the co-ordination of the purchasing of the War Department. It is difficult to understand just where he comes in. Probably his authority is of an advisory nature. Under the law and under military procedure he cannot have any authority except advisory, and it is possible, and indeed probable, that he is the assistant of Colonel Pierce. That brings up the question how an individual from civil life, an expert in his business, can help out the military operations of supply without having authority definite and absolute.

Concedes President's Responsibility.

"As every one knows, at the head of the entire organization stands the President of the United States, under the Constitution and laws our Commander in Chief. No one in his senses would propose that any other office be created to take away from the President the power that the Constitution confides in him. It cannot be done. It is unthinkable."

Senator Wadsworth tolled off a long list of the various governmental agencies that participate in the supply and purchase for the army, navy, shipping, and the allies.

"It must be apparent to every sensible man that it is utterly impossible to get any teamwork out of this conglomeration of ambitious and scattered agencies, official and unofficial, unless we create some agency that shall guide and control them all in those matters in which teamwork is essential for the accomplishment of great results," he said.

Explaining the system of purchases as worked out under the Ministry of Munitions in Great Britain, Senator Wadsworth said:

"They do not purchase, as I understand, everything used in the army and navy; they purchase the things which they can most advantageously purchase under a centralized authority, and they follow those purchases down to the last dotting of an i and the crossing of a t. I am informed that in London they have great buildings filled with samples of things purchased by the British Minister of Munitions; everything that is purchased has a sample or model deposited in that museum. The manufacturers can go to that museum and see before their eyes just what the Government wants. They can copy it; they can discuss it with the officer in charge whether or not they can make that article."

Commenting on what had happened in this country because of "lack of centralized power and business organization," the Senator spoke of the conflicting activities of the War Department, the navy, the Shipping Board, and the Aircraft Board. All of these departments, he said, had made huge purchases and tried to get them shipped over the country.

"Purchasing officers of these departments and bureaus," he said, "have decreed priority in shipment for these goods in thousands and thousands of instances—no one of these officials having any regard for what the other officials were doing along the same line," he said. "In the eastern part of the country it has actually occurred that the goods shipped under Government priority orders vastly exceeded in amount the goods shipped for normal purposes without such orders. On one railroad line in the Eastern district, for one month, 86 per cent. of all the freight carried was labeled with the Government blue-tag priority order. Shipments have been criss-crossed across the country on Government blue-tag orders without the slightest regard for convenience, or even for necessity. Each official, of course, was doing his best, but necessarily was running blind. What was the result? A hopeless jam and congestion of our railway facilities.

"Something has been said about the tonnage now piled up at our Atlantic coast docks. The Senator from Nebraska, (Mr. Hitchcock,) stated that 2,000,000 tons was piled up. The testimony that has come to me through most authoritative channels is that of the aggregate tonnage mentioned by the Senator 1,300,000 tons belongs to France and Italy alone, and every Senator on this floor knows how France and Italy want that tonnage.

"The channel of supply for Italy has been blocked to that extent, and she cannot fight without supplies. Why is the channel blocked? Because no one planned to keep it open. There is nobody here in Washington, as I see it, charged with the duty and the authority to plan.

Thinks Only System to Blame.

"Is any one man or any one department of the Government to blame? Not at all. The blame rests with our failure to systematize the effort. We have manufactured and shipped millions of tons of goods to the seaboard, helter-skelter, pell-mell, with little or no thought as to how we could find the dockage or the ships to transport them across the ocean. Is it strange that the railway transportation system has broken down?"

Senator Wadworth accused the Administration of having muddled the coal situation. He referred to the agreement of coal producers early last Summer to accept $3 a ton at the mines for coal after a conference with Government officials.

"This would have permitted all of the mines in the country to operate, some with large profits, others with small profits," said the Senator. "The matter seemed to have been settled, and the public rejoiced at the reduction from $5 or $6 a ton down to $3 a ton. Within a few hours, within a day or two, other departments of the Government, showing the lack of co-ordination, speaking through their administrative heads, stepped in and announced that that price would not do, that it was oppressive, excessive and extortionate, and the whole agreement was cast to the winds. Incidentally, the whole coal trade was thrown into confusion. No operator could tell what the Government intended to do with him. Thousands of consumers of coal made up their minds that they were going to get coal cheaper than upon the basis of $3 a ton at the mine, and those thousands of consumers postponed buying their Winter's coal. That is human nature."

Aircraft Plants Closed.

Senator Wadsworth attributed the Garfield order closing down factories as due to "lack of system and planning ahead." The Aircraft Production Board, he said, had no forewarning that the order was coming, and its activities were suddenly halted.

"Let us just picture to ourselves a great department of the Government like the Aircraft Board working with the Signal Corps of the army and the navy on this tremendous aviation program, involving the operation of some 450 manufacturing establishments," he went on. "Without the slightest notice to that department, another department of the Government issues an order that closes all the establishments. Can we endure such a system? Can it be possible that any one will deny hat it is essentially a faulty system that permits such a thing to occur? That order was issued without the slightest notice to the gentlemen who are purchasing goods for our allies in this country, and several of the factories manufacturing goods for Great Britain and our other allies were closed down. They had no notice in advance."

The Senator did not care, he said, whether the proposed new agency to centralize power was called the Munitions Directorate or a War Cabinet, nor did he insist that it be created through act of Congress.

"If it can be done without the passage of a bill well and good," he said. "I do not care so much how many men are placed on it. I do not care how they are defined in the executive order that places them on it, how they may be defined and described in the bill establishing such a board. My only plea is that something of that sort be done and done soon."

ed, and I am glad to say a very considerable development in this regard is now taking place. Terminal facilities, including warehouses, railway tracks and the like, are seriously needed. Men have been doing the best they can, and considerable development has occurred, but the facilities still are grossly inadequate, even for existing needs.

"I want to repeat with emphasis. We might as well stop now and decide on one or two things that have got to be done. This port is not our port at all. We are permitted to use it by the French Government. We should make it a condition precedent to sending another ship to France that that port be turned over to us, and what I say reflects the settled conviction of the men upon whose shoulders rests the responsibility of making this war a success in the field."

"This is very important, indeed, and I should like to know whether the United States is at all responsible for the congestion prevailing at the French port," said Mr. Moore of Pennsylvania.

"No, I think they have done the best they could with a system that is wrong," replied Mr. Miller. "It is not half our fault. General Pershing has tried man after man, trying to clear up and get these supplies moving, and as man after man has tried he has been removed. General Pershing gives a man one chance, and if he does not succeed, out he goes. And that is the way it ought to be. But these men were up against conditions beyond their control, and the greatest transportation expert in the world could not bring order out of chaos. I could give the gentleman's name. He is the most skilled transportation expert this country has provided, with high rank in the army. He went over on the same boat that I did to take care of the transportation inland when the time arrived that he was needed. He was not quite needed at the time on the inland transportation and he stopped at this port. Having nothing to do he spent his time voluntarily working night and day trying to bring order out of the place, and when I saw him at the end of the month he said: 'My God, it is hopeless unless the Americans are in full and absolute control of this port and all the facilities there.'

"Certain transports now operating across the Atlantic are under control of the army and operating strictly under the War Department. Others, and a greater number, of transports are being operated by the navy. The Shipping Board, in addition, is operating some merchant ships and desires to operate all the transport ships.

"Now, let us just face the truth. The reason the desire is made that the Shipping Board shall operate all these ships is that it will necessitate the taking of the American sailors that are working for $30 a month and put in their places other sailors that will be getting $60 to $125 a month. Now, you and I might possibly be willing to go the length necessary to accomplish that if we are helping American citizens. I was on the high seas a year ago, on two ships under the American flag, and I went through those ships from time to time, and there was not an American citizen in the entire crew. On this trip, which I took lately across the water, I went on one kind of a transport and I came back on another. The one going over had a crew that had been picked up in New York, the best they could do, but I could not find an American citizen in the outfit below the officers. And they are getting fabulous sums. They were West Indians and Portuguese and South Americans, a rag-tag from everywhere under the sun."

END STRIKE, MAYOR ADVISES DEALERS

Urges Them to Try Out the New Scale of Newspaper Prices.

MANY DEALERS DOING SO

Business Is Resumed at Hundreds of Stands and Police Protection Is Ordered.

Mayor Hylan yesterday advised the striking newsdealers of New York City to resume the sale and distribution of newspapers, at least for a period of time sufficient to permit a thorough tryout of the new scale of prices. The following statement was issued by the Mayor after a conference yesterday with a committee of newsdealers and their attorney:

> At a conference sought by a committee of newsdealers and its counsel, Morris Hillquit, with Mayor Hylan, the Mayor, after listening to their statements and suggestions, advised them that he thought it was for their best interests to resume the selling of the newspapers for the general convenience of the public, and under the return privilege for the sixty days offered by the publishers, in order that both the newsdealers generally and the public, and the publishers, too, would learn how the new system would operate; and, at the end of that time the newsdealers, or any of them, could state their grievances, if any.

None of the parties who attended the conference would discuss the matter, but it is understood that the Mayor refused flatly a request for arbitration made by Mr. Hillquit. The latter urged upon the Mayor, it was said, that no action should be taken regarding the revocation of licenses without a thorough consideration of the merits of the case nor without giving the dealers time to prepare their side of the case. This the Mayor promised.

Irwin I. Rackoff, associated with Mr. Hillquit as attorney for the strikers, said yesterday that in spite of all the newspapers and the Mayor could do, the strikers were going to "fight to the end." Mr. Rackoff insisted that the dealers would be content with only full and complete submission by the publishers to their demands that the cost of papers to them be lowered from $1.40 a hundred to $1.20.

In a communication sent by the publishers to Mayor Hylan yesterday they said:

> The publishers gave careful consideration to the rights of all concerned when the unavoidable advance to 2 cents was made. In making a price of $1.40 to newsdealers the publishers gave them a 50 per cent. increase in profit, and in allowing full returns until such time as dealers could regulate their orders the publishers felt that they had protected the dealers to the fullest extent. Hundreds of dealers have been selling papers and are perfectly satisfied with the publishers' arrangements. Many more, now that they fully understand the situation, are resuming business. In a few days the facilities for distribution will be normal.
> The publishers are willing to bear all loss from unsold papers for sixty days in order to give the new price basis a fair trial. As the newsdealers are guaranteed 50 per cent. increase in profit upon every daily paper sold, morning and evening, and are also guaranteed against loss, the newsdealers have everything to gain. After trial, the publishers and the newsdealers will know from actual experience how the new rate works. They will then have facts instead of fears or theories upon which to base future action. If the sixty days' trial reveals any conditions that should be corrected the publishers will endeavor to remedy them.

Papers More Plentifully on Sale.

The situation throughout the city in regard to the sale of newspapers improved still more yesterday, so that nowhere in the business districts did there seem to be any lack of papers. In the residence districts, hundreds of dealers announced their intention of abandoning the strike and beginning again the distribution of papers, no matter what action the newsdealers' organization took. For the protection of such men from any disorder that their action might give rise to, Police Commissioner Enright, last night, issued the following order to all police Captains and Inspectors in the city:

> Information has been received that a large number of news stand dealers who were on strike are about to open their stands. Give same special attention, and see that they are not interfered with. Awaiting further orders, you will keep two squads in reserve until such time as this strike is in a more settled condition. Notify all news stand dealers in your precinct that in case of any evidence of trouble they shall call up the precinct police station at once.

Returns at the newspaper offices last night showed that more than 600 strikers in all throughout the city have determined to reopen their stands. Of this number there are about 300 in Manhattan, 100 in the Bronx, 150 in Brooklyn, and 62 on Staten Island. It was announced last night that Hoboken dealers also had decided to begin selling papers again.

Where the strike still continues, independent dealers who have refused to be intimidated by threats of the strikers and have continued selling papers are reaping a veritable harvest. The sight of these independents selling papers to well-known customers has been one of the greatest incentives to the strikers to go back in the business. Two men reopened their stands in City Hall Park yesterday, and all along Broadway well-known "newsies" are again distributing New York's morning and evening newspapers.

"I never thought there was such a difference between one paper and another," said a former striker yesterday, as he busily sold evening papers with a happier face than he had worn since the strike started. "I have been right here in the business for several years, and I got so I could tell from a man's face just what paper he was going to buy. Well, I started to try and sell some of the papers that have met our demands. Honestly, it broke me up to have a man say 'no' when I offered one paper for another. I couldn't get any life into my work, either getting about a hundred turndowns for every sale I made, and, believe me, I am glad to be a 'regular' again." The young man turned to a customer and with an unerring eye picked a paper from the bundle on the stand. "Just saving it for you, sir," he said. "I tried to sell that man every Brooklyn paper that was ever printed last week," he said, "and there was nothing doing. See him take that paper from me just now as if he didn't know what I was handing him. Can you beat it."

Nine New Stations Opened.

The United Newspaper Delivery Company announced last night that seven more stations had been opened in Manhattan and two in Brooklyn yesterday, which, with those opened Monday, makes a total of seventeen stands the new company is now operating in the city. More stations will be opened from day to day, according to the company's plans.

There was little disorder in the city due to the strike yesterday. Independent newsdealers made a few complaints that strikers were raiding their stands and stealing their papers. Morris Goldman of 249 Linden Street, Brooklyn, a newsboy, was arrested last night by Patrolman Cernovski of the East Twenty-second Street Station on a charge of petty larceny made by Anthony Carfagno of 247 West 145th Street. Carfagno said that while he was selling papers at the entrance of the subway at Fourteenth Street and Union Square Goldman grabbed about 200 of his papers piled on the sidewalk and tore them up. Goldman was later discharged by Magistrate Boyle in the Men's Night Court, who warned him not to participate in any more strike activity.

THE TIMES will continue its apartment house delivery until conditions are settled so that every person who wants a paper can be assured of receiving it. Twenty-five automobiles are used in this work, and more than 2,000 apartment houses are visited. An application to the superintendent by a tenant in an apartment house in any section of the city will result in the delivery of THE TIMES to that place.

THE TIMES may be bought at the following news stands, operated by the United Newspaper Delivery Company: Manhattan and Bronx, 33½ Greenwich Avenue, (near Eighth Street;) 408 Sixth Avenue, (near Twenty-fifth Street;) 362 Ninth Avenue, (near Thirty-first Street;) northwest corner of 156th Street and Broadway, 585 West 181st Street, (corner of St. Nicholas Avenue;) 3,877 Tenth Avenue, (near 207th Street;) 130B East Twenty-eighth Street, (near Lexington Avenue;) 730 Lexington Avenue, (near Fifty-ninth Street;) 1,165 Madison Avenue, (near Eighty-sixth Street;) 182 East 116th Street, (near Third Avenue;) 402 Fordham Road, (corner of Webster Avenue.) Brooklyn: 341 Nostrand Avenue, (near Gates Avenue;) 1,500 Kings Highway, near Brighton elevated station;) 1,007½ Flatbush Avenue, (near Tilden Avenue;) 12 Belvidere Street, (near Broadway;) 7,003 Third Avenue, (near Seventieth Street,) and Myrtle Avenue and Stephens Street. THE TIMES may also be obtained at all hotels, subway and elevated news stands and at the branch offices of other New York newspapers.

ORDER RESTAURANTS TO SERVE LESS BREAD

Hoover Issues New Ruling Limiting Ration at Each Meal to Two Ounces.

ENGLAND IS ON THAT BASIS

Hotels Also Are Warned to See That Meatless and Wheatless Days Are Observed.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 5.—A two-ounce bread ration was ordered by the Food Administration today for patrons of hotels, restaurants, and dining cars. This allowance is about the same as that now observed in England.

Telegrams went out today to the Food Administration's hotel representatives in every State designating the new ration. Not more than two ounces of wheat bread may be served to any one at any one meal except when rolls or bread made from corn, oatmeal, or bran are served, and when only one kind other than wheat bread is ordered a portion may consist of four ounces. Rolls may not weight more than one ounce each.

Public eating places are licensed under the new bread regulations and the bread artion rule is issued under this authority. Hotel representatives have been instructed to see that immediate observance is given in hotels for Monday and Wednesday as wheatless days, Tuesdays as a meatless day, Saturday as a porkless day, and that there is one wheatless and one meatless meal every day.

Amendments and additions to the regulations governing the importation, storage, and distribution of food commodities and feeding stuffs were issued in pamphlet form tonight by the Food Administration. The new rulings apply to all licensees except salt-water fishermen whose business does not extend beyond primary consignment and millers of wheat and rye with plants having a daily capacity of less than seventy-five barrels.

The amendments and additions became effective Jan. 28 except those governing manufacturers and distributers of feeding stuffs, which will be in force Feb. 15. The purpose is to prevent hoarding and speculation.

Operators of more than 600 American steamships have agreed to adopt the wheat and meat saving menus proposed by the Food Administration for ships plying in the Atlantic and the Gulf of Mexico. Marine labor leaders already had promised that seamen will do their part toward seeing that the program is observed to the letter.

READY TO OBEY ORDER HERE.

Most of the Restaurants Already Cut Down Bread Rations.

All of the hotels, restaurants, and cafés of the city took immediate steps yesterday to comply with the new regulations limiting the bread ration to be served with each meal to two ounces. In many establishments the practice of serving not more than two ounces of bread with a meal had been adopted months ago as a wheat conservation measure, the diner, however, being free to call for more bread if desired.

The establishments which are hit hardest by the new regulations are the French, Italian, and Vienna restaurants, where it has been the custom to serve with each meal a quantity of bread far in excess of two ounces. The elongated French loaf and the round Italian bread constituted for many patrons of the table d'hote restaurants one of the most desirable features of the meal.

Some of the managers of these restaurants said yesterday that they will have to serve rolls or bread made from wheat substitutes, as the average diner at a table d'hote restaurant must have bread, if for no other purpose than to munch on something while waiting for the next course.

In most of the American restaurants, the consumption of bread per capita at a meal is rarely in excess of two ounces, and often less, although more than that amount is served. Two ounces would mean three thin slices of bread, or two small rolls.

It was pointed out yesterday by one restaurant management, that most diners really do not require half the bread served to them and eat it only because it is placed on the tables as soon as they are seated.

As soon as the meal is served, the bread is neglected, and often if the service has been quick all of the bread is left over. Dishes supplemented by potatoes also tend toward a conservation of the bread, because potatoes eliminate for many diners the want of bread.

According to some of the managers the new ration orders will have the effect of speeding up the service where bread was formerly used to "fill in" the wait between courses. They were also of the opinion that many of the restaurants, if the supply of potatoes remains adequate, may encourage the consumption of more dishes carrying potatoes.

In reply to reports that farmers were hoarding potatoes up-State, H. E. Babcock, Director of the Bureau of Conservation of the State Food Commission, stated yesterday that the charge was untrue and that the farmers have simply been unable to market their potatoes owing to the cold weather and the uncertainty of obtaining cars and satisfactory railroad transportation.

"There is hope that the latter condition will be bettered," said Mr. Babcock.

Nine hundred bags of flour owned by Jacob Ludzinski, a baker of Avenue C and Nineteenth Street, Bayonne, were seized by a Government Inspector yesterday in a warehouse at 82 West Twentieth Street. About 600 bags of this flour will be sold to the public at market prices. An investigation is under way to verify the report that several other dealers in Bayonne were engaged in hoarding flour.

MRS. WILSON APPEALS TO WOMEN OF ENTENTE

Joins Dr. Shaw in Urging Protection of the Morals of Soldiers and War Workers.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 5.—Mrs. Wilson, the President's wife, and Dr. Anna Shaw, Chairman of the Women's Committee of the Council of National Defense, have joined in an open letter to the women of the allied countries, which will be distributed through American diplomats in those countries. It says:

"Dear Friends: The unparalleled struggle for democracy and permanent peace which binds our nation in cooperative service is shared by men and women alike. In the yearning of the mother heart of the world for the highest moral and spiritual welfare of children, there is a deeper and more subtle bond which makes all women akin. Out of the mutual agony and love of the mothers of America, this message is sent to our allied sisters in Europe, faithfully pledging our interests and cooperation in the protection of our sons and daughters at this time of unequalled temptation and danger.

"In all our countries, mothers are willing and proud to give their sons to defend the ideas which underlie this supreme sacrifice which their Government demands of them, and to accept with fortitude and calmness their death. But they shrink from the greater sorrow which comes from the loss of moral fibre that robs them of health and manly vigor.

"It is no wonder that their hearts fail them when they realize the temptations which beset their sons, removed from homes and family ties, living the unnatural life of the camp, exposed to the excitement and fierce passions of conflict; all of which impair their powers to resist temptations that, under more happier and more healthful circumstances, would easily be conquered.

"The same is true of their daughters who are thrust out of the home into world service, with the glamour of war and emotional phases of society which war tends to foster and which lead to the breaking down of restraints that have hitherto been their safeguards.

"These abnormal conditions place upon all women tremendous responsibilities and urge the closest union in an effort to conserve the moral forces of society, to protect our young men and women that they may be kept pure and chivalrous, so that after the conflict is ended we may look with hope to the future home life of our peoples, for that health of body and mind, that purity and nobility of individual character and that righteousness in Government which alone can insure permanent peace and prosperity to any nation.

"If we fail in this, then have our struggles and sacrifices been in vain, and future generations will rightly charge the women of our time with failure to meet the great responsibility which must always rest with the mothers of the race."

Dr. Shaw also has written to the Queen of Italy the same letter she wrote to the Queen of Belgium, which previously has been published.

INSISTS ARMY MAIL IS LATE.

Representative Rogers Denies Correctness of Burleson's Reply.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 5.—Representative John Jacob Rogers of Massachusetts, who went abroad last December and reported that he found mail conditions among the American soldiers especially bad, denied in the House today the assertions of Postmaster General Burleson that mail was received by American soldiers in France fifteen days after being dispatched from this country. He showed by postmarks that more than a month was required, and declared that the failure to receive mail promptly from home was having a depressing effect on American soldiers.

Mr. Rogers made his speech in the House today to refute the report made by Mr. Burleson on his resolution asking about the mail conditions among the expeditionary force.

NEW YORK BANKS BLAMED

Frozen Engines, Misused Rolling Stock, and Delayed Crews Are Among Specifications.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 5.—Inefficient operation of the railroads, resulting in traffic congestion with its grave attendant evils, was attributed by union labor leaders, at a hearing today before the Railroad Wage Commission, to a desire on the part of the managements of the systems to discredit the Eight-hour law and to make a failure of Government control.

The commission was told by W. G. Lee, head of the trainmen; A. B. Garretson, head of the conductors, and other witnesses that this situation explained why the transportation systems of the country, including roads of splendid record, such as the Pennsylvania, suddenly collapsed. The brotherhood leaders used such vigorous expressions as "rotten railroading" to convey their opinion of the way the business had been carried on since the Government took charge, and they offered to produce scores of instances of delayed crews, changes in personnel, and misuse of rolling stock to prove their statements.

The ordinarily quiet course of such a hearing was ruffled from the very outset. Mr. Lee and Mr. Garretson, appearing to present the claims of their brotherhoods for wage increases, found several railroad representatives present and entered an immediate protest, declaring they did not propose to deal with two sets of employers. The commission explained that the railroad men were there by special invitation to supplement, not to antagonize, the information presented by the employes.

Lee Accuses Managements.

Mr. Lee's charges were made twice at the hearing. First he told the commission that he had evidence to prove that experienced railroad men were not permitted to operate as their training dictated. Later, in discussing the working of the eight-hour law recently investigated, he said the commission should not overlook the fact that the managements worked to make the cost and delay due to the law as great as possible.

"Do you mean that the operating officials made the increased costs greater than they should have been?" Chairman Lane asked.

"Yes; that was natural; they desired to cast reflections on the law," Mr. Lee replied.

"I do not think it was natural. I have not so cynical a view of human nature," returned the Chairman.

"We are prepared to show many instances of rotten railroading," the union leader replied. "On a railroad not far from here, I know of a crew that was called out and the sixteen-hour law overtook them before they left the terminal. The operating employes cannot prevent these delays when instead of a train dispatcher there is back in the yards a train delayer."

"Such a policy must go from the President of the railroad down to the dispatcher," Mr. Lane remarked. "Do you think they conspired?"

"No, but I think a sufficient number were interested in working to increase delay and cost of the eight-hour law and to make Government operation a failure," Mr. Lee answered. "If I looked for the real cause, I would trace it back to about four banks in New York City."

More Engines Frozen Up.

"Can you tell me why the Pennsylvania, long regarded as the model railroad, should fall down all of a sudden? Why was a veteran yardmaster at Alliance, Ohio, replaced by an inexperienced man who still is there? Trains have been delayed for hours at that point. Why do reports to the Interstate Commerce Commission show that in Philadelphia recently more engines were allowed to freeze up overnight than ever before? One required two weeks for repairs. We have had Winters before. Why is all this congestion just now?

"The old managements do not want Government operation made a success," said Mr. Lee. "Do you think the public will let the railroads go back to the old system if Government management proves efficient? That's why I want to see the Government make a success of operating the railroads."

Mr. Garretson supplemented his colleague's statements.

"The operating employes are thoroughly aware of the type of clearing congestion which was in effect before the Government took over the roads," he said. "They also are aware of the kind of transportation now being given. But I want to say there is one class of employes not engaged in giving a demonstration of what a failure Government operation is."

D. W. Helt, Grand Chief of the Brotherhood of Railway Signalmen, asserted that the work of the Wage Commission was being "used as a cloak" by some of the roads to discontinue negotiations with employes which were begun before the commission was appointed. He said the signalmen of the New York, New Haven & Hartford were on the verge of quitting their jobs because of inability to obtain satisfaction on demands made in December.

VIGILANTES' WAR DINNER.

Authors, Editors, and Artists Meet at Harvard Club.

The progress of the war and the part that men of various callings may play in furthering the country's purposes were discussed last night at a dinner of the Vigilantes, an organization of authors and artists, at the Harvard Club. There were present about fifty book and short story writers, newspaper and magazine editors, artists, and men of other affairs. Colonel Roosevelt, who was to have been one of the speakers, was prevented from attending by illness.

Major John Purroy Mitchel, formerly Mayor of the city, spoke of the pressing need for ships that men, munitions, and food might go to the Allies in abundance and urged such of his auditors as were employers of labor to release, wherever possible, as many men as they could spare from their present duties, that they might undertake more important work at the shipyards. Major Mitchel asserted that there was no room for doubt that the most immediate and pressing need of America and her allies was the turning out of so many vessels that no possible ravages of German submarines might create a serious shortage in overseas transport.

Augustus Thomas, the toastmaster, said that both by contributions of money and by their work those present had exerted themselves and promised further sustained effort in the direct aid of war work and toward the maintenance of patriotic public opinion. Other speakers were William Hamlin Childs, Charles Dana Gibson, Julian Street, Herman Hagedorn, and Ellis Parker Butler.

Among those present were Rex Beach, Charles Hanson Towne, Hamlin Garland, Gelett Burgess, Cleveland Moffett, Edward Hungerford, Robert Underwood Johnson, Lawrence F. Abbott, Bruce Barton, Robert Collier, Finley Peter Dunne, Ogden Reid, Charles Scribner, H. L. Stoddard, Morgan Shuster, Ellery Sedgwick, H. J. Wright, John S. Phillips, Frederick L. Collins, Jacob H. Schiff, George F. Baker, Jr.; R. Fulton Cutting, W. G. Willcox, Alexander J. Hemphill, R. A. C. Smith, Darwin P. Kingsley, William Fellowes Morgan, John J. Leary, Jr.; John Harsen Rhoades, William Loeb, Jr.; Sidney Borg, Raymond B. Price.

CANADA AGREES ON LABOR.

Enters Compact with America for Co-operative Distribution.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 5.—Complete co-operation between the United States and Canada in the effective distribution of labor for war purposes was established today. The Department of Labor announced that by mutual agreement Canada would not import labor from this country without the consent of the United States, and American employers would not import Canadian labor without the consent of Canada.

Co-ordination of efforts of the two Governments to solve particularly the farm labor problem is expected to meet the insistent demands of England, Italy, and France for more wheat and other foodstuffs.

Agreement between the two Governments was reached at a conference between W. W. Cary, Deputy Minister of the Interior of Canada, and Anthony Caminetti, Commissioner General of Immigration of the United States, held at the Department of Labor here recently.

FAVORS WHITMAN'S CHOICE.

Senate Committee to Report Service Board Nominations.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Feb. 5.—By unanimous vote, the Senate Finance Committee today decided to report favorably the nomination of Charles Bulkley Hubbell of New York and F. J. H. Kracke of Kings, former Commissioner of Plant and Structures under the Mitchel Administration, as members of the Public Service Commission for the First District. Both now are acting on the commission under a recess appointment made by Governor Whitman. It is expected that both nominations will be promptly confirmed by the Senate.

The action of the Finance Committee is regarded here as confirmation of recent reports that the Kracke and Livingston forces in the Republican organization of Kings, for years engaged in bitter warfare, have arrived at an understanding.

BRITISH BANK INQUIRY.

Recent Mergers Result in Investigation by Government.

LONDON, Feb. 5.—Andrew Bonar Law, Chancellor of the Exchequer, announced in the House of Commons today that a committee of bankers and merchants had been appointed to report whether State interference was necessary in the case of great bank amalgamations which are taking place. There have been several of these amalgamations recently, the latest being that of the London County and Westminister Bank and Parr's Bank, which led adverse critics to doubt whether they were good for the public welfare.

GERMAN PLOTTERS GET LAW'S LIMIT

firmly about the neck and turned to Mr. Farley. "Take a little 'nip' of this," he said as he handed "Exhibit A" to the foreman.

Mr. Farley sniffed the contents of the bottle, shook his head approvingly, and took a good swallow. Five minutes later he was the healthiest looking man on the jury. It was feared for a time that some of the other jurors might grow faint, but "Exhibit A" disappeared into the other courtroom before any had time to collapse.

With Mr. Farley's health restored the case proceeded. Mr. Osborne closed for the Government. The eleven Germans winced many times during the speech of Mr. Osborne, who denounced them as murderers who, coming to a friendly land, were "willing to strike a neutral friend in the back in order to prove loyalty to the Fatherland."

"Picture to yourselves," said Mr. Osborne, "the enormity of this crime. They placed fire bombs on a ship so as to cause that ship to burn at sea and go down with her innocent crew, who had done no harm to these patriotic murderers."

The jury retired at 1:10 and at 4:15 returned to the courtroom, where Mr. Farley in a firm voice announced:

"We find them, all of them, guilty as charged in the indictment."

The prisoners stood up. In the order of their importance they were: Captain Franz Rintelen, chief of the conspirators; Captain Otto Wolpert, a Hamburg-American pier superintendent; Captain Karl von Kleist, an American citizen; Eugen Reister, proprietor of a German hall in Brooklyn; Ernst Becker, a North German Lloyd steamship engineer; Georg Praedel, also of the North German Lloyd; Wilhelm Parades, another North German Lloyd employe; Friedrich Karbade, a German steamship engineer; Bonford Boniface, an employe of the plotters; Walter Uhde, employe of the plotters, and Joseph Zeffert, messenger who carried bombs to the agents of the plotters in Manhattan.

Lawyers for the defendants moved to set aside the verdict and to arrest judgment, both of which were denied.

Judge Howe then announced that he would impose sentence immediately, and called Captain Rintelen to the bar.

"The severest punishment that I can impose in this case," said Judge Howe, "is eighteen months at hard labor in the penetentiary and a fine of $2,000. When Congress passed the law under which you have been tried and convicted it did not anticipate the commission of such crimes as you men stand convicted of. Had the Congress had reason to anticipate such acts on the part of persons like you the law would have been made much more severe. Such a law as is necessary has now been passed, but unfortunately it was not enacted until after the commission of this crime.

"This court regrets that it has not the power to deal out adequate punishment to these defendants. Had I the power the sentence I am about to impose would be a great deal more severe. Rintelen, I sentence you to eighteen months at hadr labor in the Federal Penitentiary, I fine you $2,000, and charge you with the cost of your trial. Your sentence will begin immediately at the conclusion of the sentence you are now serving for other offenses."

Captain Otto Wolpert, a giant in size whose features somewhat resemble those of Hindenburg, was next called for sentence. His lawyer pleaded for clemency and Judge Howe replied:

"I am not impressed with the argument, and this crime is such a grave one that this court would not consider for a moment the imposition of any other sentence except the extreme penalty permitted by the law governing it."

Ernst Becker's lawyer said Becker was very poor, that he had a family in Germany, and that he aided the plotters to get a little extra money, and did not realize he was committing a wrong.

"I cannot agree with you," replied the Judge. "The sentence as in the other cases is the absolute maximum permitted by the law."

When Zeffert, the only American-born defendant, was called for sentence his lawyer pleaded that Zeffert had not a drop of German blood in his veins, and was, like his parents, born an American.

"That only makes the case, so far as he is concerned, the more aggravating," replied Judge Howe, "and in his case I impose the maximum penalty."

TOLD GERMAN LABOR TO RISE FOR PEACE

Reichstag Socialists, in Pamphlet Issued Before the Strike, Made Urgent Appeal.

ASSAILED BRUTAL GAGGING

Demanded an End of Arbitrary Arrests and Suppression of Public Meetings.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 5.—Information reaching Washington throws light upon the rigor with which the Berlin and other German strikes have been crushed by a policy of blood and iron.

The feeling of the German working people is disclosed in a pamphlet which has been circulated by Independent Socialist members of the Reichstag. The text of this pamphlet, as distributed in Germany, was printed in the Stockholm Social Demokraten on Feb. 1 and was cabled to Washington today through an authoritative channel. The pamphlet sets forth the principles underlying the strike and shows that the whole Independent Socialist group of the Reichstag had urged the working classes to make a demonstration in favor of peace and against the Berlin Government's decision in favor of a policy of might and annexation.

The text of the pamphlet is as follows:

"To men and women of the labor classes: We have reached a turning point in history. The Government's war aims are now brought to a head at Brest-Litovsk. It has been persistently insisted in the past that the German Government only wanted to protect the empire's borders and had no intention of making annexations. No true thinking man can longer believe this statement.

"Germany desires the annexation of Russian territory. Faithful to democratic principles Russia's Socialistic Government has made a proposal that the Poles, Lithuanians, and Letts should decide through free referendum, after troops are withdrawn, whether they wish to become an independent State or part of either of the two countries. Contrary to this, the German Government demands that the Russian delegates at Brest-Litovsk shall acknowledge that these countries have already parted from Russia and simultaneously our Government refused to withdraw the troops from these districts immediately after peace conclusion or Russian demobilization.

"This nearly caused the peace negotiations to be stranded. The Russian Government replied as expected: 'That a decision taken in the presence of foreign troops cannot be regarded as reflecting the true desire of the population.'

"It is true that negotiations have been resumed, but Germany's population is exposed to great danger no less than that of Russia. If Germany should succeed in a peace of might against the Russian people this would be fatal to Russia, and to the Poles, Lithuanians, Letts, but still more fatal to ourselves. The consequence would be a postponement of general peace, new threats and desire for revenge, increased armaments and intensified reaction in our country.

Advocates of Peace Gagged.

"This calamity must be avoided. Parties of the middle classes are now excluded from the Reichstag. This is the only place where we could attack and explain the danger growing out of annexationist agitation.

"Thanks to a state of siege, our party and other adherents of a democratic peace have been brutally gagged outside of the Reichstag. All efforts to end this suppression have been checked. All the Government's promises to mitigate this state of affairs have been idle words. Our peace meetings are suppressed, and there is no means of setting forth our criticism and persistent complaints. Many comrades are prohibited from speaking.

"Any one making himself disliked is condemned to temporary imprisonment or placed under the rule of the military authorities. Militarization of factories is being extended and the rights of laborers are being steadily restricted. Examination of houses, persecution by the police and courts and draconian punishments are the order of the day.

"The policy of might and annexation assumes various forms. Pan Germans, the Fatherland Party and their adherents, are free to state their views. Newspapers purchased by industrial leaders attack those members of the Government who do not render them unlimited support in annexation plans. They threaten that if the Government does not conform to their desire they will withdraw from their posts. Any means of pressure is emipoyed by them.

"Von Tirpitz, the Fatherland Party spokesman, declared himself satisfied with the conversation he had with the Chancellor concerning the Government's plans on the eastern front. This disclosed clearly what position the Government takes on the question of a policy of might.

"The Pan Germans consider themselves in power. They are allowed all the meetings they please and unhindered discussion of their war aims. Their press writes as it pleases. The Fatherland Party is about to open 'tempest petitions' in favor of the annexationist program.

Want End of War and Hunger.

"If the laboring classes now fail to emphasize their position it will probably be taken as approval of this agitation or it will be thought that the masses of the German people are not yet tired of this terrible war and are willing to give support to continue the war on a still greater scale. Indeed, the masses of the people think and feel differently. They want the bloody murder, devastation, sufferings, and hunger brought to an early conclusion. This is only attainable upon a basis of democratic peace.

"Until now only the adversaries of such a peace have spoken. They vociferously rule over the Government and the public in Germany.

"Women and men of the working classes have no time to lose. After all past horror and suffering a new and terrible calamity is threatening our people, the whole of mankind in fact. Only peace without annexations and compensations and upon the basis of the people self-determination can save us. The time has come to raise a voice favoring such a peace. It is now your turn."

The pamphlet is signed by the following Independent Socialists in the Reichstag: Albrecht, Bernstein, Bock, Brandes, Büchner, Cohn, Nordhausen, Dittmann, Erdmann, Geyer, Haase, Henke, Herzfeldt, Horn Sachsen, Hüttmann, Jäckel, Quenert, Ledebour, Rauter, Ryssel, Simon, Stolle, Schwartz, Vogtherr, Wurm, Zuvell. It is dated at Berlin, Jan. 10.

PUT WAR CHARITIES ON A BUSINESS BASIS

National Allied Relief Committee Incorporates with New Aims.

Announcement was made yesterday of the incorporation of the National Allied Relief Committee, to control the work of a number of war charities which have heretofore worked independently with a loose association in a National Allied Relief Committee. Most of the organizations forming the new big charity organization have had John Moffatt in close touch with their work. These organizations were among those which opposed the proposal of the Red Cross to come under its wing, saying they preferred to work separately.

The new organization does not include all the societies which have been affiliated with the unincorporated National Allied Relief Committee. Some of them preferred to work independently. The Lafayette Fund will continue its work separately; so will the A. B. F. B. Permanent Blind Fund, the Armenian and Syrian Relief Committee, the Jewish Federation, the French Heroes' Fund, the Committee for the Relief of Fatherless Children of France, and several smaller associations.

Most of these separate organizations do special relief work. The incorporation of the new body means that there will be two big organizations in America doing war relief work—the American Red Cross and the National Allied Relief Committee, Mr. Moffatt said. He decried the idea that there would be any conflict with the Red Cross, because he believed the Red Cross would approve the amalgamation. He said he knew of no reason why it should not. According to Mr. Moffatt, the organization means the end of the work of the "100 per cent. boys," who made a profiteering career out of war charities.

There is excellent authority for saying that the new body was formed to put needed business system into war relief work to take the place of the impetus that came from the work of society folk who at first entered with a zest into war relief work. Recently, since America entered the war, many of these women have taken up other activities, such as food conservation and fuel conservation and the like, and have not paid so much attention to war work. This, it was said, had made it necessary to get rid of some of the "deadwood," for the help given by these organizations had created abroad an expectation of continuing aid that could not be left unfilled

The following officers of the National Allied War Relief Committee, Inc., were elected yesterday: Chairman, E. G Merrill, President of the Union Trust Company; Vice Chairman, Mr. Moffatt; Treasurer, James A. Blair, Jr.; Auditor, James Marwick, and Secretary, Augustus W. Kelley. The officers of the new committee are the same as those of the old National Allied Relief Committee. The following Executive Committee was named: I. Tucker Burr of Boston, Frederic R. Coudert, William M. Miller, Finley Shepard, A. Kinnaird Todd, Henry J. Whigham, E. G. Merrill, Augustus W. Kelley, James Marwick, John Moffatt, Mrs. Newbold Le Roy Edgar, Mrs. Maurice Kozminski, Mrs. Walter E. Maynard, Mrs. John Magee, Mrs. William Astor Chanler, Louis Wiley, and Mrs. Herbert Bayard Swope.

FLOOD DEFENDS COL. HOUSE

Asserts President Has Right to Send Him on Special Missions.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 5.—Representative Flood, Chairman of the Foreign Affairs Committee, opening the debate on the bill making annual appropriation for the diplomatic and consular services in the House today, denied the assertion that "all the departments of Government had fallen down" under the war stress. He paid a tribute to Secretary Lansing and reviewed the relations of the United States to other countries.

Mr. Flood was questioned at times by Representative Fess and others as to how money apportioned the State Department was used by President Wilson to send his personal representative, Colonel E. M. House, to Europe. Mr. Flood named a number of missions upon which Republican Presidents had sent personal representatives. He quoted to show that President Wilson was within his constitutional right in sending Colonel House on special missions.

The United States will furnish more men and money for the war in a "far shorter time than has been the fondest hope of our own people or the nation's with which we are associated," Chairman Flood declared.

The Appropriation bill as presented by Chairman Flood carries $8,206,087 for the next fiscal year, $3,000,000 more than the current appropriation because of increased war burdens. The increase provides for twenty-five secretaries to embassies and legations, many additional clerks, augmented secret funds, and other allowances.

PASSES ENGINEER BILL.

Senate Adopts Reorganization Measure—Also Exemption Badge.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 5.—The Administration bill authorizing the Secretary of War to provide distinctive badges for men of draft age who have been exempted or rejected was passed today by the Senate.

Another measure which was passed provides for the reorganization of the army Engineer Corps. Under the bill the corps will be composed of seven regiments and two mounted battalions, with a Brigadier General, 23 Colonels, 30 Lieutenant Colonels, 72 Majors, and 152 Captains.

The Senate also passed Senator Chamberlain's bill making a felony the purchase from soldiers or sailors of any military equipment.

Margaret Anglin in 'Electra' Today.

Margaret Anglin and her company, assisted by the New York Symphony Orchestra, playing special incidental music composed by Walter Damrosch, will present the "Electra" of Sophocles at Carnegie Hall this afternoon. The management announced yesterday that the performance would begin at 2:20 o'clock and that there would be no intermission.

The Greek setting and costumes for the play have been designed by Livingston Platt. Madeline Delmar, who was recently seen in "The Heritage," will appear in the supporting company.

Miss Anglin and the Symphony Orchestra will present the "Medea" of Euripides on the afternoon of Wednesday, Feb. 20, at Carnegie Hall. Both "Electra" and "Medea," with Mr. Damrosch's music, were put on by Miss Anglin at the Greek Theatre of the University of California during the Panama Exposition.

AUTHORITIES UNITE TO CLEAN UP CITY

Judge, District Attorney, and Police Commissioner Extend Vice Crusade.

LANDLORDS ARE IN DANGER

Inspector Costigan Assigned to Get After Those Who Rent Apartments for Immoral Purposes.

New York City is to be made clean if Judge Wadhams, District Attorney Swann, and Police Commissioner Enright can bring about that condition. The John Doe inquiry conducted by the District Attorney has produced such important results that the investigation has had to be broadened.

After Judge Wadhams in General Sessions heard yesterday of conditions on the upper west side in furnished apartments rented to tenants subsequently convicted of violating the tenement house law, he said it was imperative that the law turn its attention to landlords whose apartments are rented for immoral purposes. Later in the day, District Attorney Swann announced that at his suggestion Police Commissioner Enright had relieved Inspector Daniel Costigan from his duties in the First Inspection District for the present, assigning him, together with sixteen detectives, to the gambling and vice crusade.

Assistant District Attorney James E. Smith placed on the stand before Judge Wadhams Captain John H. Boyle of the West 100th Street station, who produced records showing that Leon Sobel, a real estate dealer of 215 Manhattan Avenue, had been notified of the conviction of several of his tenants, some for gambling and others for violating the tenement house law.

Another witness was Nathan Weinberg, a clerk in the employ of Sobel, who testified that his employer controls from 300 to 400 apartments, mostly furnished, from two to four rooms, and with rentals ranging from $30 to $50 a month.

The witness recalled that his employer received notice from the police of the conviction of one of the female tenants on a charge of violating the Tenement House law. Weinberg said that all prospective tenants were asked for references and were not permitted to rent apartments if the references were unsatisfactory. Asked whether tenants were allowed to "bring in anybody they liked at any time of the day or night," Weinberg replied that the tenants were "supposed to act respectably." Captain Boyle's records showed that Sobel had been notified of the conviction of a number of tenants living in his houses on 109th Street and on Manhattan Avenue.

NEW YORK, WEDNESDAY, FEB. 6, 1918.

THE SHIPYARD VOLUNTEERS.

Secretary BAKER told the Senate Military Affairs Committee that "ships are the crux of our problem." One and a half million of men would be in France in 1918, he declared, "if the "transportation facilities are avail- "able." When he said that "the prospect was not unpromising" he was more optimistic than discerning. For each soldier and his equipment five tons of transport capacity must be found. If each transport carried 5,000 men without other equipment than a rifle, 300 ships would be required to convey 1,500,000 soldiers to France. But it is only the largest liners that have deck and cabin space for 5,000 soldiers; the average number carried is much less. Add the guns, horses, motors, shells, explosives, cartridges, airplanes, stores, rations, hospital supplies, and the thousand and one things a great modern army requires before it can take the field and wage an offensive, and it will be seen that on the eastward passage there must be many times 300 voyages before the troops and all their equipment can be landed, ships going and coming as rapidly as they can be loaded at an American port and unloaded in France.

But this is not all the demand made upon shipping in the conduct of the war. An immense cargo space is required for foodstuffs, without which the allied peoples and their armies and navies cannot subsist. It will be futile to send over great armies if the breath of life cannot be kept in the bodies of the civilian populations, if the vigor of the allied soldiery cannot be maintained. No one has calculated the number of ships that must be employed; the sum can't be worked out as long as the enemy submarines continue their campaign of "frightfulness." But we do know that many of the ships needed are not in existence, and we do know that to build them is a perplexing and complicated problem, a fight against time with all the resources of men and material that can be assembled. Great Britain, a shipbuilding nation, is breaking her record of 1913, when she put more merchant vessels into the water than ever before in her history. America is not doing her share yet, has not got fairly under way. Lord NORTHCLIFFE was right when he was asked at the new year what would win the war and replied: "Ships, ships, ships." To say more he considered a waste of words. It was his often reiterated cry.

Now America will never be able to do her share, that is to say the war will never be won, unless the men to build America's quota of ships can be mobilized to fill the yards. Man power is the ever-recurring and always haunting problem of the war, and, in the case of shipbuilding, the supply of men, of mechanics and artisans, is the most difficult of all to obtain. They must be found, they must be put to work. The American people will have to wake up and understand this.

The Council of National Defense asks for 250,000 shipyard volunteers. Instructions have been sent to the County Chairmen of Councils in all the States, of whom there are 3,500. Enrollments will be reported as fast as they can be obtained. Volunteers will be expected to hold themselves in readiness for calls to the shipyards, but they will not be expected to leave their present employment until they are individually needed. New York's quota is 39,526. Unskilled laborers can be used, but the pressing demand is for asbestos workers, acetylene workers, blacksmiths, boilermakers, shippers and calkers, coppersmiths, electricians, loftmen, machinists, painters, plumbers, ship carpenters, ship fitters, sheet metal workers, and structural iron workers.

Men who join the United States Shipyard Volunteers with proof of their usefulness and of their willingness to report at the yards when wanted will be exempt from military service. "When you get back to your States and start this work," Assistant Secretary POST of the Department of Labor said to the State Directors of the Public Service Reserve who will have charge of the enrollments, "tell your people that on "these ships depend this war, and on "the full, efficient work of the men "in the yards depend the ships." The urgent need could not be stated in fewer and better words.

It should be added that in the unessential industries there are many thousands of men for whom uses could be found in the shipyards, although they have never done a day's work on a ship or on any material that enters into the construction of one. Moreover, there are many manufactures and trades that can spare workers. The place for them is a shipyard. Patriotic employers should be glad to encourage men whom they do not really need to join the United States Shipyard Volunteers.

The "drive" to enroll the army of 250,000 began on Monday. New York contributed almost as many enlisted men to the regular army as Chairman HURLEY of the Shipping Board asks her for now. New York has never failed to respond to any demand the nation has made upon her in this war. She will again do her duty.

PERILOUS ECONOMY.

The Committee upon City Plan has dismissed all its employés, with the result of endangering the future of the zoning plan, which has done so much in stabilizing real estate. This is an economy of some twenty-odd thousands in a matter affecting billions of real estate values. The use and height restrictions are so far from being useless or disliked that they have been extended by petition to districts not fully included in them. It is true that some owners willing to profit by evading restrictions in public interest have sought to weaken the plan by lawsuits. Their success has been little different from defeat, and their number is inconsiderable when compared with those of another sort of spirit who are co-operating inside the use and height restrictions, and outside them in "Save New York movements" of similar purpose.

The report of the bureau left without officials or help shows that proceedings for the alteration of the plan have affected one eight-hundredth part of the area included. A plan so nearly satisfactory in itself clearly must be attacked indirectly, if at all. It is not necessary to impute motives for the stoppage of the work. It is not possible to contend that the bureau's resources are reduced for public reasons. The bureau is not crippled by its friends, and the friends of such economy are not the friends of property owners in general. If the use and height restrictions are to be abandoned, or modified in the interest of owners who wish to profit to the city's detriment, there will be a debit against the new administration which will require almost impossible credits to offset it.

THE SUPREME WAR COUNCIL.

If the dissent from the conclusions of the Supreme War Council at Versailles to which certain London newspapers give expression is merely a move in British politics, it can be understood, although such a manifestation of party spirit in wartime is not welcome. But certainly the dissenters must be more specific, they must answer some questions. The Supreme Council decided that > the only immediate task before them lay in the prosecution of the war with the utmost vigor and the closest and most effective co-operation of the military effort of the Allies until such time as the pressure of that effort shall have brought about in the enemy Governments and peoples a change of temper which would justify the hope of the conclusion of peace on terms which would not involve the abandonment, in the face of an aggressive and unrepentant militarism, of all the principles of freedom, justice, and respect for the law of nations which the Allies are resolved to vindicate.

This decision was taken after the Council had carefully considered the recent utterances of Chancellor VON HERTLING and Count CZERNIN, the Austro-Hungarian Minister of Foreign Affairs. It was "unable to find in "them any real approximation to the "moderate conditions laid down by all "the Allied Governments." The German Chancellor was defiant and unyielding. He made no visible approach to the conditions laid down by the Allies as essential to the conclusion of peace. He took the extreme, impossible position that the relinquishment by the Germans of the French territory which they now occupy was a question altogether between Germany and France; that was typical of his whole attitude. Count CZERNIN, while he made what might have been construed as a peace overture when he said that the differences between Austria-Hungary and the United States were not insuperable obstacles to peace, nevertheless asserted that Austria-Hungary and Germany had a common cause. In saying that, he made VON HERTLING's position his own, so that the War Council was fully justified in its finding that no real approximation to the peace terms of the Allied Governments was to be found in the utterances of the Teutonic statesmen.

Do the London critics of this decision demand a peace which would involve something less than the establishment of those principles of freedom, justice, and respect for the law of nations which the Allied Governments have declared to be their chief aim? Would they be content to make peace now which would be flagrantly in conflict with that foundation condition laid down by Mr. WILSON that this agony of war must not be gone through with again? We do not believe it. It is more charitable to assume that they have not carefully considered the only possible alternative to the decision of the Supreme War Council. If we are not to prosecute the war with the utmost vigor and effective co-operation until the enemy Governments and peoples have undergone a change of temper, then we must abate our war activities and come to terms, actually German terms. Peace cannot be concluded on the terms of the Allies until the enemy Governments and peoples have repented of their purpose and abandoned it.

The London Daily News, which is most outspoken in criticism of the Versailles decision, appears to be disturbed by the fear that the Supreme War Council has in some way usurped the functions of the Allied Governments, that it is pronouncing upon questions of political policy, not merely upon war questions. But when the decision was taken, the British Prime Minister, Mr. LLOYD GEORGE, was present, also Lord MILNER; the French Prime Minister, CLEMENCEAU, and M. PICHON were there, and Italy was represented by Professor ORLANDO and Baron SONNINO. It is unofficially reported from Washington that the action of the Council is approved by our Government. Certainly, there has been no expression of disapproval, although time and opportunity for that have been given. In default of evidence to the contrary, it is to be assumed that the views of the Council are the views of the Governments its members represented. It is impossible to take any other view of the matter. By no process of analysis or reasoning can the utterances of VON HERTLING and Count CZERNIN be brought into accord with the policy declared in President WILSON's address to Congress or with the declarations of the British and French Prime Ministers.

The Teutonic Powers have opened no door to peace. When The London Daily News repeats the tiresome demand "for explicit declarations of the allied war aims," it is sufficient to reply that the Allies have repeatedly declared their war aims, the Germans and Austrians have declared theirs. The war aims, respectively, of the Allies and of the Teutonic Powers are irreconcilable and the Allies are now making it their principal business to prosecute the war with the utmost vigor, in effective co-operation, until the enemy shall be ready to make a peace which shall be based upon the "principles of freedom, justice, and respect for the law of nations." That is the only road to peace now open.

MEXICO'S OIL WELLS.

If General PELAEZ, recently commander of a force of several thousand men in the Tampico oil district of Mexico, is a bandit, as some of CARRANZA's representatives say, he is not one of the ordinary kind. There is proof of this in the long proclamation, published by THE TIMES, issued by him on the last day of the old year. And if he has recently been driven back to the hills by CARRANZA's army, this may be to the disadvantage of the oil interests, for his government was satisfactory and may have been succeeded by control in many ways objectionable. Much of the fuel oil used by the nations opposing Germany is obtained from the Tampico wells. Germany's agents in Mexico would like to prevent the shipment of it. But it does not yet appear that they have gained anything by the dislodgment of PELAEZ. Exportation has not been interrupted. While PELAEZ received pay from the oil companies, CARRANZA's Government, which needs money, collected much revenue from the district's output and cannot afford to lose the taxes. General GONZALES, commander of CARRANZA's army, is in sympathy with the Entente Allies, and would not consent to a military movement designed to harm them.

PELAEZ was ambitious. As he said in the proclamation, he proposed "to "extend the rule of law and order "throughout the whole national terri- "tory." His remarks about "false revolutionaries" and "self-styled redeemers" were annoying to the Government. And he may have sought to increase his share of the oil revenue. It is unfortunate that there has been a conflict of authority in the oil fields, but thus far there is no evidence that production and shipment have been restrained.

German propagandists in Mexico are tireless. Controlling several newspapers by subsidy, and a telegraphic news service, they seek to convince Mexicans that our nation is their implacable enemy, predicting aggression and conquest if the Allies are victorious, and protection by Germany if the Central Powers win. Their publication of an assertion that the United States was preparing for armed intervention brought from Washington an official denial a few days ago. The republic's Attorney General and a legislative committee are now making investigation concerning the charge published by El Universal, the capital's leading newspaper, that Germany's Minister, HEINRICH VON ECKHARDT, has corrupted members of Congress. This paper has demanded that the Minister be sent home. While German influence may control some who are associated with CARRANZA, it is not clear that he has yielded to it. Many who know him say he cannot be bribed. His people need food, and we are sending it to them. He knows our nation is not hostile. There are no interests in Mexico of greater importance for the Allies than those of the oil district. Germany has failed thus far to affect them to her advantage. The disagreement with PELAEZ will stimulate inquiry as to the causes of it, and concerning the condition hereafter of the industry which he controlled.

STAGNANT AND FESTERING.

It is unfair to judge a nation in revolution by the usual standards. It is wide of the mark to judge socialistic results designedly brought about by Socialists for socialistic purposes as if they were failures to reach the aims ordinarily sought by non-socialistic Governments. Let us do neither of these things; let us ask, instead, Is Russia being made over, not, indeed, in accordance with our American ideals, but still in accordance with ideals? Is a new socialistic order rising slowly and painfully out of the chaos? It is, for the moment, beside the question to ask whether a Government of the American democratic kind is being formed; is any Government being formed?

A Government, whether it is monarchical, democratic, or socialistic, must exist for certain primary purposes—that of protecting the life of the citizen, for instance. Even in this most elemental requirement Russia is visibly failing more and more from day to day, and in all others is collapsing completely. No State, socialistic or other, is rising; on the contrary, the only progress is toward demoralization. The revolution is nearly a year old, and nothing is visible but stagnation in construction and degeneration in life.

The Constituent Assembly had to be suppressed because the real life lies in the Soviets, we are told. Well and good; but the business of the Constituent Assembly was to constitute, and what are the Soviets constituting? Where is the first plank of that socialistic edifice? Has anybody had a glimpse even of the saw that is to cut the first plank? Never before has it been necessary to ask such questions of any revolution. The French Terrorists were blood kin of the Soviets, but the French Terrorists were in a perfect fever of construction. Much of it was mad, of course; but, mad or not, it was construction, and a good deal of it was sane and survived.

The French Reign of Terror was fury for a purpose. There is no analogy in Russia. The only reign of terror there is the reign of the lawless, of the criminal. To call it anarchy is to suggest a reign of anarchists, of men with a social theory; but the Russian anarchy is the anarchy of dissolution. It is one of slow, progressive degeneration of all the social organs. It mattered something what theories ROBESPIERRE and CHAUMETTE held, for they proceeded with wild energy to put them into practice, to make laws and even religions of them; but the theories the Russian factions hold are ignes fatui dancing over a miasmatic swamp. They are in motion, but not in progress.

Look back over the eleven months, and instead of seeing the slow, painful rise of a socialistic State, one will see a continuous degeneracy. The social organism fell dead, and the process that has followed with first one and then another of its organs is the decay that sets in after death. Socialistic or not socialistic, the State is in a far more inefficient condition now, than it was under KERENSKY, so far as the ordinary processes of life and society are concerned. It has fallen, step by step. It is not merely that disorder has increased, but that not even the first step, socialistic or otherwise, has been taken to arrest it, to put something in place of what was removed.

It is perhaps the fact that there was no revolution in Russia, after all; that the Czardom simply ceased to function and died. Socialism might have risen in its place, but it has not done so; nothing has done so. Of any kind of government there is, as time goes on, ceasing to be any considerable trace, so far as the ordinary relations of government with life are concerned; and if it goes on, if nothing arises, there will cease to be any trace of society as an organism. Something, of course, will happen before that time comes, but in the meantime, Russia is a carcass, and what are laboriously reported to us from Petrograd as if they were the processes of life—the wranglings of the Soviets and the like—are the activities of dissolution.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Responsibility Fixed Definitely.

Investigations of the official sort, and especially those in which the investigators are investigating evils for which they are themselves more or less responsible, often lead to the conclusion that nobody was very much to blame and that nobody at all needs punishing. So often, indeed, has this happened that public confidence in the possibility of arriving at truth in this way is far from strong, and there is not much surprise when such an investigation ends in a comfortable whitewashing of all concerned.

There is, therefore, a refreshing element of novelty in the fact that the inquiry into the explosion by which the City of Halifax was wrecked has ended, after what was evidently a careful examination of all the circumstances and all the available witnesses, in a finding marked by both definiteness and vigor.

The members of the Board of Inquiry had the difficult task invariably presented when responsibility for a collision between ships has to be fixed—that of deciding between the conflicting testimony of two groups of men, each able to exculpate themselves only by incriminating the other group. The Captain and pilot of the Imo insisted that the rules were not broken by themselves and were broken by the Captain and pilot of the Mont Blanc, and the latter turned the accusation exactly around. The investigators have made their way through this maze of contradictions, they have resisted what must have been their inclination to declare the statements on the one side about as credible as those made on the other, and to give the problem up with no more than an expression of regret that the explosion occurred. Instead, they have vindicated the officers of the Belgian steamer and condemned the French Captain and the Nova Scotia pilot of the French vessel and demanded their punishment as mariners as well as their trial for manslaughter.

In short, they were investigators who investigated to some purpose.

His Penalty Seems a Harsh One.

Unless Secretary DANIELS can create in the public mind the impression that he had more and better reasons than are now known for the punishment he has imposed on Commander ERNEST FREDERICK for firing on an Italian submarine, he must be prepared to endure the possibly inconvenient consequences of having a very large number of his fellow-countrymen hold that in this case he has been worse than needlessly severe—that he has been unjust.

For a naval officer to be reduced thirty numbers is a penalty so heavy that it can be deserved only by a display of gross negligence or the worst of judgment. Such a reduction destroys the officer's chance to reach high rank unless fortune favors him in some exceptional way. In effect, it ruins his professional career. And there is nothing in the published accounts of the incident for which Commander FREDERICK was tried by the Naval Court to show why the clemency recommended by that court and by the Italian Government should not have been extended to him.

It is, of course, deeply to be regretted that a vessel belonging to one of our allies should have been fired on and one of her men killed, but certainly there is more than an excuse, in these days, for the commander of an American gunboat to use his guns promptly on any submarine that does not give immediate answer to a signal demanding her nationality. If that submarine had been German, and the Nashville had been lost with all on board because Commander FREDERICK hesitated to attack, he would have been held guilty, not of a mistake, but of a crime.

It is, to be sure, the hard law of the sea that masters of vessels shall be punished for misfortunes as well as for faults, but Secretary DANIELS is not the sort of man who would be expected to apply that law in all its rigor. Even private shipowners and marine insurers are sometimes moved to mercy when the extenuating circumstances are as many and as great as those that could be adduced by Commander FREDERICK. "Not guilty, but don't do it again," is the verdict that seemingly would have fitted his case best—would, that is, if the published facts are all the facts there are.

Courtesy Is Not Expensive.

An official in the Naval Observatory at Washington recently expressed something between indignation and regret that THE TIMES should have printed a letter from one of its readers, complaining that he had sent a pair of binoculars in response to the urgent request of the Navy Department, and had received neither thanks for the gift nor acknowledgment of its receipt. The complaining official more than intimated that the letter was a product of German propaganda, and its object to diminish public confidence in the Government and good-will toward it.

What German propagandists wouldn't do is yet to be discovered, and any of them would have used such a device as this willingly enough. "Washington," however, might safely assume that THE TIMES is not careless in the selection of letters to print, and that it is rather careful not to assist the plots of the country's enemies.

As a matter of fact, the single letter about the failure of the Navy Department to acknowledge the receipt of binoculars—no trivial gift, by the way—was only one of a considerable number that have come to this office. Some of them may have been from secret foes, but some of them certainly were not, for the writers were known.

Of course, the departmental officials are extremely busy, these days, and it is not at all necessary that one of them should write an elaborate letter of thanks for every glass that comes. It wouldn't be much work, however, or too much work, for some clerk to fill out and mail in a "penalty envelope" a printed blank telling each maker of such a present to the navy that it has arrived safely and is appreciated. Meanwhile, the Observatory official should have observed that our one letter of complaint was balanced by one that told of getting two pretty notes of thanks for one pair of glasses, so that no measurable cooling of public sentiment could have resulted from the first communication.

From a Dutch Seaman.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In the illustrated English periodical Sea Power recently appeared pictures of some parts of the Hudson River where many of the Holland vessels were lying at anchor. Under the picture on the first page is written the following sentence: "Neutral grain carriers anchored in the Hudson River, not daring to face the U-boats." Under another is written the following: "The fear of Germany's ruthless submarine warfare has detained these neutral vessels in the Hudson River. The scene looks peaceful, yet these Dutch steamers are lying idle when tonnage is commanding fabulous rates, and only the fear of the piratical U-boat has kept them in harbor, eating their heads off, instead of earning money for their owners."

If these flattering comments were made by a paper that knew nothing about sea or sea-going people, or anything connected with the sea, one could only laugh at it and pity at the same time. But when one reads that in a paper like Sea Power, it is not mere ignorance, but simply willfully putting a slur upon us officers and crews of the Holland vessels. I thought it generally known that the only reason why all those ships were detained here so long was on account of the embargo law, and surely none of us ever dreamed that we should be accused of such cowardice and in such a manner as quoted in Sea Power.

Is it necessary to say that never for centuries and centuries was the Holland seaman afraid to face the possible dangers attached to his profession, even if his country was at war, or, as now, staying neutral, tossed between two strong belligerent forces? Every officer or member of the crew of all those vessels crossed the war zone several times, many of them were once or more, often without warning, torpedoed with their ships, but none of them was afraid to face the danger of mines or U-boats again.

Loss of Navy Mail.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

What becomes of mail for our boys in the navy? My son is aboard the U. S. S. Rochester, and mail addressed to him several weeks ago, while the ship was at Hampton Roads, has not reached him yet, although sent according to instructions and addressed care of Postmaster, New York City. Is it necessary to attach special delivery stamps to this class of mail? It seems these are the only letters that reach their destination.

AMERICAN SEA POWER.

Professor Usher Sees Danger in "American Jurist's" Views.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

It seems to me singularly unfortunate that just at this juncture there should have appeared in what has come to be recognized in Europe as the leading paper of the United States a series of articles upon American foreign policy, which espouses for the United States the platform of independence of Europe, which denies the expediency of co-operation, and refuses to accept the loyalty and dependability of our present allies. To insist, as he does, that a strong merchant marine is a necessary part of our foreign policy means that we ourselves must contest the seas with Great Britain and with Germany, to use his repeated phrase, "cost what it may." The cost is clear, although he does not entirely seem to realize how great it is. It is nothing less than the administrative, economic, military, and naval ability to maintain ourselves against Europe and in contravention to European interests.

No American merchant marine has existed for the last half century for fundamental economic reasons, such as I ventured to discuss in my "Challenge of the Future." These the "American Jurist" entirely pushes to one side, and feels that we must stimulate by State subsidies a merchant marine, "cost what it may." There will be many in Germany who will see in the premises and conclusions of this author a very striking resemblance to the logic which lies behind the German insistence upon literal independence from the rest of the world for Germany as the only true basis of foreign policy, and as the only conceivable, dependable security. I find it difficult to accept such logic for this country, or to see how an American jurist, with as considerable a perception as this author has of many problems, should fail to have thought through the issues sufficiently to see whither his conclusions lead and whence they come.

It seems to me thoroughly advisable for him to defend himself against this charge, which will certainly be brought against him by all those really familiar with international affairs. He is suggesting for the United States the old imperialism, the old internationalism, the old diplomacy, and creating something perilously near, in the Pacific, in the West Indies, and in relation to the merchant marine, a policy of conquest and menace.

I repeat that it is singularly unfortunate that such a series of articles should have appeared without other explanation or defense in the leading newspaper of the country.

For a Boycott of Autocracy.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Lately the Hamburger Nachrichten was quoted as saying, in effect:

> If the Anglo-Saxon powers were victorious in war or in diplomatic and political negotiations, they would really have in their hands a noose by which Germany could be throttled. Against this, there is for Germany one remedy only—victory, followed by ruthless and unerring exploitation of victory.

President Wilson is on record as opposed to a proposal to boycott German business when this war shall be ended. Democracy has been spreading over the world by the natural evolution of human affairs since the day of Britain's Magna Charta. Germany and her allies are avowed foes of democracy. None who support those declared enemies could object, reasonably, were all democratic nations to notify the world that every one of the markets of these democracies will be closed against all who may be under an autocratic or a bureaucratic government. Markets of the allied democracies would open automatically to any people whenever they would discard autocracy or bureaucracy.

No one nation nor people would be singled out by this. No attempt would be made to crush any people. None would be forced to give up Kaiser, Sultan, or King. They who would cling to autocracy would merely be called on to pay for that luxury of their choice. Any coercion would be by autocrats or bureaucrats, for the selfish ends of the very few, at the cost of the very many of their own people. EDWARD PERRY.

"WHEN GALLI-CURCI SANG."

Oh, gray with pain, and rank with rain, and grim with sullen want Your World and mine—a place of fear that haggard Furies haunt!
Of hope no gleam, all life one dream of trench and screaming shell. . .
A fevered, blinded, haunting dream caught from the flare of Hell!

And then, one day, Spring bloomed again
And comforted the souls of men—
When Galli-Curci sang!

She had no air of conqueror,
no wiles and tricks and lures:
She was sincere and strong and glad—the gladness that endures!
She sang as birds sing on the bough—
as jubilant, as free;
She sang of truth and glowing youth—
She sang to you and me. . . .

And we surrendered to her art,
Sheer beauty thrilled each tired heart—
When Galli-Curci sang!

Within the space of that vast place were jewels flashing clear,
And yet within each wearer's breast
a consciousness of fear. . . .
Fear, not for self, but for some lad, gallant and young and gay—
Fear of his very fearlessness upon some ill-starred day. . . .

And then of fear a blest surcease,
A sense of splendid power and peace—
When Galli-Curci sang!

Clear as a bell each true note fell upon the pain-racked soul;
As delicate as lily buds, translucent, dawn-fresh, whole!
You made your own translation of the lovely flowing words,
Exactly as you make it when you listen to the birds!

You closed your eyes, the hot tears came
And you remembered one loved name—
When Galli-Curci sang!

Oh, mystical and wonderful,
such genius and such joy!
Such minted gold of beauty with no sorrowful alloy!
A memory of fairy bells
a-ringing in the night,
A dream of raindrops pattering the roof of Heart's Delight!

Sheer Beauty burned the souls of men!
We lived again, we loved again—
When Galli-Curci sang!

It thundered then, again, again,
the storm of our delight!
And Galli-Curci smiled at us upon a Winter's night!
We called her back . . . she came and came,
at last she sang one song,
The old, beloved song of home, serene and sweet and strong. . . .

Amid the clapping and the cries
I saw a soldier wipe his eyes—
When Galli-Curci sang!

ELIZABETH NEWPORT HEPBURN.

THE SPIRIT OF "LE FEU"

Not One to Give Comfort to the Conscientious Objectors.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The few criticisms the writer has heard or read of Henri Barbusse's "Le Feu" leave out one very essential point. Some look upon it as a book that should never have been written, calculated to do more harm than good, because it purposely ignores the military virtues of the combatants—courage, devotion to country, self-sacrifice—and presents only the sordid and disgusting side of modern warfare. Others, on the contrary, claim that "Le Feu," being the most realistic picture of the horrors of war we have yet had, is therefore a powerful argument against war.

Now, both those who deplore the appearance of this book at the present stage of the war because the pacifists may make the most of it, and the pacifists themselves who imagine that they have discovered a new and strong argument in defense of their "conscientious objections" appear to have lost sight of one very important fact that stands out all through the book, viz., the quiet heroism of men who, fully conscious that they are marching to death, do not hesitate an instant because they realize it has to be done.

Now and then the author calls our attention to this:

> These are not soldiers, they are men. They are not adventurers, warriors, made for human butchery. They are farmers and workmen, to be recognized under their uniform. * * * They are ready. They wait for the signal of death and murder; but you see, as you watch their faces between the gleaming bayonets, that they are just men. * * * They are not the kind of heroes people think they are; but their sacrifice is greater than can ever be understood by those who have not seen them.

Oftener the author leaves it to the reader who thinks to discover for himself not only the everlasting self-abnegation of these Frenchmen but their unanswerable logic in the face of the inevitable. Several poilus have a day's furlough; they go together to a neighboring town; they wander through the streets, filled with people going about on their various errands. Evening comes on, lights shine in the stores, also in the cafés. They notice a number of young men in uniform, but with an emblem on the collar which indicates they will do no active service—the "lucky" ones who have secured some Government work or other that will keep them away from the front. And our poilus make bitter reflections as they mentally contrast their lives in the trenches, living in the mud and water in the midst of vermin, in the constant presence of wounds, blood, and death.

"Yonder at the front," says one poilu, "there is too much misery, and here at the rear there is too much happiness."

"Well, what of it? It has to be so."

"Yes, I know. But, just the same, there is too much misery; they are too happy. And then it is always the same ones. 'Tisn't right."

"Well, que veux tu!" says a third poilu.

"It can't be helped," adds a fourth. "Tant pis."

"Bah! Another week and probably we shall all have kicked the bucket!"

At another time the French trenches have been shelled. Two poilus manage to scramble out through the mud and water, trampling in the dark the dying and the dead. It is black as pitch except for the occasional rockets in the air. They wander through the drenching rain, falling into shell holes and climbing out again, until at last, completely exhausted, they sink upon the ground and remain there unconscious, dead to the world. Toward dawn they revive, the rain still coming down in torrents. One poilu says: "Voilà la guerre!"

"Yes," says the other, "that's war. It isn't anything else."

What they really mean is this is overpowering fatigue, water up to your waist, mud from head to foot, filth and stench, dead bodies floating in flooded trenches. It is all that and not fighting in the open, brilliant cavalry charges, and all the glamour of former battles.

"You remember," says one poilu, "when we went on furlough, that silly woman who exclaimed, 'What a fine sight it must be!'" "Fine?" answers the other, "Oh, hell, then! Why, a cow that is being led to the slaughterhouse might as well say, 'Fine!' He spat out some of the liquid mud running down his face and again said, "Fine? Hell, then! but it's got to be done!"

"Le Feu," after all, in spite of its realistic and, no doubt, truthful presentation of modern warfare in all its horror, will give but cold comfort to American pacifists, the kind who have "conscientious objections" to fighting; for they will notice that their French brethren, while deploring the stupidity and barbarity of war, take their places in the trenches by the side of the workman and the farmer, who, like themselves, are transformed into combatants. Paradoxical? Yes, "but it has got to be done!" Il le faut! R. L. S.

Trotzky's Bills.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In the advertisement of a forthcoming book by Leon Trotzky I notice this description of the author as "the man who six months ago was living in a Bronx tenement, who is now paying off old furniture bills and small loans made to send him back to Russia." This is very difficult to believe. How can a man think it is right to pay back the money loaned him to enable him to go to Russia, and at the same time refuse to pay back the larger sums of money loaned to his country to enable his people to have munitions, railroads, clothing, food, &c.? There must be some mistake. Or does honorable Mr. Trotzky argue that the money he borrowed was from poor folk and so to be paid back? But the money Russia borrowed was from rich Governments, and what matters it to the Bolsheviki if capitalists be not paid? The advertisement continues: "Trotzky tells in his book how he would make the world safe for democracy." Would it not be more to the point for the people of the United States to be told how to make the world safe from the Bolsheviki? ANNIE NATHAN MEYER.

Screened Coal to Save Cars.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In today's issue of THE TIMES there appeared a brief article on the coal situation signed by "Coal Man." This article was both interesting and instructive, but it seems to the writer that there has been omitted one of the vital points in the coal situation, which is that if they would send screened coal free from slate, dirt, and rubbish they would save from 15 to 30 per cent. not only in railroad transportation but also in distributing as well. In other words, the tonnage which it now requires 100 cars to move could be moved by 70 to 85 cars if the coal was screened and freed from slate and dirt. The whole question is to get coal, and to do so requires the highest efficiency from every standpoint. Certainly one way to get efficiency is to start at the source. The result would be to relieve the railroads, the distributers, and the consumers from a burden which at the present time is, to say the least, excessive. MORTON B. CROSS.

BARS PARTISAN CRITICISM OF WAR

Charles E. Hughes Declares This Is No Time for Partisanship of Any Sort.

SEES GREAT CRISIS AT HAND

Expects Soldiers to Return with New Ideas of What It Means to be in Every Sense a Man.

Charles E. Hughes, who spoke last night at the Aldine Club to the Men's Bible Class of the Fifth Avenue Baptist Church, over which he presided before John D. Rockefeller, Jr., succeeded him, discussed criticism of the conduct of the war and the probable attitude toward life and public affairs of American soldiers upon their return from victory.

"Whatever dispute our controversy there may be with respect to this or that detail, there is a very commendable spirit of unity in this country, a growing spirit of unity," he said. "We all should voice that spirit, in public and in private. This is no time for partisanship of any sort.

"If we don't win this war, it will make very little difference whether a man calls himself a Democrat or a Republican. As I have said, we are united by a common need, and we are inspired by a common determination. I believe in freedom of speech; I have never sympathized at all with the idea that even in time of war you could make democracy work without proper freedom of the organs of democratic expression.

"I believe in freedom of criticism, but every one who criticises should apply to his criticism the acid test of whether it helps to the vigorous prosecution of the war or retards it. If it helps, then the more of that criticism we have the better. If it embarrasses, then we want none of it, and the American people won't stand it. In other words, we are in a great crisis. I do not share at all the views of those who talk easily about the resources of this country, our potency, what we can do on land and sea, and the immense numbers that we can throw to the front.

"I believe the American people are a unit behind their Government in sustaining the President, asking only this: Everything that America has we want organized for this task. We want the greatest ability of a land of splendid talents devoted to this task. We want no thought of partisanship, we want no thought of division, we want no spectres of ambition, we want America altogether under the very best organization that the human mind can devise, with co-operation undiminished in any way by the unnecessary friction of a multiplication of unco-ordinated offices. We want the highest and best efficiency in order that America at the least cost and in the least time may win this war.

"You saw yesterday our future rulers, or some of them, walk down Fifth Avenue. When those boys come back from their experiences, that influence injected into American life, I cannot escape the belief, will be an abiding and a dominant influence. They will have faced the eternal verities. You may think that you meet the facts of life in business or in the courts, or in your offices, or in the editorial room, but I tell you these boys, taking their chance in the service of their country, are facing the elementary facts of existence; and when they come back you will have, in my judgment, to show them why with everything that you propose.

"They will have a grasp on facts. I believe they will be hospitable to many suggestions. I do not thing they are coming back a unit; I do not think they are coming back with a schedule of beliefs or a creed, but they are coming back, I think, with a point of view. I think they will have a great appreciation of the importance of training among our young men. I think they will have a new idea of what it means to be set up, to feel virile, and equal, and in every sense a man. I think, moreover, they will have a new appreciation of their country, coming back from a field of triumph where they have won a victory under the Stars and Stripes, the flag which they were compelled to serve, but have served loyally and faithfully and cheerfully. I believe they will come back with a new sense of patriotic obligation to their country, and I believe they will come back with a new appreciation of character; for, when all is said and done, the final test of democracy will be the test of the manhood of democracy, and that is the individual test in every individual life."

RECORD DEFICIENCY BILL.

Calls for More Than $1,500,000,000, Mostly for War Needs.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 5.—The largest deficiency appropriation bill in the history of the United States, carrying between $1,500,000,000 and $2,000,000,000, including huge sums for aviation and for the army and navy, was completed today by the House Appropriations Subcommittee. It will be reported tomorrow to the full committee.

Secretary Baker today asked Congress for $13,211,180 more for construction of army quartermaster storehouses in the Panama Canal Zone during the next fiscal year. Secretary Redfield asked for a deficiency appropriation of $150,000 to repair lighthouses destroyed on the Atlantic Coast by storms this Winter.

Construction of a north jetty at the bar and entrance of Umpqua River, Oregon, to cost $553,000, half of which would be paid by the Government, was recommended to Congress by the War Department.

ADDED TO GENERAL STAFF.

Four Army Officers to Aid Chief with Different Functions.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 5.—Four additional general officers were added to the General Staff of the army today as assistants to the Chief of Staff.

The functions of the staff will be distributed among these assistants, with authority to act in the name of the chief, to expedite decisions and action, as follows: Executive and operation, storage and traffic, purchases, war plans.

The effect of the war is to add Major Gen. Goethals and Brig. Gen. Palmer E. Pierce to the General Staff in their capacities, respectively, as Director of Traffic and Storage, and Director of Purchases.

The War Plans Section, including the War College, is headed by Brig. Gen. P. D. Lochridge. Major Gen. John Biddle, now acting for General Bliss as Chief of Staff, but soon to be relieved by Major Gen. Peyton March in that capacity, will head the Executive Section and be available as the immediate assistant of the chief.

TEN MONTHS OF WAR COST $7,100,000,000

Expenditures Increase and First Year May Show $10,000,000,000 Outlay, Half to Allies.

LOANS PAYING ONE-FIFTH

Army Has Called for $2,000,000,000—Expenditures Less Than Estimated, but Expected to Grow.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 5.—Ten months of the war have cost the United States about $7,100,000,000—at the rate of $710,000,000 a month, nearly $24,000,000 a day. More than half of this huge sum, or $4,121,000,000, has been handed as loans to the Allies. The balance, about $3,000,000,000, represents America's outlay for its own war purposes, exclusive of more than $600,000,000 for ordinary Governmental expenses.

The war's toll in money is increasing at the rate of more than $100,000,000 a month, and indications now are that the two remaining months of the nation's first year as a belligerent will run its war bill to nearly $10,000,000,000, of which $5,000,000,000 will be for allied loans and about the same amount for the Army, Navy, Shipping Board, and other war agencies.

These figures, compiled today from the latest available Treasury data, show that, although the country's expenditures are running into totals never before dreamed of, they are below official estimates made early in the war. Since war was declared, April 6, and the fiscal year for which estimates were made did not begin until July 1, it is difficult to compare precisely the actual war cost with the fiscal year estimates. Most of the war expenses have been incurred since July 1, however, and the total outlay since then has been $6,500,000,000, in a little more than seven months, as compared with estimates of $18,431,000,000 for the entire year.

Two factors are held mainly responsible for this difference. Officials of the War, Navy, and other Departments figured liberally on their expenditures originally, so as to allow a margin of financial safety. In addition, production of ships and war supplies has failed to develop as rapidly as had been planned. Officials point out also that as big contracts for ships and army materials fall due in the next few months the expenses may run up faster than is anticipated even now.

Four-fifths Paid from Loans.

Government borrowings on the two Liberty Loans have paid for four-fifths of the war's cost, and taxation and a few minor ordinary Government receipts for about one-fifth. The loan campaigns produced $5,792,000,000, while $1,250,000,000 came direct from the pockets of the people, and will not have to be repaid. Financial demands of the war in the next few months will be met in the same way—by another bond issue, and by taxes which will begin soon to roll in from the first War Tax act.

How America gradually got in her stride in the war is shown graphically by the monthly outpourings of funds since the day Congress authorized a declaration of war—ten months ago tomorrow. Before last April the monthly operating expenses were about $74,000,000, and the total annual expenses, including about $300,000,000 postal expenditures, which were paid back into the Treasury eventually, reached only a little more than $1,000,000,000.

Then came the war. In the first month, May, 1917, expenses jumped to $114,000,000 in June to $134,000,000 in July to $208,000,000, in August to $277,000,000, in September to $349,000,000. By October the monthly outlay had reached $462,000,000, November $512,000,000, December $611,000,000, and last month they were $715,000,000. In the first five days of this month the Government has spent $150,000,000.

These big sums did not include the allied loans. They have averaged $450,000,000 a month from the time the United States entered the common fight against Germany.

Spent $2,000,000,000 on Army.

The Army, Navy, and Shipping Boards alone have dipped into the financial war chest for more than 95 per cent. of the nation's fighting funds. Two-thirds of the $3,000,000,000 expense for war purposes in the last ten months have been for the military establishment. Up to last Dec. 1, the latest date on which precise figures for Government Department expenditures were available, the expense of the army—munitions, supplies, training camps, soldiers' pay, ordnance, and the cost of running the vast machinery—was $1,460,000,000. Since then, it is estimated, nearly $600,000,000 has been expended for the military forces, making a total of more than $2,000,000,000. The War Department's estimated expenditures for the year ending next June 30, figured last June, are $8,790,000,000, but officials now feel certain that actual expenditures will not reach this by a billion, or perhaps more.

The naval establishment has had $705,000,000 since the war began, according to unofficial computations on the basis of Treasury figures. Up to Dec. 1 the actual outlay was $513,000,000, and since then, it is estimated, about $192,000,000 has been expended for the naval fighting forces, new construction and other elements.

The Shipping Board has fallen furthest below its estimates, with payments since last April for ship and shipyard construction of more than $200,000,000. Up to December the Government's shipping program had cost only $123,000,000, but expenditures in the last two months increased by probably twice the former rate, and as ships are completed faster in the near future the Shipping Board's funds are expected to be depleted more rapidly.

PROMISES SAFETY ZONES.

Mayor Makes Tour of Congested Districts in Harlem.

In response to a request from members of the Harlem Board of Commerce Mayor Hylan made a tour of 125th Street yesterday for the purpose of studying the question of safety zones in that thoroughfare. Such zones have been urged by the board on the ground of numerous accidents.

After the trip the Mayor said: "Gentlemen, if this is all you want, I'll see to it that you get it. If you will see Commissioner Enright and place the matter before him, I will communicate with him."

The members of the Board of Commerce then spoke to the Mayor of their interest in the application of the Fifth Avenue Coach Company for a franchise to operate busses in Harlem, and advocated a crosstown bus route from Fort Lee Ferry through 125th Street to the New York, Westchester & Boston Railroad station. The Mayor thereupon stated that he intended to vote against the franchise application when it came up in the Board of Estimate meeting, but that he would vote in favor of a continuance of the present franchise until he had had time to consider more fully the question of Government ownership.

GIBBONS ASSAILS DRY FIGHT

Cardinal Says Prohibition Amendment Would Be a Calamity.

Special to The New York Times.

BALTIMORE, Md., Feb. 5.—Cardinal Gibbons today denounced the national prohibition amendment and declared that legislators of the States should not bow to the "fanaticism that seems to be ruling us in this respect." He said that some of the lawmakers seemed to be acting through cowardice in going against their strong convictions and giving their vote for the amendment when it was brought up.

"I feel," said the Cardinal, "that if the amendment is ratified there will spring up in all parts of the country illicit stills that will manufacture a low grade of whisky that will do more harm than the good grade that now is made is doing. Beer and light wines will pass out of existence, and the man who wants a drink will have to resort to the brand of intoxicant that is made surreptitiously, and we will know what effect that will have on the men of the country.

"It is argued by those favoring the passage of the amendment that liquor is injurious and therefore should be exterminated. There are many articles in the average drug store that are more injurious to the human system, many articles that are deadly if taken internally, yet we would not think of closing the drug stores.

"Liquor is an aid to health at times, as any reputable physician will tell you if you take the trouble to inquire.

"There is no greater advocate of temperance than myself. I have preached it on every occasion when I had the opportunity. I feel that this is the only way to overcome the evils of drink that do exist. I am certain that it cannot be done by the prohibition amendment, for there will be nearly as much liquor obtainable, but of a low and harmful grade.

"It will be a calamity if the amendment is adopted. It will be only a step for abridgment of the liberties that we enjoy. Those favoring the amendment will not be satisfied with this victory, and they will try to impose obnoxious laws upon us that will make our personal liberty worth very little."

DISCUSS COLUMBIA DEFICIT.

Trustees to Confer with Department Heads on Ways to Cut It.

Plans for the reorganization of the curriculum in Columbia University to reduce the estimated financial deficit of $50,000 in the academic year were considered yesterday by the Trustees. It was said that the members of the Committee on Education were conferring with the heads of schools and departments and that recommendations would be submitted at the next meeting of the Trustees.

Gifts of about $5,570 for the maintenance of the Columbia Service Bureau in Paris for the use of Columbia students and alumni attached to the American army were announced, as well as a gift of $3,000 from an anonymous donor for research work in war problems. A gift of $5,000 from Clarence Mackay for surgical research was announced, $1,000 from Alexander Smith Cochran for the Department of Indo-Iranian languages, and $1,000 from Mrs. James W. Gerard for the maintenance of the Marcus Daly scholarship in the School of Mines.

Appointments announced were: Professor Howard L. McBain to be administrative head of the Department of Public Law; Dr. Russell A. Hibbs of the University of Louisville to be Professor of Orthopedic Surgery in the College of Physicians and Surgeons, and Dr. Eugene W. Caldwell of Bellevue Hospital Medical College to take the newly established Chair of Roentgenology in the medical school.

BENEFIT FOR FOUNDLINGS.

Sisters of the Poor Face Deficit of $110,000 for Current Year.

A benefit will be held in the Manhattan Opera House next Sunday night for the New York Foundling Hospital, 175 East Sixty-eighth Street, which for many years has furnished a haven for abandoned infants and those whose mothers are destitute. There are thousands of successful men and women today who have passed through the institution since it was formed, in 1860, while for two generations it has cared as well for homeless mothers. At present the Sisters of the Poor, who are in charge, face a deficit of about $110,000 in the budget for the current year. The Board of Directors will make the benefit a prelude to an aggressive money-raising campaign. Cardinal Farley has promised to attend the performance, and George M. Cohan will sing one of his own songs.

It is explained by the Sisters that the wartime increase in the cost of all necessities is the great cause of the added deficit. The institution cares for several thousand children and several hundred destitute mothers each year. So many homes are disorganized because of the war and the breadwinners are absent from such a great number that there are less opportunities than in normal years to find suitable families willing to adopt children.

MISS RANDALL BETROTHED.

Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William B. Randall to Wed Vernon Radcliffe

Mr. and Mrs. William Bradley Randall of Pelham Manor, N. Y., announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Phoebe Randall, to Vernon Radcliffe, son of James K. Radcliffe of Brooklyn.

Miss Randall is a graduate of Miss Master's School at Dobbs Ferry. Her father is President of the Security Transfer and Registrar Company of 66 Broadway, and a member of the Chamber of Commerce.

Mr. Radcliffe was graduated from Amherst College, class of '11, afterward joining the editorial staff of The Sun. He is now of the Cinema Photographic Department of the United States Signal Corps, preparing at Columbia University to take their commissions.

The wedding is to take place shortly and will be attended only by the immediate families. No date has been set owing to the exigencies of wartime.

McCormick-Du Bois Engagement.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Howard MacDonald of 171 Ravine Avenue, Yonkers, announce the engagement of Mrs. MacDonald's daughter, Miss Theodora Eliot McCormick, to Delafield DuBois, son of Cornelius DuBois, of 47 West Seventy-sixth Street.

Miss McCormick is the daughter of the late Eliot McCormick. Mr. Du Bois is a graduate of Harvard, class of 1903. For several years he was Assistant Professor of Electrical Engineering at the University of Vermont, and is at present engaged in electrical research.

Ball in Aid of Mountaineers.

Military features will mark the Mardi Gras ball to be held on the night of Feb. 12 at the Ritz-Carlton for the relief of the families of the Southern mountaineers who are in service. It is being given under the auspices of the Southern Industrial Educational Association, of which Mrs. Algernon S. Sullivan is President. Mrs. James H. Dinwiddie of 18 East Sixtieth Street is Chairman of the Entertainment Committee.

Interborough Loses Suit.

ALBANY, N. Y., Feb. 5.—The Court of Appeals today affirmed the judgment of the Appellate Division in the case of the Interborough Rapid Transit Company against August Belmont. The effect of the decision is that Mr. Belmont and others did not enter into a conspiracy with the original Directors of the Interborough Company to issue stock to the amount of $1,250,000, which was divided among the alleged conspirators. Suit was brought to compel Mr. Belmont to account for that amount of stock issued to him and his associates, but the complaint was dismissed, and the dismissal was affirmed both by the Appellate Division and the Court of Appeals.

GIVES PRESIDENT FINAL SAY ON RATES

Amendment to Railroad Bill Subordinating Commission Is Adopted by House Committee.

OPPOSITE TO SENATE STAND

Committee of Upper House Had Voted to Make Commission Action Paramount.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 5.—To President Wilson supreme authority is given to fix railroad rates under the terms of an amendment to the Administration Railroad bill adopted today by the House Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce. The amendment, offered by Representative Thetus W. Sims, Chairman of the committee, was adopted by a vote of 8 to 5.

Another change made in the bill, which will be reported tomorrow, is the elimination of Section 9, which gave railroad employes the benefit of the Federal Compensation act.

Under the radical action taken by the House committee the Government would be placed in control of the biggest phase of the railroad situation. As reported by the Senate Committee on Interstate Commerce, the bill gave the President authority to fix freight rates, subject to appeal to the Interstate Commerce Commission. By the terms of the amendment adopted today the commission is deprived of powers conferred upon it by different acts of Congress. Constitutional lawyers in Congress contend that the amendment is unconstitutional, holding that the law giving the President authority to take over the railroads does not nullify any of the acts of Congress except the anti-pooling law.

This point was developed in the committee. Representative Sims insisted that the Administration desired a free hand in its operation of the railroads, and said that without the supreme rate-fixing power the Director General would be powerless properly to direct the carriers. Some of the committee members insisted that the amendment was clearly unconstitutional. They declared that it was useless to adopt it in committee, as Congress certainly would refuse to accept it. Republican members of the committee registered their opposition to the amendment on grounds of public policy, as well as the contention that it was unconstitutional.

Mr. Sims, while not saying so, gave the impression that the Administration proposed to increase railroad freight rates as soon as possible and that the amendment was sought so that there should be no delay. Members of the committee intimated that they had heard that the increases would be greatly in excess of the 15 per cent. advance for which the railroads have made application to the Interstate Commerce Commission.

The Sims amendement reads:

> Until and except so far as the President shall from time to time otherwise order the rates, fares, charges, classifications, regulations, and practices of carriers under Federal control shall during the period of Federal control continue to be and to be determined as hitherto. But when, in the judgment of the President, it is necessary in the public interst he may initiate rates, fares, charges, classifications, regulations, practices, or changes therein by filing the same with the Interstate Commerce Commission in such form and such times and upon such notice as he shall direct. All rates, fares, charges, classifications, regulations, and practices or changes therein so ordered shall be fair, reasonable, and just; and the Interstate Commerce Commission shall, upon complaint, make investigation and grant full hearing concerning the fairness, justice, and reasonableness of any rates, fares, charges, classifications, regulations, and practices or changes therein so ordered by the President and shall make report of its findings and recommendations concerning the same, which findings and recommendations shall be prima facie be taken as correct, to the President for such action as the President may deem required in the public interest.

Railroad employes who may be injured while the railroads are under Federal operation are not made subject to the Federal Compensation act as originally provided in the bill. By eliminating Section 9 the employes have action at common law against the carriers, the same as they had when the roads were under private management. This section was stricken from the bill at the behest of organized labor.

KINGS DEMOCRATS LOSE.

New Boundary Lines in Seventh and Eighth Districts Upheld.

In the Supreme Court, Brooklyn, yesterday Justice Lester W. Clark denied an application made on behalf of the Democratic General Committee of Kings County to have the special election for Representatives in the Seventh and Eighth Congress Districts held within the old boundary lines of those districts. The court, in effect, upholds the legislative apportionment of last year and decides that the election shall be held in the districts as newly laid out. As the special election has been set by the Governor for March 5, the case will be at once taken to the Appellate Division in Brooklyn and argument may be heard there tomorrow.

Extends Time for Auto Licenses.

Secretary of State Hugo announced yesterday that the time for the legal use of the new automobile license plate numbers had been extended to Feb. 11. Owing to the large number of applicants during the first days of the month, the time was originally extended from Feb. 1 to Feb. 5, yesterday. The police authorities have been notified that the old 1917 numbers may be recognized as legal until after Feb. 11. The extension of time was partially due, it was explained at the New York office of the Secretary of State, Broadway and Sixty-fifth Street, to the delay in the arrival of a sufficient number of 1918 plate numbers.

To Increase Scope of Inwood Home.

About 250 persons gathered yesterday at the home of A. Barton Hepburn, at 630 Park Avenue, to discuss plans for increasing the scope of the work of the Inwood Home for Wayward Girls. Chief Magistrate McAdoo presided, and among those present were six Judges of city courts. Among the speakers were Miss Helen Frazer of England and Mrs. Louis Watson, President of the Inwood Home Society. It was announced that the organization had opened a boarding home at 108 West Twelfth Street, for girls released from the Inwood Home.

Clyde Fitch Sale Begins.

There were returns of $8,828 for the benefit of the Actors' Fund of America from the first day's sale of the Clyde Fitch collection at the American Art Galleries yesterday afternoon. There was a good attendance. Daniel Frohman, President of the Actors' Fund, was in the audience for a time. J. M. Baxter, whose family now owns the Fitch place at Greenwich, was one of the purchasers paying some of the higher prices. Donn Barber bought one of the pictures sold at the end of the sale, and Mrs. William M. Chase made a number of purchases.

Salmagundi Housewarming.

More than five hundred persons last night attended the housewarming of the Salmagundi Club at 47 Fifth Avenue, the new quarters recently purchased. The occasion also served to open the exhibition of paintings of members, which will continue until Feb. 15. The pictures will be sold at auction at the conclusion of the exhibition. There are 220 paintings on view. The proceeds of the auction will go toward the organization's building fund.

KUEHLMANN IS TO WED HEIRESS TO MILLIONS

German Foreign Secretary Bethrothed to Frau von Friedlaenderfuld, Divorced from Briton.

LONDON, Feb. 5.—A dispatch to the Exchange Telegraph Company from Amsterdam says Dr. von Kühlmann, the German Secretary of Foreign Affairs, is bethrothed to Frau von Friedländerfuld, who, after Frau Bertha Krupp von Bohlen und Halbach, is reported to be the richest woman in Germany.

Frau von Friedländerfuld is the divorced wife of the Hon. John Mitford, son of the late Lord Redesdale of England. She is the only daughter of Privy Councilor Fritz von Friedländerfuld, the largest income-tax payer in Berlin, contributing to the Government every year $37,500 on a taxable fortune of $11,500,000. His daughter is expected to inherit in her own right $25,000,000.

The father is a self-made man. The son of a Jewish coal merchant named Friedlander, by his industry he made himself the dominating figure in the Berlin coal market. He married the daughter of a Jewish banker of Amsterdam named Fuld. Both were converted to Christianity. They were ennobled by the Kaiser in 1906 and took the family name of von Friedländerfuld.

The marriage of Fraulein Marie Annie von Friedländerfuld and the Hon. John Mitford attracted a great deal of notice on account of the wealth of the bride and the social prominence of both families. In June, 1914, they parted and the daughter of the Prussian coal baron returned to her home. Later the bride sought a divorce, the actual reasons for which were not made public. Whenever the "coal king" was asked in regard to them he would reply merely that his daughter "decided to leave her husband."

TO AVOID ICE FAMINE.

Extra Million Tons of Natural Ice Will Be Cut, Saving Ammonia.

An agreement reached yesterday by the producers of natural and artificial ice is expected by the officials of the Food and Fuel Administrations to remove the danger of an ice famine next Summer, which was likely to be caused by the intention of the Government to deprive the manufacturers of artificial ice of most of their ammonia supply. Some months ago, the Government made it known to the manufacturers that most of the ammonia production in the country would be commandeered for the making of shells, and since then, the possibility of an ice famine has caused considerable concern.

Many conferences have been held, and yesterday it was agreed that the producers of natural ice should continue to cut the Hudson River ice for about 1,000,000 tons more than usual. In former years the natural ice producers supplied about 25 per cent. of the total production, or 1,000,000 tons, the remainder, or 3,000,000 tons, being put on the market by the manufacturers of artificial ice. At the present time the natural ice dealers have on hand, already cut, an amount equal to their normal supply. Up to yesterday they were reluctant to cut any more for fear that the supply of manufactured ice would not be curtailed, and there would be no market for an excess of natural ice.

Wesley M. Oler, President of the Knickerbocker Ice Company, who was the Chairman of the committee which the ice dealers sent to Washington to confer with the Food Administration, presented the agreement yesterday as one which would act substantially as a contract between the individual manufacturer and Administrator Hoover. One clause in the agreement provides that a Conservation Committee should be nominated by the manufacturers and appointed by Mr. Hoover, with power to contract for the manufacturers the purchase of the surplus of natural ice not yet harvested.

The following men were nominated to serve on the Conservation Committee: W. M. Oler, J. W. Scott, W. H. Dohrman, John Michel, L. B. Schramm, Frederick Brown, A. J. Freeland, D. H. Elder, W. H. Klenke, Ralph Horton, and George Kinkle, Jr. From these seven men are to be selected by the vote of all the manufacturers.

Arthur Williams, Food Administrator for New York, expressed his admiration for the highly patriotic action and cooperation shown by the members of the ice trade in their efforts to prevent distress in New York City. The agreement they made, according to Mr. Williams, will not only prevent a famine, but will assist the Government materially in saving a maximum of ammonia and coal.

It was roughly estimated that 80,000 pounds of ammonia would be saved by the measure.

SOCIALISTS ATTACK MAYOR.

Alderman Wants to Know What He Has Done About Coal.

The Socialist members of the Board of Aldermen launched an attack yesterday upon Mayor Hylan for what they termed his dilatoriness in not taking action under the resolution passed by the board at a recent session empowering the Mayor to seize and sell such surplus coal as he might find within the city limits. The Tammany members rushed to the Mayor's defense and headed off a resolution introduced by Alderman Wolff of Brooklyn, a Socialist, demanding to know from the Mayor what he had done in reference to the resolution.

"We want to know," said Alderman Wolff, "if this measure was meant to furnish fuel to the people of the city or for the next Gubernatorial campaign."

BOWLES TO MANAGE YARDS.

Will Rush Shipbuilding at Hog Island, Newark, and Bristol, Penn.

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 5.—Rear Admiral Francis T. Bowles, Managing Director of the Emergency Fleet Corporation, came here from Washington today and assumed entire charge of the shipyard the Government is erecting at Hog Island, in the Delaware River below this city.

Admiral Bowles's authority also extends to the Merchants' Shipbuilding Company at Bristol, Penn., and the Submarine Boatyard at Newark, N. J. The Admiral in a statement made it plain that nothing would be permitted to stand in the way of getting the yards into effective operation in the shortest possible time.

Another Held for Halifax Disaster.

HALIFAX, N. S., Feb. 5.—The arrest yesterday of Pilot Frank MacKay and Captain Aime Lamodes of the French munition ship Mont Blanc, charged with manslaughter in connection with the explosion disaster which resulted from the collision between that ship and the Belgian relief ship Imo, was followed today by the arrest on the same charge of Commander Frederick W. Wyatt, chief examination officer of the port at the time.

Six Months for Overstaying Leave.

AYER, Mass., Feb. 5.—William C. Phillips of New Bedford, a member of the headquarters company of the 302d Infantry at Camp Devens, found guilty by court-martial of being absent without leave, was sentenced today to six months at hard labor and loss of two-thirds of his pay. Phillips was arrested at Elizabeth, N. J., for desertion, but the charge was amended by the court.

Benefit for Aero Squadron Feb. 11.

A vaudeville entertainment and dance will be given by the 654th Aero Squadron, formerly the 146th Aero Squadron, at Garden City, L. I., on Lincoln's Birthday eve, Feb. 11, at the Central Opera House, Sixty-seventh Street and Third Avenue.

The Friars' Club has promised to furnish its best talent. The money collected will be used for the mess fund. Admission will be $1.

H. E. HUNTINGTON SELLS MANY RARE DUPLICATES

More Than 200 Items from the Bridgewater Library Offered.

A seventh consignment of selections and duplicates from the library of Henry E. Huntington, including more than 200 items from the Bridgewater library, was put on sale at the Anderson Galleries yesterday.

SOUSA AUCTIONS HIS BATON.

Raises $120 for Naval Training Station Baseball Equipment.

CHICAGO, Feb. 5.—Lieutenant John Philip Sousa, bandmaster at the Great Lakes naval training station, offered his historic baton at auction for the benefit of the fund which is being raised to obtain baseball equipment for the sailors, and it was sold for $120, it became known today. The wand has been in the possession of the noted bandmaster for forty-eight years, having been presented to him in 1870 by members of the band of which he was then leader.

"Of course," said the bandmaster, "the baton has been invaluable because of its associations. But it is less important that I retain the baton as a relic of sentiment than that the jackies should have baseball suits. I shall feel lost without the wand, which was linked with reminiscences not to be inherited by its successor. I am glad to have been able to make such a sacrifice."

MRS. O'GRADY'S FIRST CASE.

Woman Police Deputy Arrests Cotton Man on Girl's Complaint.

On a summons issued at the instigation of Mrs. Ellen A. O'Grady, Fifth Deputy Police Commissioner, J. A. Taylor, 55 years old, who says he is a cotton statistician, living at Mountain Lake, N. J., was arraigned yesterday before Magistrate Ten Eyck in the Tombs Police Court on a charge preferred by Miss Eleanor Peterson, 25, a stenographer, of 106 Convent Avenue. Taylor was held in $500 bail for trial in Special Sessions.

Miss Peterson testified that on Jan. 25 she answered an advertisement for a stenographer and called the telephone number given in the newspaper. A woman's voice told her to go to Room 1537, 25 Broad Street. There she met Taylor, who employed her.

The second day she appeared for duty, the witness said, Taylor hugged and kissed her against her will. The case was laid before Mrs. O'Grady. This is her first case in court since her appointment as a Deputy Police Commissioner.

GERMAN REGISTRY DRAGS.

Only 5,236 Enemy Aliens Recorded by the Police Yesterday.

Up to 10 o'clock last night only 8,491 German subjects, who under the regulations promulgated by President Wilson must register with the police, had complied with the law. With two registration days gone this means that less than 10 per cent. of the German male population of the city has registered at the police stations. It is estimated that there are between 65,000 and 75,000 male Germans, of and above the age of 14 years, living in the five boroughs.

The report made public at Police Headquarters yesterday by Police Commissioner Enright, who is Chief Registrar for New York City, shows the following registration by boroughs yesterday:

Borough of Manhattan	3,851
Borough of Brooklyn	2,282
Borough of the Bronx	1,094
Borough of Queens	1,070
Borough of Richmond	194

That registration will have to greatly increase if the entire German population subject to registration is accounted for by 10 o'clock next Saturday was the statement made last night by both the Federal and city authorities. It is believed that the great mass of Germans are holding off until the last minute. Any German who fails to register in the time limit will find himself liable to arrest and internment.

Judge William Le Baron Putnam.

PORTLAND, Me., Feb. 5.—Judge William Le Baron Putnam, who retired last September as Judge of the United State Circuit Court of Appeals after a service of nearly thirty years, died at his home here today. He was a former Trustee of Bowdoin College, from which he was graduated in 1855.

Judge Putnam was 88 years of age. He was named by President Cleveland in 1887 as a Commissioner to negotiate with Great Britain in establishing and defining the rights of American fishermen in Canadian waters. In 1888 he was a candidate for Governor against Edwin C. Burleigh and received the largest vote ever cast for a Democratic candidate for that office in this State.

James Boyd Potter.

James Boyd Potter, a lawyer, who specialized in trade association work, died yesterday at his home in Bridgeton, N. J., from pneumonia. His offices were at 200 Fifth Avenue, this city. Mr. Potter was 45 years old. He was graduated from the Naval Academy in 1893, but after two years of service he resigned. He was admitted to the bar in New Jersey in 1896 and shortly afterward became Master in Chancery of the State. He had been Corporation Counsel of Bridgeton for eight years. He was actively identified with the work of the Anti-Tuberculosis League and with relief committees organized to care for the dependent families of enlisted men.

Marriage and death notices intended for insertion in The New York Times may be telephoned to 1000 Bryant.

BANISHED GRAND DUKE DEAD

Nicholas, Who Fell Into Disgrace 40 Years Ago, Dies at 68.

PETROGRAD, Feb. 2.—Former Grand Duke Nicholas Constantinovitch, nephew of Emperor Nicholas I. and son of the late Grand Duchess Josefowna, is dead at the age of 68 years at Tashkend, in Russian Turkestan.

Nicholas was banished to Tashkend by the Romanoff family more than forty years ago because of a love affair with an American actress then in Europe, and for whose sake Nicholas stole his mother's jewels and a number of precious stones from the Imperial chapel. He also gave her many confidential family papers. The jewels and papers were eventually recovered from the woman by the police. Eugene Schuyler, then United States Chargé d'Affaires in Russia, prevented the woman's deportation to Siberia, though she was expelled from Russia.

The Grand Duke was deprived of his military honors and sent to Turkestan. Czar Alexander III. refused to mitigate the punishment inflicted by his father, but the former Czar Nicholas in later years permitted him to retain his rank as a Knight of the Order of St. Andrew and to live in Balaklava with his wife and children on the understanding that he would make no attempt to quit the district. In recent years he took up his residence in a villa in the suburbs of Balaklava in the Crimea.

FAVORITES ADVANCE IN WOMEN'S TENNIS

Meet with Little Opposition in Invitation Tourney at Heights Casino.

KEEN STRUGGLES ON TODAY

Miss Bjurstedt to Play Champion of Norway and Miss Wood Meets Eleanor Goss.

There was little to ruffle the even tenor of the women's invitation tennis tournament at the Heights Casino in Brooklyn yesterday. Mrs. Johan Rogge, the latest Norse comet, who set tennis followers agog by her victory over Miss Marion Vanderhoef on the opening day, sat idly by yesterday and watched other tennis leaders win their way through the second round. For the most part they accomplished this with surprising ease. In fact there was not a single match of the afternoon which was carried beyond two sets, and in most instances the scores were onesided. For instance, Miss Molla Bjurstedt, the most prominent contender in the event, had nothing more than a practice spin in bringing about the downfall of Miss J. Brown, the latter winning only one game in each of the two sets.

The nearest approach to a surprise that the day furnished came when Mrs. de Forest Candee triumphed over Mrs. Theodore Cassebeer. The latter has been one of the formidable contestants in many tournaments hereabouts, and that Mrs. Candee could defeat her at 6—1, 6—3, was a bit unexpected. This was also true of the victory which Mrs. W. H. Pritchard scored over Miss Jane Rowson. The score of this match was 6—4, 6—3.

Others who came through the second round were Mrs. David C. Mills, Miss Eleanor Goss, Mrs. Rawson L. Wood, and Miss Florence Ballin. Mrs. Mills earned her advance by defeating Miss B. Harwood at 6—3, 6—4. Miss Goss defeated Mrs. Albert Humphries at 6—2, 6—3, and Mrs. Wood triumphed over Mrs. E. V. Lynch at 6—2, 6—0. The victory of Miss Ballin was secured at the expense of Mrs. Percy Wilbourn, who was forced to give way before a score of 6—1, 6—0.

With yesterday's rather tame matches out of the way, the stage is set for contests which should prove of high interest. Chief among the matches scheduled for this afternoon is that which will bring together the two Norse stars, Miss Molla Bjurstedt and Mrs. Johan Rogge. The latter made a remarkable showing against Miss Vanderhoef, but it is not generally believed that she is strong enough to defeat Miss Bjurstedt. Some four years ago they played in a match in Norway and Miss Bjurstedt won, but the latter freely admits that Mrs. Rogge is a much stronger player now. Another match which should supply keen tennis is that between Mrs. Rawson L. Wood and Miss Eleanor Goss. This contest will be between players who are to be partners in the doubles tournament. The same is true of Miss Bjurstedt and Mrs. Rogge. These two will combine as a Norse doubles team.

One match in doubles was played, Mrs. Wood and Miss Goss defeating Mrs. Lynch and Miss Adele Cragin at 6—1, 6—2. Mrs. Wood is one of the best doubles players in the metropolitan section, and it was evident that with Miss Goss as her partner a formidable combination had been established. Mrs. Lynch and Miss Cragin were hopelessly outclassed. Both Miss Goss and Mrs. Wood did some pretty playing at the net, and the sharp volleying broke up the game of the rival pair.

Mrs. Candee earned her singles victory over Mrs. Cassebeer by a determined net attack. She played a deep driving game that was under admirable control to draw her opponent out of position, and having forced an opening for an advance to the net she quickly finished off the points by sharp volleying from near the barrier.

The prettiest bit of net play during the day was supplied by Miss Goss. In defeating Mrs. Humphries she showed a finished game that defied every effort on the part of her opponent to stage a rally. She again showed a fondness for the position in the forecourt, and her volleying was a prime factor in closing out a point. Many times the volleys were cut off at such sharp angles that they were impossible to return. The passing strokes down the lines, especially of service, served to disrupt Mrs. Humphries's play.

The summaries:

Second Round—Miss Molla Bjurstedt defeated Miss J. C. Brown, 6—1, 6—1; Mrs. De Forest Candee defeated Mrs. Theodore Cassebeer, 6—1, 6—3; Mrs. David C. Mills defeated Miss B. Harwood, 6—3, 6—4; Miss Eleanor Goss defeated Mrs. Albert Humphries, 6—2, 6—3; Mrs. Rawson L. Wood defeated Mrs. E. V. Lynch, 6—2, 6—0; Miss Florence Ballin defeated Mrs. Percy Wilbourn, 6—1, 6—0; Mrs. W. H. Pritchard defeated Miss Jane Rowson, 6—4, 6—3.

GOLF MEDAL TO MRS. HURD.

Pittsburgh Expert Leads Field in Pinehurst Tourney.

Special to The New York Times.

PINEHURST, N. C., Feb. 5.—Mrs. Dorothy Campbell Hurd of Pittsburgh, medalist in the last national championship tournament, had the low score in the qualifying round of the St. Valentine tournament for women at Pinehurst today, finishing in 46, 48—94. She led the field by a margin of eight strokes. Miss Gertrude Thurston of West Hampton, L. I., was second, in 102, and was followed by Mrs. John D. Chapman of Greenwich, 104, and Miss Pauline Starrett of Baltusrol, 106.

The remaining four in the first eight are Mrs. George W. Statzell, Jr., of Philadelphia, Mrs. J. D. Armstrong of Buffalo, Mrs. David Carroll of New Rochelle, and Mrs. M. B. Byrnes of New York.

The following qualified for the second eight: Mrs. G. M. Howard of Halifax, Miss Gwendolyn Cummings of Brookline, Mrs. W. E. Truesdell of Brooklyn, Miss Katherine Lamb of Flushing, Miss Caroline Bogart of Elizabeth, Mrs. A. S. Higgins of St. Andrews, Mrs. J. A. Bausher of West Hampton, and Mrs. R. C. Blancke of Montclair.

WOMEN SKATERS SEEK TITLE

Miss Weld to Defend Laurels at Crystal Ice Rink Tonight.

The amateur figure skating championships will begin tonight at the Crystal Ice Rink with the events for women skaters. The championship last year was won by Miss Thersa Weld of Boston, who will defend her title this year's. Other prominent women skaters will be Mrs. S. R. Beresford, Miss Rosaline Dunn, Mrs. A. B. Riker, and Miss Ethel Bijur. The events for men skaters will be held tomorrow night. Among the entrants are Nat W. Niles and E. M. Howland of Boston and Sherwin C. Badger, a newcomer among the figure skaters. The novice contest and Hippodrom Challenge Cup contests will be held on Friday night.

The contests will be held under the auspices of the Jackson Haines Skating Club and under the sanction of the Eastern Skating Association. The judges will be Irving Brokaw, George H. Browne, and James A. Cruikshank.

Bayside Y. C. Dinner Tonight.

The annual dinner of the Bayside Yacht Club will be held tonight at the Hotel McAlpin, and it is expected that 300 persons, including members and guests, will be present. The dinner has been arranged with due reference to Food Conservator Hoover, and the price of the tickets was reduced 30 per cent.

CORBETT AT SULLIVAN BIER.

Conqueror of John L. Pays Last Tribute to Great Fighter.

BOSTON, Feb. 5.—Hundreds of the younger generation of Boston who had known John L. Sullivan only as the hero of innumerable legends will be able to tell their own offspring in the future that they had gazed upon the famous champion of the prize ring, whose funeral is to be held here tomorrow morning. All day and evening, notwithstanding the bitterest weather of the Winter, a stream of persons passed through the Crescent, on which the home of Sullivan's sister, Mrs. Annie Lennon, is situated, and where, in a coffin broad as a bed, the huge frame of the mighty fighter lay as if asleep. There were those who had lingered in sadness. Conspicuous among them was James J. Corbett, the man who wrested the American championship from Sullivan at New Orleans in 1892.

Corbett will be one of the pallbearers. Many other figures of national prominence in sport will attend the funeral tomorrow. Jake Kilrain, defeated by Sullivan at Richburg, Miss., in 1889, in the last and one of the greatest fights conducted according to London prize ring rules, will come in from Woburn to pay final tribute to his conqueror.

William Muldoon, the veteran trainer, will be an active pallbearer. The others are local men, friends of the champion and of his near relatives, who now include only his sister, her husband, and their eight children. William Kelly, a boy recently adopted by Sullivan, will be the only other close mourner. Sullivan will be buried beside his second wife in Calvary Cemetery. Requiem high mass will be celebrated at 10 A. M. in St. Paul's Church, Roxbury, by the pastor, the Rev. Peter C. Quinn. The church can hold only about 2,000, but the members of the family opposed the idea of a more public funeral.

The honorary pallbearers will be James M. Curley, now ex-Mayor of Bosotn; Corbett and Muldoon, Police Captain James P. Sullivan, Daniel J. McDonald, Edward M. Curran, William Hogarty, Clarence W. Rowley, John Mahoney, and Fire Chief William J. Gaffey.

The ushers are Henry Blackwell, John J. Mitchell, United States Marshal Daniel J. Sullivan, Lewis R. Sullivan, William L. Hogarty, Jack Sheehan, the boxing referee; Gerould Savage, Miah J. Murray, and John I. Taylor, former President of the Boston American League Baseball Club.

Telegrams regretting inability to be present were received by Mrs. Lennon today from Theodore Roosevelt, James E. Madden, the turfman; Jim O'Rourke, Charlie Comiskey, veteran baseball man, and hundreds of others.

BOXERS HELD RESPONSIBLE

Justice Hendrick Says Participants Are Liable Under Law.

The writ of habeas corpus obtained some time ago on behalf of Packey Agatto, a local preliminary boxer, was dismissed yesterday by Supreme Court Justice Hendrick. In dismissing the writ Justice Hendrick disregarded the defense set up by Agatto to the effect that while he had been a principal in a boxing exhibition he was unaware of the fact that an admission fee was charged to the bout, as the police complaint in the case alleged.

Justice Hendrick declared that it was immaterial whether or not participants in bouts were ignorant of the conditions under which they were held, and added that it is in the province of the Legislature to determine in the interest of the public what shall be permitted or forbidden. In dismissing the writ, he said:

"When a man participates in a sparring match it seems to me quite reasonable to presume that he must know whether or not he is giving the exhibition gratis or whether he receives compensation. If the latter, it is only a step to the presumption that he must know the sources from which the money is received. If there is no admission fee no offense is committed. If there is a fee then it is so nearly a part of the exhibition as to render the participants amenable to the penalty prescribed.

"I am of the opinion that it is competent for the Legislature in the exercise of police power to prohibit any act tending to a breach of the peace. Sparring in itself is not inherently wrong. The Legislature has not undertaken to declare it so. Nor is sparring given as an exhibition for money malum in se. But, in the judgment of the Legislature, it tends to corrupt the public morals, and for that reason it is prohibited. The act is prohibited because the Legislature believes public and private life is healthier without it. The act is punishable and not the intent. It is immaterial, therefore, whether or not participants are ignorant of the conditions under which the exhibitions are given.

"It is in the province of the Legislature to determine in the interest of the public what shall be permitted or forbidden."

Agatto was one of fourteen boxers, their managers, and officials of the Grupp's A. C. who were taken to court on Jan. 11 on summonses charging them with having violated Section 1710 of the Penal Code, which forbids boxing exhibitions at clubs where an admission fee is charged. The alleged violation occurred at a show held Dec. 14. Of the fourteen summonses obtained all but five were dismissed when the case came to court, and in the case of Agatto the club counsel obtained a writ of habeas corpus from Justice Hendrick. Five of the boxers were held for trial and released in bail of $500.

RICH STAKES FOR EMPIRE.

Four Races of $5,000 Each to be Run at Meeting.

Stake races with an aggregate value of $48,000 will be the attractions of the Summer meeting of the Empire City Racing Association at Yonkers, N. Y., during the later part of next July, according to the announcement made public yesterday. Four races of a value of $5,000 each are on the cards, each being an annual fixture at the track owned by James Butler, the turfman.

Once more the Empire City Handicap, an event of a mile and a furlong for three-year-olds and upward, will be worth at least $5,000 to the winner. The three-year-olds will have a rich purse again in the Empire City Derby, at a mile and a furlong. Two events for two-year-olds, the Whirl Stakes and the East View Stakes, will be worth $5,000. Altogether there are fifteen stakes to be decided, as follows:

For three-year-olds and upward, Empire City Handicap, Yonkers Handicap, Mount Vernon Handicap, Fleetwing Handicap, Melrose Selling Stakes, and Arrow Selling Stakes; for three-year-olds, Empire City Derby, Knickerbocker Handicap, and Tarrytown Selling Stakes; for two-year-olds, Whirl Stakes, East View Stakes, Wakefield Handicap, Demoiselle Stakes for fillies, Frivolity Selling Stakes, and Sprightful Selling Stakes.

REACH FINAL ROUND IN SQUASH TOURNEY

Fillmore Van S. Hyde and J. Victor Onatavia, Jr., Survive in National Tournament.

Play for the national squash tennis championship at the Harvard Club narrowed down to two contestants yesterday. Fillmore Van S. Hyde of the Harvard Club reached a final round bracket in the upper half of the draw when he defeated Alfred E. Ells by a score of 15—1, 15—4. In the lower half J. Victor Onatavia, Jr., came through to a final round bracket by vanquishing Ralph G. Coburn at 15—11, 15—10. The final round match between Hyde and Onatavia will be played tomorrow afternoon. These Harvard Club men have met in two tournaments this year, and in each instance Hyde has been the victor, and, judging from the excellence of his play against Ells yesterday, history may repeat itself.

The feature of the day was the sterling racquet work by Hyde. Ells is no mean opponent for any squash tennis expert, but with Hyde as a rival he seemed to be battling against inevitable defeat from the very outset. Hyde was at his best. His command of the court was such that Ells was forced to do the covering, and even though he did make some remarkable gets, he could not hold off his opponent, who marched through to victory in impressive manner.

In the first hand of the opening game Hyde by his masterly placing ran off six aces in a row, and eventually he was leading at 11—0. Ells then secured the lone point which was credited to his score in the game. It took Hyde only nine hands to run out the game.

The first game between Onatavia and Coburn was a nip-and-tuck struggle during the early stages, but at the close Onatavia by accurate placing to the back corners pulled away from his rival. In the second game Onatavia led at 10—3, when Coburn succeeded in making his play count heavily, and he pulled up so that he was only one point behind. This availed little, however, for Onatavia soon ran out the match.

C. C. N. Y. LOSES TICHINSKY.

Star Basket Ball Player Is About to Enter Business.

It was announced yesterday that Tichinsky, the star forward of the C. C. C. N. Y. basket ball team, was about to leave college to enter business. It is this well-known player who has been largely responsible for the success which has fallen to the City College five. His goal shooting has been a feature of all the contests in which he has participated, and the team will suffer greatly in its remaining games this season by his loss. Tichinsky shone first as a basket ball star while playing for De Witt Clinton High School. Early in 1915 he entered City College and played on the freshman team of that year.

COLUMBIA FIVE TRIUMPHS.

Gains One-Sided Verdict Over Manhattan at Basket Ball.

The Columbia University basket ball team took a one-sided contest from the Manhattan five at the Morningside Heights gymnasium last night by 38 to 16. Columbia never was troubled to pile up a large tally.

The lineup:

Columbia, (38.)	Position.	Manhattan, (16.)
Farer	L.F.	Winters
Kendl	R.F.	Keough
Alexander	C.	Howlett
Latour	L.G.	Retaleatto
Farrell	R.G.	Noonan

Goals from field—Farer, (5,) Alexander, (4,) Latour, (5,) Neuman, (3,) Winters, (5,) Retaleatto, Noonan. Goals from foul—Farrell, (4,) Winters, (2.) Substitutions—Neuman for Kendl, Aebil for Alexander, Vollmers for Latour, Weinstein for Farrell.

Crescent Five to Play Lehigh.

The Crescent basket ball team will play the Lehigh University team on Wednesday evening at the Crescent Athletic Club court. In defeating the West Point team Saturday the Crescents established a record in holding an opposing team scoreless for thirty-two minutes.

HUDSON REGATTA IN DANGER

Cornell Supports Penn in Stand Against Poughkeepsie Classic.

Sentiment against resuming the Intercollegiate Regatta at Poughkeepsie, which developed at Pennsylvania a short time ago, continues to grow, and it is now stated that Cornell takes the same attitude as Penn and that there will be no more racing between college crews on the Hudson even after the war. It develops that the Faculty opinion at both Pennsylvania and Cornell has been against the regatta for some time, but until now there has been no favorable opportunity of expressing such sentiments. If Cornell decides not to compete again at Poughkeepsie, the famous regatta is doomed, for the Ithacans have been the most prominent factors in the race since it was started in 1905.

While they have made no public statement on the question it is known that both Charles E. Courtney, the veteran Cornell coach, and Charles E. Treman, Chairman of the Cornell Rowing Committee, favor abandoning the regatta. It is stated that Cornell would have dropped out of the race last year if the Board of Stewards had not consented to reduce the distance of the race from four to three miles.

The trend of opinion, not only in undergraduate and rowing circles, but also among the Faculty, has been decidedly against Cornell's participation in the Poughkeepsie event. It is firmly believed among the rowing officials at Ithaca that when rowing returns to a normal basis after the war Cornell will be found scheduling dual regattas with Princeton, Yale, Harvard, Columbia, and Penn.

The rowing situation at Harvard is still unsettled, and, according to a statement given out by Fred W. Moore, graduate manager at Cambridge, the outlook for the Crimson taking part in any important regattas this Spring is dubious.

"If Yale and Princeton can boat a crew," said Mr. Moore, "and we have a squad of upper classmen here, there may be a possibility of a race with either college, or a triangular contest. My belief is, however, that the chances are three to one against it. Interest here in rowing is at the present negligible, and unless more enthusiasm is shown there may be no upper class rowing of any kind."

Harvard plans to arrange its freshman schedule as usual, winding up the season with a race with the Yale 1921 crew. The regular call for candidates will be issued next week with Coach Bill Haines in charge.

VICTORY FOR FENCERS' CLUB

Foilsmen Win Saltus Medals After Spirited Competition.

Captain Antonio Alonso of the Spanish Army, Emil Fuchs, and Herbert A. Hirsh, foilsmen representing the Fencers' Club, won the gold medals offered by J. Sanford Saltus in the foils competition at the Fencers' Club last night. The other two clubs in the event were the New York Athletic Club and the French Y. M. C. A. The Fencers' Club won eleven bouts during the round robin, and the New York Athletic Club and the French fencers each won five.

Captain Alonso did the best fencing of the tournament, and carried off five bouts, disposing of Dutcher, Nickerson, and Piene, the New York Athletic Club fencers, and Rosler and Stahl of the French Y. M. C. A. He did not meet Bresson, the other French foilsman.

The fencing last night was the most spirited that has been seen in any Amateur Fencers' League event this Winter. During one of the bouts Piene of the New York Athletic Club sustained a sprained wrist which seriously handicapped his work.

The French Y. M. C. A. fencers were Paul A. Rosler, Rudolph Stahl, and Louis Bresson, and the New York Athletic Club team was made up of Ray W. Dutcher, E. S. Nickerson, and J. C. Piene.

The summaries:

Alonso defeated Dutcher, 5—3; Nickerson, 5—4; Piene, 5—4; Rosler, 5—4; Stahl, 5—4.
Fuchs defeated Nickerson, 5—2; Piene, 5—2; Stahl, 5—4; Bresson, 5—0.
Hirsh defeated Dutcher, 5—3; Rosler, 5—4.
Bresson defeated Dutcher, 5—1; Nickerson, 5—4; Piene, 5—1.
Rosler defeated Piene, 5—3.
Stahl defeated Piene, 5—3.
Nickerson defeated Hirsh, 5—4; Rosler, 5—2; Stahl, 5—2.
Dutcher defeated Rosler, 5—4.
Piene defeated Hirsh, 5—3.

YANK STARS DELAY SIGNING CONTRACTS

Huggins Finds Few of Regulars Have Returned Documents to Club.

Secretary Harry Sparrow of the Yankees started for Florida yesterday where he will try to regain the health which he has lost during the last few weeks of New York's frigid weather. With Sparrow gone, Manager Miller Huggins took up the reins of government and discovered that he was without a ball club. The Yankee players have been more backward than ever before about returning their contracts, which were sent out several weeks ago, so the new Yankee leader spent the day sending out letters reminding his slumbering talent to get busy and invest a little in pen and ink and postage stamps.

Only a few of the players on the New York club have holdover contracts and, while there have been no definite cases of holdouts, no contracts have come in from the regular players and it is getting along close to the time when Huggins must complete his arrangements for the Spring training trips. Just why the Yankee players are so tardy about signing this season is difficult to understand. It is believed that some of them are waiting to see if they will be taken in the draft.

Huggins stated that the only contracts which have been returned were from a few of the recruit players, but no information has come from New York headquarters about the documents which were sent to the regular players. Manager Huggins stated that he was glad to get the services of Paddy O'Connor, to act as coach for the young pitchers. O'Connor takes the place which was held under the Donovan régime by Duke Farrell. O'Connor was coach for Huggins's players in St. Louis in 1914 and before that he did similar duty with the Pittsburgh club.

Sentiment among the other managers in the American League shows that they regard the Yankees a far more formidable club than last season. The acquisition of Huggins as manager and of Derrill Pratt at second base will work a great change in the club. Manager Clarence Rowland of the champion White Sox is of the opinion that the Yankees will be an important factor in the race this season.

"As far as the Yankees and the Browns are concerned," says Rowland, "both teams benefited in their recent trade. If Pratt considers the surroundings congenial at New York, as he says he will, the Yankees will be greatly strengthened. He was dissatisfied with the Browns, but should be useful to Huggins. I consider that both clubs were helped by that trade. It would not surprise me to see both Maisel and Cullop come back and do good work in St. Louis.

"The Yankees are likely to make a lot of trouble for the rest," continued Rowland. "The now have a finished infield with Pratt at second. Their outfield might be better, and undoubtedly will be before Huggins starts the season. Huggins is already very strong in pitchers and the Yanks will be a bunch to look out for."

BILLIARD DATES ANNOUNCED

Class B Championship to Begin Feb. 18 at New York A. C.

The national championship tournaments in Class B 18.2 balkline and in pocket billiards will be held at the New York Athletic Club this season. The arrangement was decided upon after a conference between officials of the National Association of Amateur Billiard Players and the Mercury Foot organization yesterday.

Rudolph P. Domschke, Chairman of the committee in charge of the Class B championship, stated that the tournament would begin on Monday, Feb. 18. Miss Clara C. Haywood, the Philadelphia girl billiard player, will not compete. She wrote to the committee that her exhibitions for the Ambulance Fund made it impossible for her to compete for the title this season. Entries have been received from Charles White, the champion; Julian Rice, the Columbia University student; David Weiner, George T. Moon, Jr., and if the grand average of Ferdinand A. Unger in the Class C championship tournament nearing its finish at Lawler Brothers, Brooklyn, entitles him to the privilege, he will enter.

The national pocket billiard championship date is not positively decided upon. Robert Weld, the Chairman of the committee, says it will probably begin Monday, March 11.

One instance of Statler Service to guests: You'll find a morning paper under your door when you get up—but you don't find a charge for it in the bill.

"The Complete Hotels"

Business men like to stop at Hotels Statler because these hotels are built and operated to give the traveler more than his money's worth.

The three big things that men most appreciate in hotels—comfort, and cleanliness, and courtesy—are things that Hotels Statler specialize in.

The complete Statler equipment provides all the comforts and conveniences you expect of a hotel of the first class—and some besides.

You have a good bed, in a clean, light, well-ventilated, pleasant room; a luxurious bath and shave in your own private bath-room. You don't have to ask for ice-water—a circulating system brings it to you; you don't have to ask for stationery—it's in your writing desk; a morning paper is left under your door before you wake (and there's no charge).

Such things as these indicate the complete, interested service you get at Hotels Statler—where "the guest is always right." Rates from $2 a day.

HOTELS STATLER
BUFFALO 450 Rooms 450 Baths
CLEVELAND 1000 Rooms 1000 Baths
DETROIT 1000 Rooms 1000 Baths
ST. LOUIS 650 Rooms 650 Baths

Building in New York

Hotel Pennsylvania, now building in New York, will be Statler-operated. With 2,200 rooms, 2,200 baths, it will be the largest hotel in the world, and will likewise set new high standards of convenience, service and distinction.

We Pay You While You Learn

We pay salaries of from $8.00 to $9.00 per week in Manhattan-Bronx and Brooklyn to students in our Operators' Training Department.

No fee or deposit of any kind is required and upon graduation we increase your salary and assign you as a junior operator in a light, clean, well ventilated central office having cozy sitting-rooms and modern dining-rooms, as near as possible to your home.

Telephone operators are well paid, well pleased, and well cared for, and render a highly important service to the public.

These positions are permanent, frequent increases in salary are given accoring to ability, and the opportunities for promotion to higher positions with larger salaries are excellent.

A number of young women, between 16 and 23 years of age, are now required for this work.

Apply between the hours of 9 a. m. and 5 p. m. at the address given below which is nearest your home.

NOTICE.

To General Unsecured Creditors of Missouri, Kansas & Texas Railway Company:

On January 17, 1918, the Hon. William C. Hook, United States Circuit Judge for the Eastern Division, Eastern District of Missouri, entered an order in the Receivership Proceedings now pending in said Court against Missouri, Kansas & Texas Railway Company in that certain cause entitled:

IN THE DISTRICT COURT OF THE UNITED STATES, WITHIN AND FOR THE EASTERN DISTRICT OF MISSOURI, EASTERN DIVISION.

THE CENTRAL TRUST COMPANY OF NEW YORK, Plaintiff, vs. MISSOURI, KANSAS & TEXAS RAILWAY COMPANY, Defendant.—In Equity Consolidated Cause No. 4564, extending until April 1, 1918, the time for filing general unsecured claims of creditors and referring same to the undersigned Special Master for hearing, determination and classification, as therein prescribed and as prescribed by said Court's order of November 17, 1917, with respect to the filing of such claims. The following is a copy of said order:

"ORDER

"Extending Time to File Claims with Special Master to April 1, 1918.

"Referring to the order of this Court heretofore made and entered in this cause on November 17, 1917, entitled, 'Order fixing time for filing claims and referring same to Special Master,' for cause shown it is hereby "Ordered that the time for filing claims pursuant to said order be and it hereby is extended to April 1, 1918, and that those having claims against the defendant Missouri, Kansas & Texas Railway Company, may file statements thereof in the manner prescribed in said order, with James A. Seddon, Special Master, at his office, Room 902 Central National Bank Building, Seventh and Olive Streets, in the City of Saint Louis, State of Missouri, on or before said date; and in case such claims or any of them shall not be so filed on or prior to said date, the holder or holders of such claim or claims not so filed (other than the holders of bonds or other obligations payable by said defendant Railway Company and secured by mortgage or pledge of collateral, the respective trustees of mortgages or trust indentures given to secure payment of the same, and the holders of such claims as may have been approved for payment by orders herein) shall be barred from sharing in the benefit of the distribution of the moneys and proceeds of the property of said defendant Railway Company that now are or hereafter shall be in the hands of the Receiver in this cause, and from sharing or participating in the benefits of any distribution of the proceeds arising from the sale of said railroad and other property, if such sale shall hereafter be adjudged and decreed in this cause; and it is hereby

"Further ordered that the time to file answers to the claims of creditors heretofore filed or which may be filed with the Special Master on or before April 1, 1918, shall be and the same is hereby extended until May 1, 1918. The Special Master herein shall cause this order to be published forthwith, once each week, for four successive weeks in a newspaper of general circulation published in the City of St. Louis, State of Missouri; in a newspaper of general circulation published in the City of Kansas City, State of Missouri; in a newspaper of general circulation published in the City of Topeka, State of Kansas; in a newspaper of general circulation published in the City of Oklahoma City, State of Oklahoma; and in a newspaper of general circulation published in the City of New York, State of New York.

COMMERCIAL PAPER.

Yesterday ....5¾@5⅞ p. c. for the best names
Saturday .....5¾@5⅞ " " "

The quotations are for six months' paper.

Don't Lose Business by It.

The prevailing opinion among cloak and suit manufacturers, on the effect of the Monday closing on business, seems to be that it has not held up the placing of orders the least bit. It appears to be pretty generally agreed that as much business is placed during the five remaining days of the week as there would have been in six. "Our sales," said one local manufacturer, "have been improving at about the same ratio as they were before the Monday closing order went into effect. And, compared with last year week for week, we are not falling behind one particle. In fact, last week we went ahead of the same period a year ago."

Wherefore of Sports Clothes.

One reason given for the greatly increased demand for sports clothes for women is that women are becoming more active every year in outdoor sports of all sorts. "For instance," said one manufacturer, "my wife has become an ardent golf and tennis 'fan.' She has to have clothes suitable for each purpose. But who ever heard of women twenty years ago playing either of these games to any extent? The whole thing has become so much in vogue that now even those women who do not actually go in for outdoor sports dress as though they do. No woman's wardrobe is complete nowadays without an array of sports clothes as extensive as her pocketbook will permit."

A Bit About Prices.

A local gray goods man, in a spare moment yesterday, took time to compare current prices for gray goods with those that prevailed a year ago. To his surprise he found that the 1917 price for spot 39-inch 80 squares—10 cents—is the present quotation on 27-inch 64-60s for similar delivery. The latter construction was then quoted at 5⅛ cents, which is an eighth of a cent higher than the figure considered normal on 38½-inch 64-60s before the war. Spot middling uplands cotton a year ago yesterday was quoted at the "high" price of 15.80 cents a pound.

Burlap Importers Are Worried.

In the absence of active trading, local burlap importers in this city had plenty of time yesterday to ponder over the possibility of burlaps being placed on the Government's list of imports not essential to the winning of the war. A place on this list, it appears from published reports, means an indefinite import embargo, due to the need of more shipping for war purposes. With the trade already in a more or less demoralized state as a result of the present scarcity of freight space and various embargoes, the state of mind of importers was none too cheerful. Prices were nominally unchanged for spot goods on the bases of 17@17¼ cents for eight-ounce 40s and 21 cents for 10½-ounce goods of the same width.

Llama Wool Coats Liked.

A large manufacturer of men's clothing with offices in this city is producing a line of Spring coats made from llama wool. These new garments are said to have proved unusually popular with buyers generally, and the original offering was quickly exhausted. The llama wool fabric used is very soft and is said to have excellent wearing qualities, being one of the highest grades of wool obtainable. It has been used heretofore in the making of automobile robes, and this is said to be the first time it has been employed extensively in clothing. The colors most sought in the new llama wool garments are tan, brown, green, burgundy, and chantilly.

Would Educate Public.

"A campaign should be inaugurated," said a prominent manufacturer of men's clothing in this city, "having for its purpose the education of the public on the relative values of all wool and wool and cotton mixed fabrics. A material which has in it about 20 per cent. of cotton, if properly manipulated, is more durable and a better all-round cloth than one which is all wool but composed partly of shoddy. English mills make extensive use of cotton in many of their best fabrics because of this fact. The greater part of the buying public, however, does not realize this. The moment you speak of a 20 per cent. cotton fabric they think it is cheap or poor material. They should be brought to know that it is not."

Export License Question Settled.

It will be possible henceforth for cloak and suit manufacturers to obtain licenses on export orders for goods composed entirely or partly of wool, within twenty-four hours after making application. Through the efforts of Eugene L. Lezinsky, general manager of the Cloak, Suit and Skirt Manufacturers' Protective Association, the War Trade Board has agreed that hereafter it will not be necessary for all such applications to be forwarded to Washington, but that they may be handled here in the local offices of that board in 45 Broadway. Mr. F. K. Nixon of the Bureau of Exports, in his letter to Mr. Lezinsky announcing this decision, expressed the board's appreciation of the association's hearty co-operation in securing the information desired with all applications in the past, and said that if applications sent to 45 Broadway are handled in the same way there will not be any delays.

It begins to look as if some of the country's Beau Brummels are going to run short of silk socks before the Summer is over. Thinking that the number of men now in Government service would lessen the call for such wares, more than one manufacturer turned his machines over to women's goods, which are also scarce. However, they now find they have played the wrong card and are getting daily S O S calls from the jobbers. The jobbers in turn are getting them from the retail trade, who are at the threshold of their Spring season with a smaller assortment of silk half-hose on their shelves than at any other time since the consumer demand for them became general. According to a well-known salesman, the S O S in this case means "Send Our Socks."

Crude Rubber Prices Improve.

Crude rubber prices picked up a little in this market yesterday as a result of an improved demand on the part of dealers. Manufacturers continued to mark time, so far as important purchases were concerned. Spot prices on the Brazilian rubbers included 58@58½ cents for up-river fine, 37½ cents for up-river coarse and 37 cents for upper Caucho ball. These prices are lower than those asked at Para for the forward positions, where prices are quoted on the basis of 61 cents for up-river fine. Spot first latex was held at 52@52½ cents, with smoked sheets at 53 cents, due to its scarcity here. For April-September shipments they were quoted at 51½ and 50 cents, respectively.

Gray Goods Sales Were Fair.

Gray goods inquiries were numerous enough in this market yesterday, but business was again handicapped by the desire of buyers to get deliveries that the mills could not supply. Some printcloth sales were put through, however, including spot 39-inch 68-72s at 14¾ cents. Most mills are now asking an eighth more for spots and nearbys, but it is still possible to buy contracts as low as 14½ cents. Spot sales of 38½-inch 64-60s were told of at 13 cents. Trading in fine gray cottons appeared to have slumped, and the demand for sheetings, except for nearby goods, also could have been larger. Among the sales of sheetings were 48-square, four-yards at 16¼ cents for delivery in June and July. Spot prices for printcloths ran this way at the close:

39-inch, 80-80s	16¾c	38½-inch, 64-60s	13c
39-inch, 72-76s	15¼c	38½-inch, 64-56s	12¼c
39-inch, 68-72s	*14¾c	38½-inch, 60-52s	12c
39-inch, 56-44s	10¾c	38½-inch, 60-48s	11¼c
38½-inch, 64-64s	13½c	27-inch, 64-60s	10c

BUSH NAMES PORT AIDS.

Chief of Embarkation Takes Charge of Supply Shipments.

Irving T. Bush, who was recently appointed Chief of Embarkation for the Port of New York by Quartermaster General Goethals, took charge yesterday with a civilian staff of all shipments of supplies through this port for the American forces. It was announced that these duties were placed in the hands of civilians in order to get the benefit of the experience of able shipping men and to release much-needed army officers for other duties.

A statement by the War Board for the Port of New York said:

"The first step in the reorganization of the port movement was the appointment of Joseph T. Lilly of Norton, Lilly & Co., steamship agency, to the position of Director of Embarkation at Washington, in general charge of embarkation at all ports. Mr. Lilly immediately appointed Mr. Bush as Chief of Embarkation for New York. Mr. Bush has appointed W. J. Edwards of Norton, Lilly & Co. as Asistant Chief, in charge of the steamship division, and H. G. Simonds, Vice President of the Bush Terminal Company, in charge of the warehouse division. Charles H. Ketcham, formerly terminal agent of the Lackawanna Railroad, is in charge of the railroad division, and W. F. Hersey, formerly in charge of the Cunard piers, is to be General Superintendent of Piers and the loading of ships, with P. B. Blanchard of Turner & Blanchard, contracting stevedores, as assistant.

"Mr. Bush has requested T. V. O'Connor, President of the International Association of Longshoremen, to take charge of the employment and labor division, which will control the employment of the thousands of workers in all departments of the Embarkation Service. Mr. Bush has also appointed as executive assistants to him J. O. Hammit, formerly head of the Fire Prevention Bureau, and Lieut. Philip L. Gerhardt, formerly traffic manager of the Bush Terminal Company."

The work of the War Board and Embarkation Service will occupy the building at 45 Broadway, except the first floor, now occupied by the War Trade Board.

PAPERMAKERS IN SESSION.

Schedule of Wages Will Be Considered at Conference Today.

All branches of the paper manufacturing industry were represented at the annual sectional meetings of the trade yesterday at the Waldorf-Astoria in connection with the annual conventions of the American Paper and Pulp Association and the National Paper Trade Association. Organizations affiliated with the American Paper and Pulp Association meeting yesterday included the Glazed and Fancy Paper, Tissue Paper, Cover Paper, Vegetable Parchment, and Technical Divisions. The Coarse Paper division of the National Paper Trade Association also met. The fine paper division of the National Association holds its annual session today, followed by the annual convention of the entire association.

A committee representing the paper and pulp manufacturers will confer at the Hotel Astor today with a committee from the various labor unions relative to fixing a schedule of wages for the year beginning May 1. The workers are demanding increased compensation under the proposed new schedule. Some of the manufacturers, it was said, had made voluntary advances in pay.

WESTERN PACIFIC DIVIDEND.

Initial Disbursement of 6 Per Cent. Voted on Preferred Stock.

The Western Pacific Railroad Corporation declared yesterday an initial dividend of 6 per cent. on the $27,500,000 preferred stock, due in quarterly installments beginning Feb. 20. The second payment of 1½ per cent. will be made April 1 and the others of equal amount on July 1 and Oct. 1.

The corporation is holding company for the Western Pacific Railroad, owning all of the latter's $75,000,000 stock. On this stock a dividend of approximately $2.000,000 was paid last December and from this return into the corporation's treasury the preferred stock dividend will be paid.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

Prices React in Many Issues and Activity Declines—Call Money Advances.

The advance maintained through several successive sessions on the Stock Exchange was interrupted yesterday by a moderate reaction which left the list irregular, but with most stocks showing moderate losses for the day. There was a marked contraction in activity, a not unnatural reflection of the change in the news on which the spirited advance was based. Notwithstanding warnings against placing too much credence in the accounts of the labor troubles in Germany, traders chose to appear disappointed at the comparative ease with which the military authorities seem to have restored at least a semblance of order. What promised to be a very helpful factor, the prospect of an abandonment of the Monday labor holidays, was nullified by the return of cold weather and the practical agreement indicated in the early dispatches that it would be necessary to continue to conserve coal in this way for at least the next few Mondays. The return of the old difficulty over railroad wages, heightened this time by the obvious necessity for increased wages in nearly every line to meet the unprecedented advance in living costs, was also an influence against a continuation of the upward movement.

The attention of traders was largely occupied yesterday by the performance of a few issues in which a strong speculative following has been built up, among them General Motors and Distillers. The strength in the former has been due in no small measure to the close control which a small group of capitalists has over a large proportion of the floating supply of the stock, a control which has been used to force short covering at the will of the managers of the new campaign. Other motor shares were sympathetically strong yesterday. Steel reacted, as did the Marine issues and a number of the equipment stocks.

Peace talk has been lulled by the consistent refusal of the allied leaders to be inveigled into making serious counter-proposals to the indirect tenders launched at Brest-Litovsk. The huge cost of this country's war burden has not yet reached the totals for which preparation was made some months ago. Estimates made the total outlay for the United States for the first ten months approximately $7,100,000,000, or at the rate of $24,000,000 per diem, but more than half this sum has been accounted for by loans made to the Allies. With the current rate of increase in expenditures it appears likely that this nation will round out its first year of war at a total cost of nearly $10,000,000,000. Call money was firmer yesterday, most of the day's loans commanding 5½ per cent. A new offering of British Treasury bills was made at 5¾ per cent.

LONDON MARKET CHEERFUL.

Shipping Shares Are Strong Features on Amalgamation Rumors.

LONDON, Feb. 5.—The stock market was quietly cheerful today, gilt-edged securities picking up a fraction now that the sales of war bonds are decreasing.

Shipping shares were strong features on amalgamation rumors, and Egyptian securities, especially oils, were prominent. English tin shares had a good tone and home rails were firm, Hull and Barnsley Railway shares advancing four points on the declaration of an increased dividend.

Money was in better supply and discount rates were quiet.

Trading Quiet on Paris Bourse.

PARIS, Feb. 5.—Trading was quiet on the Bourse today. Three per cent. rentes, 57 francs 50 centimes for cash. Exchange on London, 27 francs 16 centimes. Five per cent. loan, 87 francs 55 centimes.

British Bills Offered Again.

J. P. Morgan & Co. announced yesterday that they had resumed offering British Treasury ninety-day discount bills, after suspending weekly sales for a fortnight. While heretofore the bankers have disposed of approximately $15,000,000 a week, it was said yesterday that this week the amount was considerably less. The rate fixed is 5¾ per cent. compared with 6 per cent. that has been paid in recent months. On Feb. 18 there will mature approximately $15,000,000 of bills dated Nov. 20.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

New York's Chief Bank Account.

Bankers appeared to be very much interested in the announcement that Alfred J. Johnson, the new City Chamberlain, had selected the Chase National Bank as the city's chief bank, and had withdrawn the bulk of the deposit held with the National City Bank, which for a great many years has held the honor of being the city's principal depository. The City of New York maintains accounts with a great many banks and trust companies, and in recent years the practice has been for the Chamberlain to divide them into classes, active and inactive, the rate of interest paid on the former being approximately 2 per cent., and on the latter about 3 per cent. Not all institutions pay the city the same rate. The position occupied by the National City Bank until Mr. Johnson decided to make the change gave it the major portion of the city's deposits, and it was the city's principal checking account. The balance usually amounted to about $5,000,000. The designation of chief depository does not only add to the prestige of the Chase National Bank, but it gives it a profitable piece of business. Officials of the National City declined yesterday to make any extensive comment on the action of Chamberlain Johnson, excepting that they expressed regret that they had lost the account. At the Chase National Bank it was said that its terms were exactly the same as that of the National City, namely, it paid 2 per cent. on active accounts and 3 per cent. for inactive accounts. In some banking quarters there was a disposition to credit the shifting of bank accounts to "politics," although bankers were reluctant to discuss the subject.

City to Sell Revenue Bills.

Deputy Controller Philbin of the City of New York will receive tenders tomorrow for $20,000,000 of revenue bills. About two weeks ago the city sold $5,000,000 of bills on the average basis of 4.52 per cent., the subscriptions totaling thirty-three in number and aggregating $45,635,000 in amount. Of the $20,000,000 of bills to be sold tomorrow, $10,000,000 will mature May 10 and $10,000,000 on May 20.

Price-Fixing and Coal Quality.

Ever since coal prices were fixed by the Fuel Administration, long before the coal shortage became acute, there have been complaints of the poor quality of the coal delivered, and since the shortage these complaints have been getting more strenuous. A big coal man was asked the reason back of this yesterday, and he answered: "Well, for instance, we have two coal properties. One produces an unusually good quality of coal, of high heating value, with very little slag or sulphur. Before they fixed prices we commanded about 40 cents a ton above run-of-mine prices for this coal, which we sold, on tests of its heating value, to public service corporations and other institutions which were willing to pay extra for quality. Our other mine produced a much inferior grade of coal, which, however, was easier to mine. But the Fuel Administration, in fixing prices, said in effect, 'Coal is coal,' and fixed the same price for both mines. What's the answer? Naturally we are tempted to concentrate our surplus producing power on the poorer mine. Probably there are plenty of other coal men in exactly the same situation."

Price-Fixing and Cotton Grading.

As an example of the difficulties in a price-fixing program, similar to those already experienced due to the Fuel Administration's disregard of the immense amount of painstaking and scientific work which has been done in recent years in testing and grading coal, a prominent cotton broker yesterday remarked that one Texas cotton firm of his acquaintance has established no less than eighty-seven marks of cotton, subdividing each of the known and standard cotton grades, and carrying, for example, five distinct qualities of middling upland. Moreover, this firm's elaborate grading is not simply theoretical, but is used by its customers, who pay different prices for the various grades, and are willing to pay a fraction above the market for the precise quality best adapted to their peculiar needs. Any Government scheme of price-fixing must either be refined down to this elaborate system, the product of years of experience, or else it will upset the whole affair, and deprive the firm of the fruits of their long and painstaking study of their customers' requirements.

Supply and Demand in Cotton.

Many of the old hands in the cotton trade have recently been comparing the present course of events in the cotton market to the grain market on the Chicago Board of Trade last Summer, just before the Food Aministration compelled the futures market to go out of business. At that time, as at present on the local cotton market, there was a stubborn bear interest which, basing its action solely on the belief, regardless of the unprecedented situation, that prices were too high, persistently sold the market down. But then in grain as now in cotton, the heavy short offerings were being absorbed, not by long speculators, but by the trade demand, and presently those short contracts had to be met. The result in grain was to put wheat up over $3 a bushel, and bring about the closing of the market. Of course, the cotton trade is at present affected by factors, such as the cut-down in production, the transportation problem, and the purely speculative holdings on the part of the farmers, which did not affect the grain trade.

Steel Stock Subscriptions.

The Steel Corporation did not end on Jan. 31 the period during which employes might subscribe to common stock at $92 a share. The lists will be open until Feb. 15. Presumably the management took the attitude that the adverse weather of January and the unsettlement of manufacturing due to the Fuel Administration's order caused the workers to deliberate longer over their subscriptions than would otherwise have been the case.

January Copper Production.

The January production report of the Anaconda Copper Mining Company, issued yesterday, showed the effect of favorable weather conditions, so favorable, in fact, that Montana farmers are reported to have done some of the Spring plowing in a temperature of 54 degrees. The output was 24,984,000 pounds, a gain of 2,384,000 pounds over the December total. That some of the other important concerns did not secure as good results in January as December is displayed in this table:

	January.	December.
Anaconda	24,984,000	22,600,000
Utah	13,500,000	16,230,000
Chino	7,590,244	8,094,122
Ray Consolidated	7,571,000	7,442,000
Nevada Consolidated	6,500,000	6,500,000
Miami	4,709,483	4,931,450

The statements of the Utah, Chino, Ray and Nevada Consolidated Companies contain preliminary figures. With all copper producing concerns straining every nerve to increase production, expansion of operations is hoped for by the large companies with the coming of Spring.

The Important Position of the United States among the nations of the world is indicated by comparing of the wealth and economic strength of this country with other nations. There is every reason to believe that investors in sound American securities today can look to the future with a greater degree of confidence than can investors of any of the other strong nations.

$275,000,000 More was loaned to Great Britain by the United States last week to enable her to purchase war supplies in this country. America has now loaned its Allies about 4 billion dollars. Thus the bonds of our Allies — England and France—are backed by our own Government. Investments in these bonds now yield from

5¼% to almost 10%

CASES HELP SOLVE INCOME TAX PUZZLE

Examples Typical of Law's Application to Excess Profits Are Submitted.

DATA GIVEN TO COLLECTORS

Blanks Long Overdue Have Not Yet Been Received Here, but May Arrive Today.

The Treasury Department, in order to elucidate some of the knotty problems connected with the assessment of the war excess profits tax, has submitted to Collectors of the Internal Revenue, some examples typical of the application of the law to various individual cases. The following two illustrations relate to the method to be followed in determining the tax on net income of Class B:

(1) A corporation has a capital of $100,000, pre-war earnings of 7 per cent., and a net income for the taxable year of $75,000.

The deduction allowed will be 7 per cent. of the capital, or $7,000, plus $3,000 specific deduction, a total of $10,000.

The amount of the net income taxable at each rate will be as follows:

In excess of the deduction and not in excess of 15 per cent. of the capital (rate, 20 per cent.)	$5,000
In excess of 15 per cent. of the capital and not in excess of 20 per cent. thereof (rate, 25 per cent.)	5,000
In excess of 20 per cent. of the capital and not in excess of 25 per cent. thereof (rate, 35 per cent.)	5,000
In excess of 25 per cent. of the capital and not in excess of 33 per cent. thereof (rate, 45 per cent.)	8,000
In excess of 33 per cent. of the capital (rate, 60 per cent.)	42,000

The tax would then be computed as follows:

20 per cent. of $5,000	$1,000
25 per cent. of $5,000	1,250
35 per cent. of $5,000	1,750
45 per cent. of $8,000	3,600
60 per cent of $42,000	25,200
Total tax	$32,800

(2) An individual or partnership has a capital of $100,000, pre-war earnings of 8 per cent., and a net income for the taxable year of $22,500.

The deduction allowed will be 8 per cent. of the capital, or $8,000, plus $6,000 specific deduction, a total of $14,000.

The amount of the net income taxable at each rate will be as follows:

In excess of the deduction and not in excess of 15 per cent. of the capital (rate, 20 per cent.)	$1,000
In excess of 15 per cent. of the capital and not in excess of 20 per cent. thereof (rate, 25 per cent.)	5,000
In excess of 20 per cent. of the capital and not in excess of 25 per cent. thereof (rate, 35 per cent.)	2,500

The tax would then be computed as follows:

20 per cent. of $1,000	$200
25 per cent. of $5,000	1,250
35 per cent. of $2,500	875
Total tax	$2,325

Deductions Exceeding 15 Per Cent.

The subject of deductions exceeding 15 per cent. of invested capital is treated in this way:

(1) A corporation has a capital of $9,000; pre-war earnings of 9 per cent.; and a net income for the taxable year of $10,000.

The deduction allowed will be 9 per cent. of the capital, of $810, plus $3,000 specific deduction, a total of $3,810.

The amount of the net income in each bracket will be as follows:

15 per cent of the capital	$1,350
In excess of 15 per cent. of the capital and not in excess of 20 per cent. thereof	450
In excess of 20 per cent. of the capital and not in excess of 25 per cent. thereof	450
In excess of 25 per cent. of the capital and not in excess of 33 per cent. thereof	720
In excess of 33 per cent. of the capital	7,030

It is evident that the total deduction of $3,810 is greater than 15 per cent. of the capital, and so is not fully absorbed by the amount of net income not in excess of 15 per cent. of the capital. In such case, applying Article 17, the total deduction of $3,810 will be distributed as follows:

There still remains $840 of the deduction to be allowed in the fifth bracket against the $7,030 of income which would otherwise be taxable under that bracket. There would then be $6,190 of net income left to be taxed at the 60 per cent. rate under the fifth bracket. Hence, the total excess-profits tax in this case would be $3,714.

(2) An individual or partnership has a capital of $40,000, pre-war earnings of 9 per cent., and a net income for the taxable year of $12,000.

The deduction allowed will be 9 per cent. of the capital, or $3,600, plus $6,000 specific deduction, a total of $9,600.

The amount of the net income in each bracket will be as follows:

15 per cent. of the capital	$6,000
In excess of 15 per cent. of the capital and not in excess of 20 per cent. thereof	2,000
In excess of 20 per cent. of the capital and not in excess of 25 per cent. thereof	2,000
In excess of 25 per cent. of the capital and not in excess of 33 per cent. thereof	2,000

It is evident that the total deduction of $9,600 is greater than 15 per cent. of the capital and so is not fully absorbed by the amount of net income not in excess of 15 per cent. of the capital. In such case, applying Article 17, the total deduction of $9,600 will be distributed as follows:

$6,000 in the first bracket, leaving nothing to be taxed at the 20 per cent. rate.

$2,000 in the second bracket, leaving nothing to be taxed at the 25 per cent. rate.

$1,600, the balance of the deduction, to be allowed against the $2,000 of income in the third bracket.

There would then be $400 of income left in the third bracket to be taxed at the 35 per cent. rate, and $2,000 in the fourth bracket to be taxed at the 45 per cent. rate. Hence, the total excess profits tax in this case would be $1,040.

Tax on Invested Capital.

Another example worked out by the Treasury Department has to do with the determination of net income for the taxable year when there is invested capital.

An individual owns a farm representing an invested capital of $25,000, a country store with an invested capital of $6,000, and a flour mill with an invested capital of $10,000. His net income from the farm is $4,000, from the store $3,000, and from the mill $3,000. Thus his total net income of Class B is $10,000. His total invested capital is $41,000. Assuming that his deduction is at the rate of 8 per cent., his total deduction will be $3,280 plus $6,000, or $9,280, to be applied against his net income of $10,000 in computing the tax at the graduated rates under Articles 16 and 17.

The same individual allows himself a salary of $1,000 for working the farm and $800 for running the store, draws a salary of $1,200 as President of the local bank, and receives $250 in compensation for personal services of various kinds, such as road work, helping neighbors in harvest, &c. He also receives $300 in dividends on an investment in certain stocks and $100 as supervisor's fees. The last item—that is, supervisor's fees—is exempt under the law. (Sec. 201, Subdivision A.) The $300 in dividends is not taxable, inasmuch as it is derived from a mere investment not connected with his trade or business. His net income of Class A will therefore consist of his salaries and his compensation for personal services, a total of $3,250. Since he is entitled to a deduction of $6,000 as to this class of income he will have no tax to pay at the 8 per cent. rate under Article 15.

The following example outlines the method by which an individual carrying on a trade or business having an invested capital may receive the deduction allowed for salary to himself:

An individual owns and runs a newspaper having an invested capital of $50,000. The net income from the newspaper, without making any allowance for the salary of the owner, is $20,000, and, as income of Class B, is subject to the graduated rates prescribed in Article 16. His deduction, as provided for in Subdivision B of Article 21, would be $4,500 (9 per cent. of his capital) plus $6,000, a total of $10,500. If, however, he allows himself a salary of $3,000, the net income from the newspaper will be $17,000, and the deduction of $10,500 will be applied against that amount.

His salary of $3,000 must be included in his return as income of Class A, which is subject to the 8 per cent. rate under Article 15. If it constitutes his only income of that class he will pay no tax thereon, inasmuch as it is less than the deduction of $6,000 to which he is entitled as to that class of income. But if, for example, he receives in addition a salary of $4,000 as President of the local bank, his total net income of Class A will be $7,000, and he will be required to pay a tax of 8 per cent. on $1,000 thereof, or $80.

The overdue excess profits blanks, for which Collectors here have been waiting, failed to arrive yesterday, but may be received today.

THE COTTON MARKET

Prices Make Net Gain of 26 to 40 Points After Seesawing for Most of Day.

Nervousness on the part of the very heavy short interest which has been built up in the local cotton market in the last three weeks was responsible for a rather jumpy session yesterday. After seesawing during most of the day, prices responded to some heavy covering during the last hour, and moved forward to a net gain of from 26 to 40 points, the close being only a trifle below the highest of the day.

The opening was rather weak in comparison with notably firm Liverpool cables, which were attributed to apprehension over the shipping situation, this operating in precisely the opposite direction on the local market. However, the undercurrent of trade buying, which had been in evidence on Saturday, was again felt as soon as prices weakened, and the first symptoms of nervousness on the part of the shorts were followed by an advance of from 29 to 36 points. In the middle of the day, however, there was considerable realizing, which knocked quotations off a few points. The final rush, with some of the big short lines being covered, took the list into new high ground for the day.

Spot news from the South continues bullish, everything indicating that the grower fully realizes his strong tactical position and is absolutely unmoved by the fluctuations of the futures market. Reports yesterday also said that unfavorable weather in the South was already affecting preparations for the new crop. Exports for the day were 558 bales, a total of 2,467,113 for the season. Southern spot markets were unchanged to 50 points higher.

Yesterday's quotations follow:

COMMODITIES MARKETS

WHEAT.

It seemed to be the general impression that a larger movement of wheat can be expected, as efforts are being made to empty the country elevators to make room for corn. Receipts, however, were small. The new crop outlook was considered favorable, owing to the extensive snow covering. The Michigan State report said that only fifteen correspondents had noted injury to the growing crop during January, while 361 said that the plant had suffered no damage.

RYE.—Market firm; No. 2 Western, $2.26, cost and freight, New York.

CORN.

The combined efforts on the part of the railroads and the Food Administration, as well as the leading grain interests in the West, to move corn are apparently meeting with success, and the receipts at primary points are increasing, despite the unusual conditions which have to be combated. So far, however, the movement has not been of sufficient proportions to make any noticeable impression upon values. As a matter of fact, the market yesterday, after a slight early decline, developed firmness and closed with net gains of ⅛c to ¼c. Total stocks in Chicago are 1,079,000 bushels, of which none are contract. In the local cash market kiln dried No. 3 yellow was quoted at $1.77¾; No. 3 mixed, $1.75¾, cost and freight, New York, prompt shipment, subject to embargoes; Argentine, $2.06, free on board cars.

OATS.

Reports that country elevators will have to move oats to market to make way for corn led to expectations of a further increase in the movement. Exporters were still out of the market, and in some quarters sentiment was inclined to lean toward the bear side. It is argued that there must be a large amount of oats back in the country owing to the fact that this year's crop was a record one and that the trade should not lose sight of the fact that a new crop will be available by July. Cash prices, however, were not materially influenced, and when shorts attempted to cover they found the market oversold, and prices advanced sharply, closing with net gains of ⅝@¾c. The local cash position was steady; natural quoted at $1@$1.02; sample, 95c@$1; clipped white, $1.03@$1.04, all elevator.

PROVISIONS.

A further advance in the market for live hogs and reports of a firm cash position resulting from recent Government purchases caused an early upturn in the provision market. The demand, however, proved small, and toward the close an easier tone developed which left the market comparatively little changed from the final of Monday. Receipts of hogs at Chicago were 25,000; estimated for Wednesday, 37,000. Kansas City received 8,000 and Omaha 15,000 hogs.

COFFEE.

Operations in coffee were irregular, with the trade still much confused and sentiment more or less unsettled regarding the scope of the new Government regulations, and there was a disposition to await further developments from Washington. There was a firmer tone at the opening, with first prices showing advances of 5 to 15 points, with the early trading largely of an evening-up character. Much of the early gains were lost later, when local trade interests sold and Wall Street longs liquidated, the late trading, however, showing a partial rally from the low point, final prices showing net advances of 1 to 6 points. The local spot market was quiet, with a poor demand and ⅛c lower, at 8⅝c for Rio 7s and 10⅝c for Santos 4s. Range of prices:

SUGAR.

It was reported that the Shipping Board had arranged for considerable tonnage for February shipment sugars, and the International Sugar Committee announced the purchase of 320,000 bags Cubas at 4.985c, cost and freight, and 30,000 bags Porto Ricos at 6.005c, cost, insurance, and freight, both February loading. Refined sugar was unchanged, at 7.45c, regular way, and practically all local interests were distributing moderate quantities of granulated.

BUTTER AND EGG MARKET.

BUTTER.—Receipts yesterday, 9,719 packages. Pretty fair trading and rather a firm tone to the market for all fresh grades of table butter. The secondary qualities are crowding a little closer to the best. Storage creamery very strong and some sales are making at higher prices than have recently ruled. Renovated in demand and firm. Ladles quiet. Packing stock barely steady at the moment. Creamery, higher than extras, a lb., 52@52½c; extras, (92 score,) 51½c; firsts, (88 to 91 score,) 49@51c; seconds, (83 to 87 score,) 46½@48½c; thirds, 44@45c; Creamery, unsalted, higher than extras, 54@54½c; extras, 53@53½c; firsts, 50@52c; seconds, 47½@49½c; Creamery, held, extras, 47c; firsts, 46½@47c; seconds, 45½@46½c; thirds, 43@45c; State dairy, tubs, finest, 50½@51c; good to prime, 48@50c; common to fair, 43@47½c; renovated, extras, 45@45½c; firsts, 44@44½c; lower grades, 40@43c; ladles, current make, firsts, 39¾@40½c; seconds, 39c; lower grades, 37½@38½c; packing stock, current make, No. 1, 39@39½c; No. 2, 38@38½c; lower grades, 35@37½c.

EGGS.—3,111 cases. The market is somewhat unsettled. There is still a considerable accumulation of fresh gathered eggs on hand, most of which is being carried in the belief that weather conditions in the interior may result in a greater scarcity later. The demand, however, is limited and the stock free to be sold seems to be a little more than can be promptly moved. To effect prompt sales the tone of the market is barely steady, but some concessions are being made. Sales of California whites are exceptional above 64@65c. Nearby white eggs are without quotable change, but the trade is quiet and only exceptionally fine qualities reach the top figure. Fresh gathered extras, a dozen, 65½@66c; extra firsts, 64½%65c; firsts, 63½@64; seconds and poorer, 55@63c; State, Pennsylvania, and nearby Western hennery whites, fine to fancy, 66@68c; ordinary to good, 63@65c; gathered whites, ordinary to fine, 62@66c; Pacific Coast whites, No. 1, 64@65c; Pacific Coast pullets, 59½@60c; State, Pennsylvania, and nearby hennery browns, 65@67c; gathered brown and mixed colors, 60@66c.

BETHLEHEM INCOME TAX.

Company Gives Details of Recent Stock Dividends.

The Bethlehem Steel Corporation has issued to stockholders a letter in respect to dividends paid in recent years, the purpose being to assist shareowners in establishing the amount of their income tax. Particular reference is made to the 200 per cent. stock dividend distributed Feb. 17, 1917.

"Some doubt having been raised as to the application of the recent decision of the United States Supreme Court in the case of Towne vs. Eisner to stock dividends declared in 1917, we give the following information," the letter says. "In regard to the stock dividend: The basis of the dividend was a surplus of $30,863,638. The books of the corporation show that its surplus, (as distinguished from the consolidated surplus of the corporation and its subsidiaries,) on Jan. 1, 1913, was $8,517,958; on Dec. 31, 1913, $12,195,964; on Dec. 31, 1914, $12,814,890, and on Dec. 31, 1915, $12,807,256.

"In determining the surplus at the end of each year all dividends declared and paid during the year and the dividend that was payable Jan. 2 in the following year were deducted. Of the remainder of the surplus on which the stock dividend was based $56,882 was the amount by which the income received by the corporation in 1916 exceeded expenses and dividends paid or accrued during that year, and $18,000,000 represents an increase on the books of the corporation, as directed by the Board of Directors, in the value at which the corporation carried the stock of the Bethlehem Steel Company owned by it.

"The resolution which directed this increase in value on the books of the corporation did not specify when the accumulated earnings or surplus that undoubtedly were the basis of this increase were accumulated. The books of the Bethlehem Company, however, show the following:

Surplus on Dec. 31, 1914, (all added during the year ended that date)	$5,524,203
Added to surplus in 1915, after deducting dividends paid	13,102,209
Added to surplus in 1916, after deducting dividends paid	35,848,860
Surplus on Dec. 31, 1916	$54,475,272

"Of the surplus thus accumulated by the Bethlehem Steel Company, only $2,734,645, which was part of the surplus added in 1914, has been taken upon the books of the Bethlehem Steel Corporation prior to Jan. 23, 1917, in showing the value on such books of the stock of the Bethlehem Steel Company. The resolution adopted by the Board of Directors in declaring the stock dividend states 'that said dividend as to $8,517,958 is declared out of the accumulated surplus of the corporation on Jan. 1, 1913.'"

Continental Can Earns $4,531,369.

The Continental Can Company earned a net profit before taxes and depreciation last year amounting to $4,531,369, an increase of $2,000,000 over the preceding year. The management wrote off $400,000 for depreciation and set aside $850,000 for taxes, the latter being about $800,000 more than in 1916, due largely to the Federal war imposts. The final balance of $3,280,977 for dividends was equal to $29.36 a share of common stock after providing for preferred stock dividends. The company's surplus for the year totaled $2,821,402, against $1,225,317 the year before.

BIG YEAR FOR MORRIS & CO.

Gross Return, Less Operating Expenses, $10,358,489 in 1917.

Morris & Co., the packing firm, turned its relatively small capital over with $80 a share besides in the prospeious year of 1917. The annual statement yesterday showed net profits of $5,401,071, equal to $180.03 on each of the 3,000,000 shares. The gross return after operating expenses had been paid was $10,358,489, compared with $5,694,589 in 1916. Miscellaneous income totaled $810,588. The management set aside $3,877,099 for taxes, &c., an increase of $2,833,000, and administration expenses of $1,394,406 were $114,000 larger than in the preceding year.

The company paid out $150,000 in dividends and set aside $100,000 for the pension fund. Despite the big increase of profits, dividends were heavily reduced, being $1,000,000 in 1916. The year's surplus of $5,151,071 was $2,520,000 greater than in 1916.

PIPE LINE EARNINGS JUMP.

Southern's Profit $2,534,565 and Cumberland Nets $487,758.

The Southern Pipe Line Company earned a profit of $2,534,565 last year, a gain of $280,194 over the preceding year. After the payment of dividends a surplus of $134,566 remained, according to the annual statement yesterday, compared with a deficit of $45,628 in 1916. The New York Transit Company, another of the old Standard Oil group, reported a net profit amounting to $1,461,619, compared with $1,339,121 the year before. The surplus remaining after dividends was $461,619, against $439,121 in 1916.

The Cumberland Pipe Line Company earned a profit of $487,758, a gain of $308,392. The surplus amounted to $338,879. The Buckeye Pipe Line Company reported net earnings of $2,380,083, an increase of $277,910 over 1916, equal to $11.90 a share of outstanding stock.

UNITED STATES GOVT. BONDS

Inasmuch as the bulk of business in United States Government bonds is done over the counter, and not on the Stock Exchange, THE TIMES gives the following quotations, obtained from bond dealers:

CONSOLIDATED EXCHANGE

Various specialties were particularly strong in the market on the Consolidated Stock Exchange. Central Leather was a forenoon feature, while General Motors was prominent later in the day. Early in the session the general list ranged lower, but in the afternoon there was an improvement in tone. Profit taking by recent buyers was in evidence early, and the professional element seemed inclined to work for lower prices, although they were not aggressive in their operations.

KAUFMANN DEPARTMENT STORES, INC.

Special Meeting of Stockholders

Pittsburgh, Pa., February 2, 1918.

A SPECIAL MEETING of the Stockholders of Kaufmann Department Stores, Inc., will be held at the principal office of the Company, No. 1261 Broadway, New York City, N. Y., on Monday, February 18, 1918, at 1 o'clock P. M., for the purpose of taking action and voting upon a proposition to decrease the capital stock of the Company from $9,600,000, its present capital stock, consisting of 21,000 shares of preferred stock and 75,000 shares of common stock, of the par value of $100 each, to $9,525,000, consisting of 20,250 shares of preferred stock and 75,000 shares of common stock of the par value of $100 each.

This action is proposed in accordance with Section (c) of Article Fourth of the Certificate of Incorporation of said Kaufmann Department Stores, Inc., which provides for the setting aside, after payment of dividends on the preferred stock, of a "Special Surplus Account" in each year from January 1, 1916, of a sum sufficient to acquire not less than seven hundred and fifty shares of the preferred stock, out of the surplus or net profits, at not to exceed $125 per share, plus accrued and unpaid dividends. Under this provision $75,000 par value of preferred stock has been acquired for said "Special Surplus Account," and the meeting above mentioned is for the purpose of reducing the capital stock by this amount.

How the Straus Plan Safeguards 6% Bonds

INVESTORS seeking thoroughly safe securities, free from market fluctuations and yielding 6% net, owe it to their own interests to investigate thoroughly the Straus Plan of safeguarding amortized real estate mortgages, issued in the form of first mortgage serial bonds. This plan, perfected through an experience of thirty-six years, is based chiefly on the following principles:

1. We are investment bankers, not a real estate operating company. We loan our funds on the best class of newly improved, income-producing real estate in the larger and more prosperous cities of the United States.
2. Every loan is made in the form of a first mortgage serial bond issue, maturing in two to ten years. Each issue is simply an old-fashioned first mortgage on a single specific piece of improved property divided into bonds. Each bond is a direct first mortgage on the property securing it.
3. These bonds are not our debenture obligations, but the obligations of the mortgagors from whom we have purchased them.
4. The bonds are retired—or amortized—by annual serial payments which reduce the amount of the bonds outstanding by about 5% each year without releasing any part of the property mortgaged.
5. In addition to requiring ample equity in the property over the amount loaned, we consider earning power a factor of vital importance. Every property must produce sufficient income itself to pay 6% interest on the bonds, retire about 5% of the principal each year, and leave a surplus ample for safety.
6. As an additional protection, each borrower is required to make monthly deposits of principal and interest, thus accumulating a sinking fund to reduce the principal every year and pay the interest every six months. This ensures prompt payment of interest and principal in cash when due, and prudent and conservative financing on the part of the borrower.
7. We limit our loans to properties in good growing neighborhoods which show a steady upward trend in values.
8. We loan only a safe proportion of the value of the property mortgaged.
9. We loan only to corporations and individuals of responsibility and good standing.
10. The serial payments of these bond issues give investors an opportunity of purchasing $1,000 or $500 bonds coming due in any length of time from two to ten years as they may elect.

The Straus Plan has been in successful operation for thirty-six years without the loss of one dollar of principal or interest to any investor on any security purchased of us. We have prepared special literature of value to every investor, explaining our Plan in full detail.

issued under the Mortgage dated August 1, 1908, to Bankers Trust Company, as Trustee:

Default has been made in the payment of the interest due February 1, 1918, on the above bonds, although a surplus over all fixed charges was earned during the calendar year 1917 and notwithstanding the fact that, other than the Western Pacific judgment which is junior to said bonds, the Company had no unusual floating debt and its voucher account was not beyond the normal amount incident to its going business. It is possible that this default may be cured before the expiration of the period of grace provided in the mortgage, and the Committee is using every effort to bring about this result. It must, however, be evident to all bondholders that, if under such circumstances a default is permitted to take place, immediate co-operation for their protection is necessary. Bondholders are therefore requested to promptly deposit their bonds with the Depositary or Sub-Depositary named below.

All deposited bonds, whether registered or coupon, must be in negotiable form, and coupon bonds must bear the coupon of February 1, 1918, and all subsequent coupons. Upon such deposit, certificates of deposit will be issued as provided in the Deposit Agreement, dated May 28, 1917.

Copies of the Deposit Agreement may be obtained upon application to the Depositary or Sub-Depositary or to the Secretary of the Committee.

TELEGRAPHERS MAKE READY FOR A STRIKE

Demand That Companies Withdraw Embargo Against Union Operators.

CRISIS TO COME ON APRIL 28

President of the Union Says Men Will Openly Organize on That Day and Defy Employers.

A nation-wide telegraphers' strike if the Western Union and Postal Telegraph Companies do not withdraw their embargo against union workers was threatened in a statement by S. J. Konenkamp, President of the Commercial Telegraphers' Union, issued last night by the National Labor Publicity Organization, 51 Chambers Street. He announced that April 28 would be known as "Organization Day."

"We shall organize openly on that day," Mr. Konencamp's statement said, "and if the telegraph companies attempt to discharge any one who joins the union at that time, inaugurate a general strike without delay. If ever a strike can be won it can be won this year, and we are going to make our fight for freedom.

"That means that the gauntlet is thrown down to the Western Union and Postal Telegraph Companies. We are in deadly earnest about this, and nothing shall swerve us. The commercial telegraphers of the United States have the right to organize, and it is up to us now to assert that right.

"The telegraph companies have made no secret of their intention to prevent us from exercising this right as long as they can, but, as stated by President Carlton of the Western Union, they will change that policy whenever we have the power to make them change.

"There is but one way in which to meet this situation. We have determined to organize openly in defiance of any telegraph official who dare deny us our rights as Americans. We have enough faith in the moral courage and red blood of the telegraphers of the country who believe they can free themselves. We know our members are going about the work of organizing in a manner that will mean victory."

A statement issued for the union quoted a recent speech of Secretary of Labor Wilson as follows:

"Almost insuperable obstacles arise, however, when labor disputes occur under circumstances in which employers permit organization of their workmen only on pain of dismissal. Whether so designed or not, the tendency of this policy is to prevent organization of labor; and inasmuch in such cases workmen have no responsible business representatives, only one party to controversies can be conveniently or satisfactorily heard. In such cases, also, the workers, being prevented by the employers from organizing on a business basis, tend to fall away from the pacifying influence of constructive labor organizations and to come under that of revolutionary groups. As most labor lawlessness is traceable to this cause, responsibility for it cannot be wholly diverted from the policy—hardly patriotic in the time of war—of arbitrary organization of the conservative as distinguished from the revolutionary type."

The Western Union has been open in its opposition to the unionization of its force; the Postal a little less so. In labor circles the opposition is a well-known factor. In 1907 the telegraphers staged a fight against the telegraph companies which lasted three months and ended in the defeat of the men.

The attitude of the Western Union, as stated by officials at various times, has been that it is not basically opposed to organized labor, but that it has never been able to forgive the Telegraphers' Union for what it regarded as unfair tactics by the organization in the 1907 strike, which cost the Western Union $5,000,000. The company charged that it tried to treat with the union, but that the union violated its pledges.

The stand of the Postal has been that their men have an organization within the company with which the officials of the company will treat.

Newcomb Carlton, President of the Western Union, said last night that he had known for two weeks of the new movement of the union officials, but that he had no statement to make at this time.

The threatened strike does not involve railroad telegraphers, which have an organization of their own.

INSURANCE COMPANIES WIN.

Court Decides Excess Premium Payments Not Liable to Income Tax.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 5.—A decision important to mutual life insurance companies and their policy holders, holding that excess premiums returned to the policy holders, though not in the same year in which they were paid to the companies, are exempt from the income tax law of 1913, was rendered today by Judge Dickinson of the Federal court in a test suit brought by the Penn Mutual Life Insurance Company against Ephraim Lederer, as Collector of Internal Revenue.

The facts in the case were admitted and practically the sole question for the determination of the court was an interpretation of the provisions of the income tax law as it related to mutual insurance companies.

These companies in one year require a maximum premium in advance to cover the actual cost of carrying the insurance, but it is not determined until the next year how much the actual cost was, and the excess that should be returned to the policy holder. The companies contended that as these were excess premium payments, they had a right to deduct such amounts from their income tax return to the Government, and thus get a credit for excess taxes previously paid.

Judge Dickinson held that, under the interpretation of the income tax law, excess premium payments returned to policy holders are not taxable.

PLEASE TAKE NOTICE THAT THE FIRM of SCHULDES and CHATILLON, doing business under the name of BISMARCK HOTEL AGENCY, at No. 103 East 11th St., New York City, has been dissolved, and that EMIL SCHULDES will continue the business under the same name at the same address as heretofore. EMIL SCHULDES.

REAL ESTATE FIELD

W. H. Barnum Takes Over Verona in the Readjustment Affairs of Clarence Payne.

Progress was reported yesterday in the readjustment of the affairs of Clarence Payne, alleged bankrupt, through the transfer of ownership of the Verona apartment house at the southeast corner of Madison Avenue and Sixty-fourth Street.

Justice Julius M. Mayer of the United States District Court granted permission to Robert C. Knapp and Henry Brady, as temporary receivers of the property of Mr. Payne, to sell to William H. Barnum, for $8,000, the capital stock in the Verona Holding Corporation, owning this property. The transfer was sought in order to prevent foreclosure proceedings which would destroy the small equity held by Mr. Payne's holding company.

Mr. Barnum received an assignment of mechanics' liens aggregating $17,000 held by John Cross of Cross & Cross, architects, and M. Dahl of the Dahl Construction Company, for the purpose of foreclosing, and his offer to purchase the stock of the Verona Holding Corporation was accepted by the receivers.

Douglas L. Elliman & Co., who have been managing the property and who were largely responsible for the present arrangement, stated last night that the $17,000 in mechanics' liens against the property were due to improvements that raised the rent roll from $75,000 a year to about $106,000. The house is now entirely rented.

The report of the receivers brought to light the slender margin upon which Mr. Payne conducted his large real estate operations. He bought the Verona on Aug. 16, 1917, for $800,000, subject to mortgages of $785,000, indicating a cash payment of $15,000, for one of the finest types of houses in the city.

Upon the closing of the title the corporation was allowed the cost of its title policy, its lawyers' fees, and a check for $2,700 in adjustments, making the actual cash investment less than the sum of $12,300.

Since that time the agents for this apartment house have received as rents and turned over and disbursed for the said Verona Holding Corporation during September, October, and November, 1917, the sum of $12,840. The net cost of this property to the corporation, therefore, was about $1,000.

Buying Bronx Flats.

P. H. J. Daly sold to Frederick Brown, operator, the five-story new-law apartment house occupying a plot 50 by 100 on the southeast corner of Aldus Street and the Southern Boulevard. The property was held at $100,000. A. D. Phelps and J. J. Donovan negotiated the sale.

Aaron Goodman purchased from Adolph Bierman 551 and 553 Southern Boulevard, a four-story new-law tenement on a plot 37.6 by 105. The property was taken in part payment by Mr. Goodman for 1,630 and 1,632 St. Nicholas Avenue, sold Monday.

Stark, Spitzer & Co. purchased from the Freehold Construction Company, (David W. Nevins and Philip Wattenberg,) the two modern five-story apartment houses at 1,071 and 1,075 Home Street. The buildings have accommodations for fifty families and occupy a plot 100 by 100, located 190 feet west of Westchester Avenue. The holding price was $115,000.

Brooklyn.

Levine & Rosenberg bought from the Roebling Land Company the six-story double tenement house at 152 to 154 South Eighth Street, on a plot 46 by 120. Joseph Metzger was the broker in the sale.

Queens Borough Sales.

K. G. Bergen sold to G. M. Simmons of Manhattan the property, 50 by 100 feet, on the west side of Third Street, 100 feet north of Warburton Avenue, Bayside.

A. L. Duffy of Brooklyn purchased from Falkinburg & Son the dwelling on the southwest corner of Ferriss Place and Freedom Avenue, Woodhaven.

M. Kolsch sold to P. F. Ryan of Jamaica the dwelling on the southwest corner of Tuckahoe Avenue and Lefferts Avenue, Dunton.

Henry W. Medicus has purchased for occupancy a three-story frame cottage on Lamartine Avenue, between Fifth and Sixth Streets, Bayside, from William Parkinson.

Old Remsen Homestead at Roslyn, L. I., Sold.

Oscar Seaman of Roslyn, L. I., has purchased from Cornelius E. Remsen, Supervisor of North Hempstead, the old Remsen homestead at Roslyn, which was built over 200 years ago. The house contains many old relics, some of them dating back to 1700.

F. H. Bethell Sells Westchester County Estate.

F. H. Bethell, Vice President of the New York Telephone Company, has sold his country estate in the Heathcote Tract, at Scarsdale, to William F. Wall of this city. The property is one of the most attractive in the Scarsdale section, and consists of a large dwelling, garage, and about four acres of land. Fish & Marvin negotiated the sale.

Commercial Leases.

George R. Read & Co. have leased for William C. Walker's Sons, agents, the building at 209 Washington Street, between Barclay and Vesey Streets, to H. Gottlieb & Brothers of Philadelphia.

M. & L. Hess, Incorporated, have leased the store and basement at 30 and 32 West Fifteenth Street to Abraham Bauman.

Calef Brothers, jobbers in cotton goods, have leased from William Vincent Astor the store, basement, and sub-basement at 546 and 548 Broadway, comprising about 40,000 square feet. Frederick Southack & Alwyn Ball, Jr., negotiated the lease. The same brokers also leased the store and basement at 292 Church Street for the James A. Hearn estate to Kanter, Aaronvitz & Morris Weintraub & Son, and the building at 300 Church Street for J. W. Cushman & Co. to E. M. Merblum.

Henry Hof leased for Kernan Flynn the two-story garage at 157 East Twenty-fifth Street to the Broadway Local Express Company for a term of years.

Realty Notes.

Receivers of the Atlantic Dock Company have received permission from Supreme Court Justice Manning of Brooklyn to sell the Times Square Hotel at 206 West Forty-third Street to the Newgold Hotel Corporation, the lessee, for $170,000. The hotel is ten stories in height and covers a plot 30 by 100.5. The sale was originally reported last September.

Reconstruction of the Brighton Baths, at Ocean Parkway and Sea Breeze Avenue, Coney Island, recently destroyed by fire, has been arranged by Brighton-by-the-Sea, Inc., owner of the property. Plans prepared by Benjamin Driesler call for the erection of a three-story bathhouse to measure 196 by 180 feet. The Turner Construction Company has obtained the general contract.

Pease & Elliman negotiated the sale for the American Female Guardian Society and Home for the Friendless to the New York City Baptist Mission Society of the property at 225-227 East Eightieth Street, a modern three-story brick school building, on a plot 48 by 102.2 feet. The purchaser will use the property as a branch mission school.

There were no plans filed yesterday in Manhattan or the Bronx for new buildings or alterations involving more than $5,000.

Remsen Darling has become associated with the mortgage department of Charles B. Van Valen, Inc.

THE WEATHER

WASHINGTON, Feb. 5.—Cold weather continues in Atlantic Coast districts north of the Carolinas, while in the great interior valleys it is much warmer, with temperatures today above the seasonal average in the Mississippi and Missouri Valleys and through the Rocky Mountain region.

Snow has fallen in Upper Michigan and rain in California north of San Francisco, and also in the western parts of Washington and Oregon.

Snow is probable Wednesday and Thursday in the upper lake region, rain Thursday in the East Gulf States, Tennessee, and the Ohio Valley, and snow or rain in the lower lake region.

It will be warmer Wednesday in the Ohio Valley and the lake region, and the temperature will rise slowly Wednesday and Thursday in Atlantic Coast districts north of the Carolinas, and in this section will probably reach and pass the freezing point Thursday.

Winds for Wednesday and Thursday along the North Atlantic Coast will be fresh west, with fair weather; Middle Atlantic Coast, light and variable, becoming southeast, fair; South Atlantic Coast, gentle east to southeast, fair.

FORECASTS: TODAY AND THURSDAY.

Eastern New York—Fair and rather cold Wednesday; Thursday partly cloudy and warmer, probably with snow in the northern portion.

Southern New England—Fair Wednesday and Thursday, slowly rising temperature.

New Jersey and Eastern Pennsylvania—Partly cloudy and warmer Wednesday and Thursday.

Western New York—Cloudy and warmer Wednesday, probably with snow along the lake; Thursday rain or snow.

Northern New England—Fair and not quite so cold Wednesday; Thursday partly cloudy, probably snow, with rising temperature.

The temperature record for the twenty-four hours ended at 11 P. M., taken from the thermometer at the local office of the United States Weather Bureau, is as follows:

	1917.	1918.		1917.	1918.
3 A. M.	27	4	4 P. M.	19	3
6 A. M.	17	-6	6 P. M.	19	2
9 A. M.	13	-5	9 P. M.	14	[illegible]
12 M.	16	2	11 P. M.	15	[illegible]

This thermometer is 414 feet above the street level. The average temperature yesterday was 6; for the corresponding date last year it was 24; average on the corresponding date for the last thirty-three years, 30. The temperature at 8 A. M. yesterday was 5 degrees below zero; at 8 P. M. it was 2 degrees above. Maximum temperature, 4 degrees above zero at 3 P. M.; minimum, 7 degrees below zero, at 6:50 A. M. Humidity, 49 per cent. at 8 A. M.; 28 per cent. at 8 P. M. The barometer at 8 A. M. yesterday registered 30.24 inches; at 8 P. M. it stood at 30.46 inches.

The Civil Service.

City.

The following physical examinations have been held: Inspector of elevators, thirteen passed, four rejected; medical inspector, four passed, one rejected; psychiatrist, two passed. The commission has ordered a promotion list to second grade clerk, Commissioner of Parks, Manhattan. The mental test for inspector, Board of Water Supply, Grade 2, will be held on Feb. 8.

The receipt of applications for telephone operator, Grade 1, has been extended to Feb. 13. The mental test for inspector of elevators will be held on Feb. 8.

United States.

The commission announces for March 6, at the New York Custom House, an examination for library assistant, for men and women. Vacancies in the departmental service at Washington or elsewhere at $900 to $1,200 a year, or higher or lower salaries, will be filled from this examination. There are at present several vacancies in Washington, D. C., and one at Madison, Wis., the entrance salary for the position at Madison, Wis., being $900 a year. Competitors will be examined in library economy, cataloguing, classification, and bibliography; German, and either French or Spanish; education, and experience. Applicants must have graduated from a four-year high school course or have had an equivalent training, and have had, in addition, either one year in a recognized library school or one year in a training class in a library using modern methods and one year's experience, or three years' experience in a library using modern methods. Applicants must have reached their eighteenth but not their fortieth birthday on the date of the examination. Further information may be obtained by writing the commission, Washington, D. C.

Education Notes.

Mrs. Grace Strachan Forsythe is a candidate for City Superintendent of Schools.

The Parents' Association of P. S. 39, Queens, will meet this evening in the building of the Far Rockaway High School. Mrs. P. F. Frost, President of the Mothers' Council of the Public Schools, will speak on "The Schools of Today."

State Commissioner of Education Finley has ruled that teachers must have a license before they can make a claim for pay.

Miss Fanniebelle Curtis will tell the Public School Kindergarten Association at 4 P. M. today in the Morris High School of her war experience in France.

Plans for obtaining salary increases for teachers of the kindergarten to 6 B group will be presented at a meeting of the Professional Elementary Teachers' Association at the World Building at 8 P. M. tomorrow. The Corporation Counsel has ruled that the Board of Education cannot fix salaries without action by the Board of Aldermen, and the increases must be ratified by the Controller's regulations.

CITY FIGHTS GRIP OF ZERO WEATHER

With Mercury at 7 Below, New York Experiences Second Coldest Day on Record.

SIX PERSONS ARE OVERCOME

Gale Piles Up Ice in Harbor and Shipping Is Nearly Paralyzed—70 Ships Caught in Channel.

The temperature was again below zero yesterday, and the Weather Bureau entered Tuesday, Feb. 5, 1918, as the second coldest day in the history of this city so far as its records show. The lowest temperature was reported at 7 o'clock in the morning, when the mercury stood at 7 degrees below zero, and it hung around that point until noon. Additional discomfort was occasioned by a thirty-five mile wind out of the Northwest, which penetrated through overcoats and sweaters, and piled up ice in the harbor so that for a time there was a practical embargo on shipping. Six persons were reported to the police as having been overcome by the cold. Great South Bay was frozen over for the first time in forty years.

The following persons were so badly overcome by the cold yesterday as to need treatment:

AGMOS, PEDRO, 23 years old, a driver, 1,629 Madison Avenue; found at 59 Franklin Street suffering from exposure; taken to the Volunteer Hospital.

BREENER, ARTHUR, 29 years old, 576 West 176th Street; removed from 180th Street and Amsterdam Avenue to St. Laurence Hospital suffering from exposure.

FEENEY, JOHN, 17 years old, office boy, Oakwood Avenue, Jamaica; found suffering from exposure at Second Avenue and Sixty-seventh Street and removed to Bellevue Hospital.

GREY, JOHN, 50 years old, laborer, 260 West Thirty-ninth Street; attended for exposure at 500 Seventh Avenue and taken to Bellevue Hospital.

HALL, MABLE, 18 years old, operator; 20 Schley Street, Glendale, L. I.; after being treated for frostbitten feet at the Centre and Canal Street subway station went home.

LAWRENCE, JOSEPH, 17 years old, office boy, 2,021 Chatterton Avenue, the Bronx; attended for exposure at the Ninety-sixth Street subway station and went home.

The temperature was one degree below that of Dec. 29, when the mercury reached 6 below zero, and that day was heralded as the coldest in the history of the Weather Bureau here for about twenty-four hours, and then all records were smashed when on Dec. 30 13 degrees below zero was recorded. The data of the Weather Bureau go back to 1871. Because December and January were the coldest months of which there was an official record Weather Bureau employes began to delve into older records. They found among other interesting items that the coldest day prior to Dec. 30 of last year was on Jan. 8, 1866, when it was reported in the army records at Governors Island that the mercury dropped to 12 degrees below. The records on the island go back to 1823. The bureau that was maintained in Central Park showed that half a dozen times during the Winter of 1860 the temperature fell to 5 degrees below zero.

New Ice Impedes Shipping.

The intense cold formed new ice for harbor craft to buck, and it froze together packed cakes of ice and floes until navigation became yesterday a matter of delay and considerable danger.

The northwest wind sent this ice smashing against the Brooklyn shore, and the tide carried it along the East River, so that that waterway and the shores of South Brooklyn were practically choked with ice in the morning and until the change in the tide. The sweep of the thirty-five-mile wind over the upper bay piled the ice in Buttermilk Channel, between Brooklyn and Governors' Island, until it was packed with ice and impossible to navigate. It was estimated that at one time there were seventy vessels fast in the ice there, and the tugs labored in vain to free them and force a passage through. This was finally accomplished by the jam giving way under tide and wind, and the ice passed down to the Narrows, carrying shipping with it.

Tows Greatly Delayed.

It took ten hours and longer for tows to come through the ice about Staten Island and in the Kill van Kull up the East River, and while conditions were slightly better in the North River, there were still big fields of ice to be encountered. Along the Manhattan shore the ice was piled about docks and jammed up in the slips, and the ferry service was much delayed in consequence. Much ice worked down the North River and went through the passageway between Governors Island and the Battery. A dozen car floats and other craft were caught there in the morning, and it took hours before they were released, and then they could only move with the sweep of wind and tide that was carrying the ice fields along.

The Atlantic Avenue and Hamilton Avenue Ferries to Brooklyn were forced to suspend operations for several hours in the morning, and after they got under way again the boats ran behind schedules. The Governors Island Ferry made one trip an hour, and each time the trip presented new problems in navigation. The Greenpoint Ferry, between Twenty-third Street and Greenpoint, Brooklyn, had to force a new channel through the ice at each crossing. On one of the early morning trips the pilot found it impossible to bring his craft to within five feet of the slip, and boards had to be laid and the passengers, nearly all men, landed in this way. The boat carried no vehicles.

Teams Unable to Use Ferries.

The delay in ferry service added to the troubles of the truck drivers and hindered the delivery of freight and other goods. Traffic policemen at the Battery turned away many teams, and these had to go over the Brooklyn Bridge to reach Brooklyn, a delay, in some cases, of more than two hours.

The only vessel that got in yesterday and experienced no difficulty in coming up the harbor was the Red Cross liner Florizel. This vessel runs to Newfoundland and is built for ice breaking. On her last appearance here three weeks age she was pressed into the Government service to break the ice to Yonkers, to make a channel through Kill van Kull to the coal ports, and to open up a channel in Newark Bay. It was expected that she would again be used for this service, for the movement of coal and freight demands that the channels be kept open and the Florizel is considered the best boat for that purpose. It is reported that her services will be required at Yonkers where, it was said, sugar steamers are waiting to get through the ice to the refineries there.

Unable to Get Through Ice.

A Brazilian steamship attempted to get through the ice into the Bush Terminal with a cargo of freight and sixty-nine passengers. After many attempts she gave up and went back to Staten Island, where she anchored. Late yesterday it was said that she was icebound and that the company had been unable to get tugs to take off the passengers.

When New Yorkers went to work yesterday morning after a third workless Monday they had to face the wind in the coldest part of the day. The street car lines were little used, and in consequence both in the morning and afternoon rush hours the subways and elevated lines were greatly congested. At express stations and at transfer points the crowds became so great that there was considerable delay in getting trains away. Monday was the third day this Winter on which the temperature has dropped below zero. The mercury reached the zero mark at 10 P. M., and it did not get back to zero until noon yesterday.

The zero weather was responsible for the crowding of all the lodging houses again last night, although the attendance was not so great as during the cold spell in December and not so great as in other Winters. Superintendent S. A. Rice of the Municipal Lodging House said last night that the reason was the increased opportunity for work. The real suffering was to be found, he said, in the homes of the poor, where there was little coal and food. The lodging houses, he added, simply dealt with the homeless of both sexes.

Court Closed Because of Cold.

Because the temperature in the Washington Heights Court House was only 41 degrees, Magistrate McGeehan closed court yesterday morning after disposing of a few summons cases. This is the third time this Winter that business has had to be suspended in the building for this cause.

The Hudson River yesterday morning was frozen over as far south as Fort Washington Point, or 178th Street. From that point a sheet of ice extended from shore to shore, marked by air holes. At Fort Washington Point a narrow strip of blue showed the channel that was open to the southward. At 134th Street the ice in the early morning looked solid all the way across the river, but this was broken up by the wind and the tidal current. The Harlem River, the Bronx River, and the Mott Haven Canal all are frozen over.

In the twenty-four hours which ended at noon yesterday the Health Department reports that 53 persons died of pneumonia. From noon yesterday to noon on Saturday 116 persons died of pneumonia in this city. In the same period last week 149 deaths were due to pneumonia.

Dispossess Actions Increase.

A great increase in actions on the part of landlords to dispossess tenants has resulted from the shortage of fuel. In the last month Municipal Courts all over the city have been crowded with cases of tenants who refuse to pay their rent because the landlord gives them neither heat nor hot water as contracted for. Judge Solomon W. Oppenheimer, sitting in the Sixth Municipal Court at 155 East Eighty-eighth Street, disposed of 150 such cases yesterday. In view of the circumstances, he decided that the court had no power to compel the landlord to supply heat if he could get no coal. Wherever heat or hot water was contracted for in the renting of the premises, however, the court ruled that the tenant was entiled at least to some reduction in the rent, and the landlord was directed to act accordingly. One thousand cases of this nature were disposed of by Judge Oppenheimer in January.

The prediction is for warmer weather today, and probably still warmer tomorrow. It will be fair, and the winds will diminish to a "gentle south wind."

This is the hourly temperature record of the second coldest day in the history of the local Weather Bureau:

Below-Zero Temperature Reported from Many Centres.

The coldest point in New Jersey yesterday seems to have been Culver's Lake at 23 below zero. This has been exceeded in severity only by the State's record figure of 29 below, recorded at the same place Dec. 30 last. In Dover the cold registered 14 degrees below. Rockaway experienced 12 degrees below. At Changewater, in Warren County, it was 17 below at 7 o'clock on the Standard Oil Company's certified thermometer. In Washington Borough the temperature was variously reported from unofficial sources as from 15 to 20 below zero.

Temperatures in Newark were: 3 A. M., 7 degrees below zero; 7 A. M., 5 below zero; noon, zero. Other temperatures recorded in various parts of New Jersey were: Caldwell, 14 below; Paterson, 8 below; Newton, 10 below.

BUFFALO, N. Y., Feb. 5.—This city experienced last night the coldest night since 1895. Twelve degrees below zero was the official record at the Weather Bureau, but suburbs reported 11 to 16 degrees below.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Feb. 5.—From midnight until 7 o'clock this morning the official thermometer registered 10 degrees below zero. In country districts the temperature was much lower.

JAMESTOWN, N. Y., Feb. 5.—Mercury registered from 20 to 26 degrees below zero in Western New York this morning. For the first time since the water plant was built in Jamestown thirty years ago many of the water mains in the streets were frozen solid this morning, and water is shut off from sections of the city. Coal is scarce and natural gas, which is generally used in homes, is so low as to cause intense suffering.

MALONE, N. Y., Feb. 5.—With temperatures varying from 35 to 52 degrees below zero and a stiff wind blowing, today was one of the severest in the memory of the oldest inhabitants of the northern part of New York. Schools were closed, trains were from six to thirty hours late, roads were badly drifted, rural mail routes were blocked, there was much suffering from cold and lack of fuel, and business was almost at a standstill.

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 5.—The coldest February weather in many years was experienced in Pennsylvania. In Philadelphia the temperature went below zero for the third time this Winter, the mercury registering minus 2 degrees early in the day. In the mountain regions of the anthracite coal fields and in the Alleghanies temperatures of 25 degrees below were reported.

PITTSBURGH, Penn., Feb. 5.—Ten degrees below zero was registered by the Weather Bureau here today. The cold wave blew over this city shortly after sundown last night and the temperature continued to fall throughout the night. The Allegheny and Monongahela Rivers that had been partially opened up by ice-breaking steamers and dynamite in an attempt to avert serious flood conditions and ice gorges, are again frozen solid, and the work of the last week has been undone by the cold.

WILMINGTON, Del., Feb. 5.—The cold wave that swept all of Delaware yesterday increased in intensity last night. In this city during the night the thermometer fell to six degrees below zero and to ten to twelve below in exposed places.

BOSTON, Feb. 5.—A cold wave that sent temperatures way below zero swept over New England last night and held on today with little prospect of an early break. From a reading of zero at midnight the mercury in Boston dropped to ten below at 7 o'clock this morning. It was the second coldest day of the Winter, a minimum of 14 below on Dec. 30 being the record.

Greenville, Me., at 26 below, was the coldest New England point from which official reports were received by the local bureau. Northfield, Vt., was 24 below; Burlington, 22; Concord, N. H., 16; Eastport and Portland, Me., 14; Hartford and Block Island, 6 below, with a sixty-mile gale cutting in from the northwest. Nantucket's record was 4 below, with a 32-mile wind.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, Feb. 5.—Cleveland was in the grip of the coldest weather of the Winter this morning. At 9 o'clock the kiosk in the Public Square registered thirteen degrees below zero.

CINCINNATI, Ohio, Feb. 5.—Chances of the ice gorge below this city breaking up in the very near future dwindled to almost nothing last night, when the mercury dropped to four degrees below zero. The Ohio River is receding slowly into its banks, but the extreme cold weather is working an additional hardship upon the hundreds of families whose homes are in the flooded district.

DETROIT, Feb. 5.—Temperatures ranging from sixteen below zero in Detroit to forty below in villages along the west shore were recorded in Michigan last night.

TO MANAGE PROPERTIES OF DANGEROUS ALIENS

President by Proclamation Paves Way for Seizure of Holdings of Interned Teutons.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 5.—President Wilson issued a proclamation today including under the term of "enemy" in the Trading with the Enemy act all alien enemies who have been permanently interned by the War Department.

The purpose of the proclamation is to enable A. Mitchell Palmer, the Alien Property Custodian, to take over and manage the property of alien enemies of large means who have been permanently interned, and to eliminate any possibility of their carrying on from the internment camps trading activities which might be inimical to the interests of the United States.

The proclamation is limited to a small class of alien enemies, and does not include in its scope an alien enemy under arrest in a local jail who has not been transferred to the War Department, nor an alien enemy already released on parole, nor the great body of alien enemies subject to regulation by the President under the power conferred by the Revised Statutes.

It was explained, in connection with the issuance of the proclamation, that the Government does not intend to interfere with the property of the ordinary alien enemy and that the proclamation is strictly limited in its operation to those who have been found to be dangerous and who have been transferred to the War Department for permanent detention.

Bark Finland Is Wrecked.

The Russian bark Finland, a vessel of 1,674 tons gross register, which left New Orleans the early part of January for France, has been wrecked on the French coast, according to information received in insurance circles yesterday. The bark was loaded with steel and other general cargo and was driven ashore in a storm and broke up before she could be salvaged. A considerable part of the insurance was carried by New York firms. The Finland was formerly known as the King Arthur and was built in 1887 at Dundee.

IDLE MONDAYS MUST CONTINUE

Tuesday, bringing a three-day holiday over Sunday, Monday, and Tuesday. If Saturday—in many cases observed as a half holiday—were made a complete holiday, this would give a four-day closing.

Washington's Birthday, Feb. 22, falling on Friday, offers another opportunity to make Saturday a complete holiday, and thus give another four-day closing period.

Prospects for any material improvement in the next few days were gloomy. Railroad Administration officials seized eagerly on forecasts of slightly higher temperatures moving eastward from the west, but they pointed out that it would take days for the railroads to recover from the demoralizing influence today's low-record temperatures.

CITY'S SUPPLY OF COAL IS CUT DOWN BY COLD

Yesterday's Receipts of Anthracite 7,000 Tons Short of Amount Needed to Supply Priority List.

State Fuel Administrator Albert H. Wiggin announced last night that only 14,000 tons of anthracite coal had been moved from the coal ports to New York yesterday. This is the smallest amount to arrive in a single day since the present crisis began, and it is 7,000 tons short of the daily requirement to supply the needs of those on the priority list established by Dr. Garfield. The only hope for New York City now lies in a drop in the temperature, and last night the Administrators were watching the weather report with more interest than they gave to the tidewater coal figures.

"I do not want to appear as an alarmist," said Mr. Wiggin, "nor do I wish to frighten the people, but the coal situation today is more alarming than it has ever been before. This is due to the severe weather conditions and the lack of facilities."

The reports of tidewater conditions received yesterday by Marine Supt. W. B. Pollock show that there were at the coal ports loaded in barges 9,581 tons of anthracite and 16,950 tons of bituminous coal. In the twenty-four hours that ended early yesterday morning Mr. Pollock's report showed that 76 barges containing 32,194 tons of anthracite and 47 barges with 23,948 tons of bituminous coal had been towed from the terminals. Most of this anthracite came to this city.

The figures of coal on the rails and nearing the coal ports showed a falling off in every case, except an increase of more than 100 cars of anthracite within forty-eight hours of the terminals. The report showed: Within twenty-four hours of tidewater, 1,063 cars of anthracite and 707 cars of bituminous; within forty-eight hours of tidewater, 560 cars of anthracite and 847 cars of bituminous.

Joseph Parsons, in charge of shipping for the United States Shipping Board, reported that the work of bringing bunker coal to this port is keeping up, and that the shipping situation continues to improve. He reported yesterday morning that seven vessels had received 6,400 tons of bunker coal, and that seventeen vessels were waiting for coal.

Mr. Wiggin announced yesterday that Thomas C. Farrell of the firm of William Farrell & Sons has been appointed to take charge of household and apartment house distribution. Mr. Schley gave a conservative list of 250 heatless apartment houses in Manhattan. In the Bronx Joseph F. Ahearn, Deputy Administrator, reported yesterday 400 apartment houses heatless. Their coal supply, he said, had fallen off because the limited supply arriving was required by hospitals, asylums, and schools that are the first of the domestic consumers served. At many coal yards there were lines of persons waiting yesterday with all sorts of receptacles in which to carry away coal. Many of these, after waiting hours in the cold, went away without it.

The New York Tow Boat Exchange reported forty-nine tugs out of commission because of ice damage, and there are now nineteen railroad tugs laid up for repair. In addition Port Reading reported a shortage of labor.

BARS UP AGAINST POOR ANTHRACITE

Federal Order Issued Calling Upon Producers to Resume Removal of Impurities.

Special to The New York Times.

WILKES-BARRE, Penn., Feb. 5.—Investigation of the quality of coal shipped by anthracite operators, big and little, has brought to light such conditions as to cause the Federal Fuel Administration, through A. C. Campbell and Tudor Williams, Administrators in Luzerne and Lackawanna Counties, to take summary action.

An order was issued by Mr. Campbell here today in behalf of the Fuel Administration that puts up the bars against any further sale of inferior and impure coal. The order, effective at once, follows:

"The United States Fuel Administration feels that no anthracite coal should be sold unless it has been prepared properly the customary way, that is, as it was in the beginning of the year 1914.

"Pursuant to instructions received, the Fuel Committee directs that you hereafter do not ship or sell any coal unless it has been prepared in the customary way, to wit: by passing the same through a breaker or a washery, so as to properly size and remove the rock, slate, dirt, and ashes from the coal. We demand that you will immediately comply with this order and send us a letter to that effect.

"A. C. CAMPBELL, Chairman."

O'RYAN FORBIDS TATTOOING.

Contends Marked Soldiers Might Be Captured on Patrol Duty.

Special to The New York Times.

SPARTANBURG, S. C., Feb. 5.—The old army custom of decorating soldiers' chests and arms with tattoo marks eulogistic of the wearers' service or regiments no longer would be permitted in the Empire Division, Maj. Gen. O'Ryan announced today.

In explaining his reason General O'Ryan said that later, when the men go into the trenches, the tattooed privates would be useless for patrol work. If one of the tattooed men, bearing the inscription, "Private John Doe, Company A, Tenth Regiment," were captured, the Germans would be put in possession of information of military value.

Great South Bay Frozen Over.

PATCHOGUE, N. Y., Feb. 5.—The entire Great South Bay along the south coast of Long Island is frozen over solid, from shore to shore, with flinty ice from two to three feet thick. Automobiles, trucks, and sleds drawn by heavy teams pass over the ice field in safety. Old baymen say that never in their memory has the ice been so thick.

ROADS ARE TIED UP; MEN QUIT IN COLD

in a futile effort to get her to the dock. The train had 2,400,000 pounds of flour. This is the first of a number of such food trains on their way to this port.

Trains Stalled in Snow.

It was estimated by railroad men that taking the Eastern district as a whole the freight movement yesterday was not more than half of normal. Mr. Smith's report said that because of the severe weather the movement was curtailed from 20 to 50 per cent. on the big lines and that some lines were forced to suspend operations altogether. All lines reported freight trains stalled in the snow and derailments due to frozen switches and wheel flanges. Fifty per cent. of the tracks in the Central West district were blocked by the water freezing, making movements impossible.

The freezing stopped the rising water at Cincinnati, where floods had forced the abandonment of the Union Station. But most of the interchange tracks were still under water, and this froze solid to a depth of from one to six inches.

One telegram received yesterday by Mr. Smith, referring to stalled freight trains, said: "Many men are having their hands and feet frozen and they cannot stand the exposure but for a short time, which will delay the release of these trains." Another said: "The men refused to work, claiming they could not live out of doors."

Dig Out Stock Train.

A train of live stock was stalled all night east of Syracuse. A volunteer crew dug it out at noon yesterday, when many of the cattle were in a pitiable condition. A passenger train was stalled all night near Syracuse. Three eastbound freight trains last night were reported stalled in snow drifts with four locomotives and a rotary snowplow unable to move them. One of the snowplows with two engines behind it became stalled in a drift near Utica, and it had to be dug out by men with shovels. New York Central officials expressed the hope of starting some light freight trains last night. Very few freight trains could be run on the Central's lines yesterday.

It was reported that but two stock trains left Chicago yesterday for the East.

A summary of the situation given by Mr. Smith yesterday was that all sections reported weather conditions in the last twenty-four hours as the most severe and trying ever experienced, that operations of all yards were seriously affected, and passenger train schedules on all lines badly deranged.

The Chesapeake Bay, which was just recovering from the recent cold spell, was reported last night again closed by drifting ice and all freight and passenger service on the bay abandoned.

A report from the Pennsylvania Railroad said: "Water stations are freezing up, necessitating the fires being drawn from engines on account of the inability to get water. The power stations at Thorndel, the principal coaling station on the Philadelphia division of the Pennsylvania Railroad, is out of commission due to freezing water pipes. This threw out of commission the compressor plant which supplies air service for the interlocking station, making automatic signals useless and causing serious delay to train movements."

Conditions in Michigan were reported serious, with all movements at a standstill. The Pere Marquette reported all traffic abandoned, with the temperature 35 below zero and growing colder. Detroit and other Michigan cities reported a critical condition as to coal supplies.

The Twentieth Century Limited, due here at 9:40 A. M. yesterday, arrived at 5:55 P. M. The Wolverine of the New York Central was seven hours late and the Detroit Express nine hours late. The New York Central's Chicago Express, due at 5:25 P. M. Monday, and the St. Louis Express of the same line, due at 8 o'clock yesterday morning, reached Pittsburgh at the same hour fighting their way eastward. They were consolidated into one train, and with two engines reached New York at noon yesterday. The Delaware & Hudson Railroad sent a dispatch to the New York Central stating that the Montreal Express, scheduled to leave last midnight, would not be run. On the New Haven, the Boston Express, due at 7 o'clock in the morning, did not arrive until noon.

Some trains from the West on the Pennsylvania were nine hours late. The Manhattan Limited, from Chicago, was eight hours late, and the Keystone Express, from Pittsburgh, was ten hours behind time.

WOULD 'SUBWAYIZE' RAILWAYS

Shonts Suggests Government Partnership Based on Dual System.

DETROIT, Mich., Feb. 5.—Theodore P. Shonts, President of the Interborough Rapid Transit Company of New York, addressing the Board of Commerce today, suggested as a solution of the railroad problem a partnership between the Government and the railroads, something like the partnership in New York between the city and the rapid transit lines for the construction and operation of the city's new dual rapid transit system. He said:

"Treat this three-year average, which the Government grants, as a preferential subject to such readjustment in individual cases as is necessary to be fair; and then let the Government supply the money necessary for all the improvements made after June 30, 1917; and, because of its many and different benefits, treat that as a junior lien on the property."
